

all these years of infant baptism in that county, that they were pretty well instructed in that respect.

Mr. S. says he has "no ambition to have the last word," nor does he desire "the credit of silencing" us, yet he does not awaken any desire on our part to extend the controversy.

Germain Street New Baptist Church, St. John, N. B.

We had prepared the following article for our last week's issue, but were obliged to lay it aside.

The handsome new edifice belonging to the first Baptist Church of St. John N. B., was opened for the worship of God on Lord's Day the 18th ult.

The St. John Morning Journal gives a good description of the building, and account of the opening service:

The entrance, which is from Germain street is by a flight of steps into a large handsome porch under the tower.

The mouldings are enriched by characteristic ornaments. The roof over the nave is of open timber, the framing of pine, stained and varnished.

The seats are constructed of pine, stained and varnished, with mahogany capping and elbows.

The windows are stained glass of Gothic design. They are very beautiful, but, either because they are not sufficiently high, or because there is too much staining, there is not sufficient light.

"The pulpit, if such it can be called—it is more in "the sacred desk style"—stands upon a raised platform of about three feet high, and is of easy approach by steps on either side.

We have not room to describe the vestry. It is well adapted to its purposes, having several committee and retiring rooms, and being supplied with a very convenient baptistry.

The Pastor, Rev. G. M. W. Carey, preached in the morning.

The dedicatory services were held in the afternoon. Rev. I. E. Bill discoursed from Haggai ii. 9.

"Beginning with the year 1805, when Edward Manning made his first visit to St. John, when there was not, so far as known, a single Baptist in the city.

It was not in material grandeur the glory of the old house consisted. It was a plain building, erected and sustained by a plain people, but it had a true spiritual glory nevertheless.

The names of the following ministers are given as in attendance and participating in the services.

NEWS SUMMARY.

The health of the Emperor of the French is said to have been for some time past in a precarious state. It is not without reason that the lovers of peace and order in the world, look with a good deal of anxiety as to the truth of such reports, and to the results that would in all probability follow his removal from among the Sovereigns of Europe.

Another Fenian outbreak is threatened in Ireland, and it is said that Stephens, their great Head Centre, has left the U. S. and has gone to France to take the management of an immediate insurrection.

There are also threats of renewed raids on the Canada frontier, but as there would appear to be ample preparations to give them a warm reception, it seems very doubtful whether they will again venture upon so perilous an attempt.
