

The Venetians, it seems, take a most lively interest in all that concerns the kingdom of Italy. On receipt of the news that Russia had recognised the kingdom, there was a "demonstration" in Venice, but though no particulars are given, it is stated that the authorities were quite uneasy at the attitude of the people.

Garibaldi is making a progress through Sicily in which he is abusing Muratim, Bourbonism, the Pope, but above all the Emperor of the French, in the most plain-spoken language. He distinguishes between the latter and the French people, terms him an autocrat and tyrant, chief of the southern brigands, and thows in his teeth the blood of the 2nd of December. At Palermo the people received the Liberator with all kinds of honours, and enthusiastically cheered his denunciatory speeches; he is now proceeding to the other towns of the island, Cefalu, Catania, Messina, and intends to do with the hero. Rattazzi and the Government seem to be quite perplexed as to what to do with the hero. The French authorities in the island remonstrate, and the Government of course disclaims all responsibility, and threatens to remove the prefect of Palermo, a friend of Garibaldi's, from office. In Sicily Garibaldi is away from all his "Judicious" friends, and is surrounded by those of the "party of action." He exhorts the people to arm, to whet their daggers, and adverts to the Sicilian vespers. Here is an extract from a speech of the General's, taken from a Turin paper:—"The master of France, the traitor of the 2nd of December, under the pretence of screening from harm the person of a Pope, of protecting religion, Catholicism, occupies Rome. It is a false pretence—a lie. (Men-zogna! Menzogna!) He is actuated by covetousness, by a robber's lust, by an infamous thirst for empire; he is the first supporter of brigandage! the chief of southern assassins! People of the Vespers! people of 1860! Napoleon must depart from Rome. If it be necessary, we must resort to a new rehearsal of the Vespers. Let every citizen who cares for the emancipation of the country have a weapon in readiness (un ferro, a sword or dagger). Strong and compact, we shall be able to overcome the greatest Power."

DENMARK AND SWEDEN.

The meeting of the Kings of Denmark and Sweden seems to have passed off as the most enthusiastic Scandinavian could desire. The enthusiasm which effervesced when a thousand Swedish students visited Copenhagen a few weeks ago has fairly boiled over in the presence of the Swedish King, and the demonstrations of the Danes are described as indescribable. On Saturday the city of Copenhagen gave the two kings a banquet in the Exchange, and it was made the occasion for a grand demonstration in favour of what some people begin to talk of as "Scandinavian unity." The houses were splendidly decorated, the students and the various associations walked in procession through the city, and vast crowds of applauding citizens filled the streets. The two kings appeared hand in hand upon the castle balcony, and his we may fairly presume brought the indescribable enthusiasm to a climax. The causes of this wonderful drawing together of the two great divisions of the Scandinavian races are not hard to discover. The pressure which Germany has for some time exercised upon Denmark has forced upon the attention of the northern nations the propriety of strengthening each other by intimate alliance, and of meeting the strength of the Germany Federation by forming some kind of league among themselves.

RUSSIA.

The Paris correspondent of the Independance says:—"France and England are not alone in wishing to interpose their good offices between the belligerent parties in America. The Emperor of Russia has proposed to make, as a preliminary to any concerted action, a personal appeal to President Lincoln, in order to induce him to accept in principle the negotiation of a compromise between the North and South. If this negotiation were accepted it would have the effect of suspending any mediating action whatever and the intervention or mediation would only be undertaken in case the North should positively refuse to come to an understanding directly with the South."

CHINA.

A private telegram from Hongkong, dated 11th June, states that disastrous news had arrived from the north, that the allies had retired on Shanghai, and that imports were unobtainable.

ALL MAY LEARN TO WRITE. MR B. F. STAPLES has the pleasure to announce that his Writing Academy, No 57 GRANVILLE STREET (Christian Messenger office building), is open every day and evening for instruction in Writing. The method of instruction commends itself to every one, inasmuch as it simply seeks to improve upon the original hand-writing of the pupil, instead of attempting a new system of Penmanship. Mr. S. has had a long experience of over ten years in teaching and practicing the Chirographic Art, has taught in the best Educational Institutions in the New England States and British Province; and has certificates from leading Educationalists highly commendatory of his ability as a first class Penman and Teacher.
