Bribery at Elections.-On Thursday, the 9th Feb., Sir F. Kelly moved for leave to for the prevention of Bribery.
"His ohject was, he aaid, to render bribery, now regarded often with indifference or lenity a disgraceful crime ; and the bill, in addition to the crdinary penalties of perjury for making a false declaration would incapacitate a canditate who should be convieted of giving a bribe from ever after sitting in the house or holding any office under thown.'
If all we hear be true concerning the bribery practised in our province, it is high time some such bill were brought into our House of Assembly. According to some accounts such a law as the above would largely diminish the Representatives of the people diminish the Representatives of the people

A Constitutional Debate is expected in the Legislative Council. The Hon. Mather B. Almon has given notice that on the 2nd of April he will move that the House resolve on the general state of the province for the purpose of taking into onsideration certain matters affecting the Constitution of this country.

A Union Prayer Meeting, closing the sevonth course of. Lectures before the Young Men's Christian Association, will be held in Temperance Hall on Tuesday evening, the 27th inst., at $7 \frac{1}{2}$ o'clock.
Several evangelical clergymen of the city are expected to take part in the proceedings. $\mathbf{A}$ collection will be taken at the door to defray expenses.

A meeting in connection with the Acadial Working Abstinence Society will he held in the Poplar Grove Church on Thursday even ing next, 22nd inst. Chair will be taken a half-past seven o'elock.

News Summary.

Ons of the most able and eloquent speech es that has been heard in the British House of Commons for many years, was made by Mr . W. Gladstone, the Chancellor of the ExMr. W. Gladstone, the Chancelior of the Bud ohequer, on the 10 th ult., on opening the Budget, or scheme of Financial measures for of the present year, and introducing the terms of the present year, and introducing the terms of the recent Commercial Treaty between England and France. This Treaty, which changes the and France, Thole system of commercial intercourse beWhole system of commercial intercourse beifeen the two countries, is in intered to operate without interruption or if suffered to operate without interruption or in their relative position, and to open a course of trade, which cannot but exert 2 most beneficial influence, not only as regards the material, but on the social interests of both nations. France is by nature one of the richest countries on earth, in many things that constitute the great requirements of commerce. Her people are also active, industrious and highly iegenious, but the system of monopolies and prohibition that has characterized the whole of her commercial code, as well as those of most of the other countries of Europe, has hitherto operated as a check to her enterprize, and as a dead weight upon her trade and comand as a dead weight upon her trade and commerce. The present treaty is looked upon by the wise and peace-loving in both nations, as the wise and peace-loving in both nations, a forent and greatly improved state of feeling ferent and greatly improved state of feeling of the bitter enmity that for ages past has of the bitter enmity that for ages past has lives, and the expenditure of tens of millions

 arge.The capture of Tetuan by the Spaniards, and the future success that appears almost ertain to follow, will, in all probability lead to the settlement of a colonial Spanish province in Northern Africa, in imitation of the neighbouring French colony of Algiers. Howeighbouring French colony of Algiers. How-ver far behind most of Europe, the Spaniards are in the arts of civilization and good government, such a result is no doubt higgye deation of ignorant and barbarous fanatics as the Moors, its present rulers. Spain cannot forever lag behind in the march of improvement, and her influence on Northern Africa must hereafter be largely increased.
