(3))) Singing.—A volume of good sense is Esq., $5. A. E. Durland, $4. Rev. S. March. exchange: -

" Good congregational singing, in all ordinary cases, can be had only by having a good choir, and an earnest desire on the part of the people to do their share. An organ is not indispensable, although it is a most important and incalculable advantage. But a good organist, a good choir, and a willing people cannot help making good singing."

Free-will Baptists.

A correspondent of the Watchman & Reflector writing from New Hampshire, says, respecting this body :

" They number in this State 138 churches and 8,769 members. This denomination originated in New Hampsire, and here is its headquarters. When our own churches were becoming strong, our Congregationalist brethren had much to say of heaven. about 'close communion;' for no other reason that I could ever see except that the Baplists were the only denomination who were wilting, in that day, to commune with all whom they baptized. But the cry of " mad dog" did not help those who raised it. It was, however, a great advantage to the Freewill Baptist churches that were just then rising into notice. But their experience has been that, while for a time it helped the numbers, it hurt the cause. Inviting all who love Christ-thus leaving each to judge himself of his own spiritual state, they were plagued with those religious nondescripts that grow up in every community, who can find no minister holy enough to baptize them, or church good enough for them to join. Heretics who would not be allowed to join any christian church, expelled members who-in their own judgment -had been dealt so severely with in other churches, heiled the open communion doctrine as a peculiarly liberal feature. But the good and holy men who form the bulk of this denomination could upt endure this thing. And the sounder ministers and brethren do not hesitate to-day to say that, whatever the invitation they give, a notoriously immoral or heretical person persisting in coming to the table would be re- months. quested to stay away. One step more—that the church is judge not only of the character, but borne with patience to the divine will, Harriet A., of the ordinance as well-and they occupy our ground of the communion as a church ordinance. As to the doctrine of election, it is observed and grand son of the late James Starratt, aged 7 that some of our brethren in that denomination are careful to call themselves Free Baptists, instead of Freewill Baptists. In all the larger statistics these churches are numbered with ours as a part of the great Baptist family. And, so reckoned, our Baptist strength in the State is far from being as inferior as some would repre-
