ALEXANDRA, P. E. I.—Extract of a letter from Rev. E. N. Archibald. "Here I wish I had something cheering worthy a place in your columns. I am toiling on and praying and looking for revival influences.

I have just returned from a very pleasant mission of 4 or 5 days to Grand River. It is a hopeful field for the gospel reaper. Congregations were large and very attentive. We felt we were sowing on fruitful soil, and could not but feel that days of holy reviving were near. This is one of the spots on this Island where the name of Rev. B. Scott is held in precious remembrance. A handsome house of worship planned by him is now finished outside. To Deacon Frost's self-denying efforts both in superintending the matter and giving and collecting funds, the present state of the house to a good degree is justly attributed. It is the prayer of many that God would send them a pastor and raise up a living church, a temple for the Holy Spirit.

Your bro. in Christ, E. N. ARCHIBALD."

WINDSOR.—It affords us pleasure to learn that the church in this place is enjoying a state of religious revival. A brief note just received says: "As a church we are much encouraged. All our meetings are crowded and a deep religious interest prevails. On the first Lord's day of October, the Pastor Rev. D. M. Welton baptized two, and on the first Lord's day of this month, four; three of them were heads of families, and next Lord's day, it is expected that others will be baptized.

FELLOWS' COMPOUND SYRUP.

A peculiar characteristic of Fellows' Compound Syrup is its power of decomposing the food in the stomach, rendering digestion and assimilation more perfect. This partly accounts for the rapidity with which patients take flesh on after using the article.

Diseases such as Consumption, Bronchitis, Debility from Typhoid and other Low Fevers, from excessive grief, study or close confinement, and prostration of the vital powers yield to Fellows' Compound Syrup sooner than any remedy ever before discovered.

The muscles of the stomach are strengthened, digestion complete, the absorbent vessels take up nutrition, the blood becomes vitalized and pure, the nervous system vigorous; and the thin, pale, or sallow complexioned become plump and hearty, and regain the ruddy tint of health.

PROFESSOR LINTON'S CONCERT.

PROFESSOR LINTON has just completed his labours in the "service of song" in connection with his first visit to our city. On Monday evening last, he gave a public Concert in our Market Hall, as announced, for the purpose of bringing out the results of his efforts. The evening was fine, and a large and appreciative audience assembled on the occasion. The performance consisted of a series of simple pieces of music, which were simply, naturally, and effectively rendered. Nothing elaborate or ambitious could have been expected; nor was it attempted. The object of the Concert was, to illustrate the Professor's aims as a teacher of music. These aims were, as himself explained in a few fitting and modest words, uttered as the Concert was about to close, first, to inculcate sound moral sentiment, and next, to develop singing talent. It was evident to all, from the exercises of Monday evening, that, in his labours among ourselves he had succeeded well in these aims. Such slight failures as occurred did not detract from the general effect of the Concert; and some of them were owing to the miserable structure of the hall, which seems made to absorb sound rather than to transmit it. If we were to specify any of the pieces as having been given better than others, we might speak of "The Blind Girl," by Miss L. Tanton; of "The Better Land," by the Juvenile Class, and a Quartette; of the "Night-Song," by the Adult Class, and of "My Mother's Home," by the Professor. When the "parting hour" came, all regretted its arrival, and bade farewell to the Professor and his lady, of like tastes and pursuits with himself, with a hope that some day they might meet again, and enjoy hereafter a renewal of the pleasures which they had then realized.

It ought not to be forgotten that, during his late visit, the Professor had kindly given a course of gratuitous lessons to the Sunday School pupils in the City; and it was a part of his reward that, on Monday evening, these pupils contributed so largely to the interest of the occasion. J. D.

PROF. LINTON'S NEW MUSIC BOOKS.—We wish to call the attention of our numerous readers, and especially those who are Singing Teachers, and Superintendents of Sabbath Schools to the musical advertisement in this paper.

Prof. Linton is doing the country a good service by furnishing suitable books for Sabbath Schools, Choirs, and Singing Classes, at a much less price than the people have been paying for similar works. They are published in the provinces, and are admitted by competent judges, to be better adapted to this market, than many of the imported works.

"The Vocalist," is an octavo collection of 313 Tunes, Anthems and Chants. In the first part of the work is a large amount of information on different subjects relating to music and poetry.

"The Union Chimes," is the title of a new Hymn and Tune book, of 150 pages. Its contents are the same as are in the Provincial Melodist.

"Linton's Inductive Method," is the latest work of the author. It is devoted entirely to practical teaching, and contains a complete course of lessons in Vocal Music, with black-board exercises, and special instructions to the teacher. It is intended for the exclusive use of Singing Teachers, and those who wish to give lessons in Vocal Music. Send for a specimen copy of each.—See Advertisement.

Our readers have observed that we rarely praise patent medicines, and that we advertise only the very best of them. But now the remarkable recovery of Mrs. Rice, of Canastota, from her distressing and almost helpless scrofulous disease, which is known throughout the community, and unquestionably the effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, lead us to publish without reserve the remarkable efficacy of this medicine. We do this in the interest of the afflicted, Any remedy which can so effectually "raise one from the dead," should be universally known; and we wish it may be universally as successful as it has been in the case of Mrs. Rice.—[Daily Journal, Syracuse.
