If the N. B. Western Association had recommended the ordination of any one, I should have said that there was an interference which ought not to have been allowed. Baptist Associations do not possess the powers which are possessed and exercised by Presbyteries in regard to the ordination, settlement, and removal of ministers.

But there is a mistake in this matter. "J. C. Hurd" says that "a resolution was passed recommending his ordination." . The Minutes of the Association have just came to hand, but no such resolution is found there. Possibly there was some conversation on the subject among the ministers, and they recommended the action that was afterwards taken.

If I were a man of the world I should tell "J. C. Hurd" that he is a "silly" and "impertinent" fellow, who does not "know what he is talking about." (I use his own words). 'As it is, I commend to his attention the following passa ges from George Herbert's "Jacula Prudentum":

"Good words are worth much, and cost lit-Contra and All tle."

"He that measures not himself is measured."

" The first degree of folly is to hold one's self. wise, the second to profess it, the third to despise counsel."

"Every one is witty for his own purpose."

"Whose house is of glass must not throw stones at another.'

We may all profit by giving heed to "the words of the wise."

PUSEVITES IN ITALY .- Father Gavaggi has announceed, that upon the request of M. De Sanctis he will return to Naples to fight the English Pusevites, whom he regards as dangerous, in a religious point of view, as the Ultramontane Catholics. It is certain that the Pusevites can give the Italians a poor idea of Protestantism and their bastard Catholicism is not calculated to attract the sympathy of the faithful of the Romish Church.

A NOBLE OFFER ACCEPTED .- On Wednes day evening, the 2d inst., in a full meeting o the Baptist church at Yonkers, N. Y., Messra. John B. Trevor and James B. Colgate, offered to build a new church edifice, 125 feet by 65. with a spire 170 feet high ; all of Belleville freestone, and to give the society a deed of the whole property, corting not less than $175,000, on the following conditions: That the name of the church should be changed to the Warburton avenue Baptist church ; that the building should through all time be used for worship by a regular Baptist church ; that it should never be encumbered by debt, or used for other than religious purposes; and that the church should raise $10,-000 to furnish the house. The church, " profoundly impressed with the generous and noble work their brethren proposed to do, and the reasonableness of the conditions," voted to accept the gift.

The King, after congratulat-ing the members generally on seeing them fever, Ella, third daughter of Daniel Huntly, aged again assembled, addressed a cordial welcome 18 years. to the deputies from those provinces which were now represented for the first time in that body. The attention of the members was then called to the work of legislation before them, and the various bills which would be submitted to their consideration were referred to in detail. Referring to foreign affairs, the King declared that the relations of the Confederation with the other nations of Europe were entirely satisfactory, for Powers all appreciated and respected the pacific aims of Prussia. In regard to policy of German unity, he said that a conflict, with the States of South Germany now allied with Prussia was no longer to be feared; and in settling the question of the future relations of the South German States with the Confederacy, the Prussian Government would studiously endeavour to respect the views of their Catholic subjects.

SUDDEN DEATH OF MR. T. J. CAMPBELL -A letter of the 3rd of September, from Mrs. E. M. Cunnabell, Wanganui, New Zealand, has just come to hand, informing us of the safe return of herself and husband from her visit to her friends in these Provinces, to her adopted home in that country. Their friends will be glad to hear that they had a tolerably pleasant passage; and found the members of their family and their relatives all in good health. She mentions the death of her brother-in-law, Mr. T. J. Campbell, under the following painful circumstances: She says he went a few steps from his house to assist his son in ploughing with a horse. The animal took fright, reared, struck Mr. C. and knocked him down. Before he could rise, the plough came in contact with his head and mangled it fearfully. The injuries inflicted were so serious, that after four days of extreme suffering he died. This gentleman went out in the " Australian Brig," in company with the Cunnatells and others, in the summer of 1852. The Wanganui Chronicle, enclosed to our address, contains the following tribute to his memory. We copy it that his friends in this country may see it. It reads thus :---

The public will be prepared, from previous notices, for the announcement of Mr. Campbell's death, which took place at his residence at Brunswick Station, on Thursday last, Regret for the loss of this worthy man is naturally heightened by the melancholy accident which has so suddenly and unexpectedly taken him from amongst us. On Monday morning he was alive and well; on ' Thursday morning, after sore suffering, he was gone, leaving a sorrowing family and a large circle of friends to mourn his death. There is a mystery in such dispensations of Province, which reason fails to account for, and which can only be borne calmly through the influence of a hope to which our weak philosophy is unable to rise.

Mr. Campbell came to this district in the spring of 1853, where he shortly atterwards settled down and made his home at Brunswick station, so named in affectionate remembrance of his native land, where he had left many attached friends. With the exception of a single trip to Wellington, we believe he was never even out of the locality since his arrival. Mr. Campbell was a model settler, delighting to be at his own place and among his own people. Industrious, sober, painstaking, and diligent in business, yet withal most neighbourly and hospitable, his tarm has gradually become a picture of thrift and good management. He himself was a true son of the soil, quite unobtrusive in his demeanor, but with a simplicity and downrightness of charactes and a warmth of heart which were very noticeable. Mr. Campbell was born on the 13th of October, 1811, and was consequently in the fifty sixth year of his age. Mr. Tamberlain Joseph Campbell was one of a party of New Brunswick colonists who formed a company, bought and fitted out a vessel to seek out other shores for further colonization. In company with others (among the number still amongst us, Mr. Cunnabell and Mr. Richards) he set sail in the beginning of the year 1852 and arrived at Melbourne in October of that year, but three months after he again set sail in the barque Belle Creole, and arrived at Wellington. There he purchased, in company with one of the gentlemen named, New Zealand Company's Scrip, and thus became one of our settlers .- Visitor.

Earl Russell has not, after all abdicated his functions as Leader of the Opposition, the noble lord having issued invitations for a parliamentary dinner to his principal supporters in the Upper House. Mr. Gladstone will, we suppose, occupy his old position as second in command, and it is confidently declared that he is willing to undertake the task of Irish Church reform.

In Edinburgh, Mr. Lowe made a speech, in which he urged, with almost passionate energy, the necessity of remodelling the educational machinery of the country. He did not think the Government had an adequate sense of the vast duties which the changes of the year had thrown upon them. It was the duty of "every man who loves his country, whatever his polities may be, to turn the whole power of his influence on this question of education, and to been suppressed. turn it on this single point, of seeing that there shall be provided, in the shortest possible space being considered doubtful whether any of the of time, the means of education in the elements Courts have jurisdiction in his case. of useful knowledge for every one of her Majesty's subjects in these islands, if he choose to avail himself of it."
