EXPECTED ELECTION OF PRINCE

ALFRED TO THE THRONE OF

GREECE.

The rumoured candidature of Prince Alfred for the Greek throne gives rise to lively discussions in the columns of French and Belgian' newspapers. The Independance Belge asserts that the Fre ch Cabinet has demanded expladisturbed at the appearance of affairs. "Public opinion," it says, "cannnot reconcile the manœuvres of the English agents in favour of Prince Alfred, supported by a great display of from London, It understands still less how Greeks, who know by experience what English policy is in the Levant, can let themselves be carried away by the dream of an annexation of the Ionian Islands, when it is very evident that what England aims at is an indirect annexation of the continent to those islands." The Presse says :- " In Greece the manifestation in favor of Prince Alfred of England is becoming very serious. It is actively supported by the former insurgents of Nauplia, who have returned to Athens. With them are political personages whose influence is not without weight, such as Mayrocordato, Tricou: i.

Roufos, and Zaimis. The masses of the people are dazzled by the brilliant perspective which the support of England opens to them; first, a aggrandisement of territory, and the probable annexation of the Ionian Islands. The Debats that is and for the reception of Prince Alfred.

brilliant ovation. The elections to the National Assembly were to commence upon the 6th and terminate upon the 10th of December.

The Constitutionnel contains an article on the affairs of Greece, signed by its chief editor, M.

Limayrae. In this article M. Limayrae recalls that France has no motive for refusing, should England make the proposition to renew the engagement of the Three Powers with Greece.

The si nation of France," continues the writer, is free, decided, and comp etely disinterested.

The accession of Prince Alfred to the the throne of Greece would not wound us. Greece is free to choose her sovereign. Our relations with England are so cordial that we should feel no displeasure at the choice of Prince Alfred. In what way could we take umbrage at the position of a great power who would create for itself the obligation of maintaining a Prince on the Hellenicathrone? Greece exists with difficulty as it is, and the power which furnishes a dynasty will be configured by two perilous difficulties.

Eather it will have to restrain the aspirations of the new King within the prison walls of the present frontiers, and thus lose popularity and prestige, in it will encourage the ambition of the Greeks for territorial aggrandisement, and in that case open the door to the redoubtable Eastern question, which is pregnant with all kinds of complications. These serious embarrassments," concludes M. Limayrac, " would result

Alfred to the throne has caused excitement among the toreign Ministers at Athens. The English Minister has declared that he will in no way influence the election to the throne, and that Greece is perfectly free to make her own choice. It is considered certain that Prince Alfred will be elected.
