The monster intemperance is swallowing up yearly more than would pay for all our Railways, educational and religious institutious and yet it is sunk into a mere matter of revenue; and only two or three men in the Assembly lift their voice in remonstrance.

The Editor of the Witness says he received the story about that "Outrage" being committed by Irish Romanists "from at least two dozen different sources;" and therefore of course he believed it, and published it for truth. We would recommend him to give that "two dozen" a cold shoulder in future, and keep company only with those on whose word he can place more reliance. He does not appear willing to believe that a combination was formed to play a hoax upon him, but still persists in believing that "the probabilities of the case" are, that "the Protestant gentleman" was struck by "Irish Romanists, and seems unwilling that it should be done by any but "Irish Romanists" and therefore "Irish Romanists" it must have been. "Ruffianism" often exists in the use of language more than in a personal assault.

He says "you will never find a Free Church Student guilty of striking "a man behind his will exceed in beauty its external look. The back" and in addition to other virtues "he will never stoop" "to sow discord among Protestants"! Well, we hope he may find his prediction verified! We shall expect forthwith to see a delightful change!! We presume none of the "two dozen" he refers to were belonging to that "body of young genl emen." The "odium" he supposes might be cast upon them is not surely in the ques- Marble Quarry of peculiar richness has been tion we asked, but in the answer he might be discovered at New Canada a district lying betable to give.

We commend the letter of W. Churchill. Esqr., on another page to the attention of the Pastors and Clerks of the Churches. By a careful consideration of the matters it refers to, the valuable time of the Associations, may be saved, and great good arise to all who attend those annual gatherings.

News Summary.

complicated, owing to the plans of the French Emperor, and the pertinacity of the Sovereign Pontiff. Louis Napoleon now openly claims the provinces of Savoy and Nice, the part of Piedmont lying on the Western slopes of the Alps, next to France. Any territorial increase of the French Empire is strongly opposed to the wishes of England and the other this City. - Isl, of 23rd ult. leading powers of Europe, and although such concession to France ought not to produce and of those nice little articles which is calculated to immediate rupture with any of them, it would relieve an immense amount of suffering inciyet create difficulties which would not improbably lead to a speedy rupture. Louis many times like magic-so instantaneous-the Napoleon also objects to the annexation of Tuscany to Sardinia, which he is desirous of being kept as a distinct sovereignty as hitherto, it is thought, for his cousin, Prince Napoleon, who married the King of Sardinia's daughter.

The Pope still refuses either to relinquish his rights to his revolted Provinces, or to introduce any reforms into his mode of government. There cannot be a doubt, were the French army of 40,000 men to be withdrawn of Cape Breton-Donald McLean, (South side to-morrow, the whole of the Papal dominions of Boulardrie,) that gentleman being hereby rewould be in open revolt, and most probably stored to the rank and precedence he before would expel him from Rome.

The Kingdom of Naples is also in a very Bras d'Or) disturbed state, and apparently on the eve of insurrection. A number of arrests have taken place.-Many of them among the more influential classes of Society. It is evident that nothing but an imposing military and police force preserves the present corrupt and tyrannical Government from falling into ruin.

Hostilities between Spain and Morrocco had ceased, after the capture of Tetuan by the Spaniards, and negociations for peace were going on.

We do not hear that anything of particular importance has been yet brought under discussion in the American Congress.
