

Tatnell. I feel it my duty to specify some of its important errors. Mr. Hunt did not say in reply to Mr. Rand's question about the examination papers...

Mr. Rand did not request to search Mr. Hunt's house. He asked to inspect the papers which Mr. Hunt admitted to be in his house...

The statement as to what was said of the affidavit of Mr. Torrie is incorrect. Mr. Rand asked Mr. Hunt after Torrie left, if he had procured a statement from Mr. Torrie?

The statement that Mr. Hunt said to Mr. Rand, "Did you not know that the examination papers were removed from this office and disposed of before my appointment..."

I endorse every word of Mr. A's statement, as I did by implication, those of his former one. I need not say that I had already solemnly denied in your columns...

The affidavit of Mr. Palmer, now messenger to Hon. Mr. Vail's office, requires a few words. I saw Mr. Palmer a week ago, and told him what Mr. Hunt and Mr. Torrie had said...

Since Mr. Hunt has pressed this matter so far, I shall take the liberty of stating to the public what I hoped I might be justified in withholding. On the appearance of Mr. Torrie's affidavit in the columns of the Messenger...

Mr. Caleb Gates & Co., Dear Sirs.—I have to inform you for the Public that the bilious complaint which I have been laboring under for years back, of which I had a severe attack last July, has left me, entirely through the use of your medicines...

Mr. Caleb Gates, Dear Sir,—I was troubled with the Jaundice, loss of appetite, and a severe attack of the Cholera, and could get nothing to help me until I procured a bottle of your syrup...

Mr. Caleb Gates, Dear Sir,—I was troubled with the Jaundice, loss of appetite, and a severe attack of the Cholera, and could get nothing to help me until I procured a bottle of your syrup...

I am in a position to places such facts before you as I believe cannot fail to convince you that you spoke on incorrect information...

To day, I received word in reply to my enquiry, that the Hon. Mr. Vail had no answer to give me.

I think I have proved beyond dispute that all the examination papers were left on file by me, and that they were in the department at the time of Mr. Hunt's induction into office.

Faithfully yours, T. H. RAND.

Registration of Letters, containing Money, Cheques, or Articles of Value.

Notice to the Public.

The Post Office Department having gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to ensure, as far as possible, the safe transmission of money by Mail, it is much to be regretted that the public will still continue to send through the Post Office letters containing money, cheques, or valuable papers without availing themselves of the money order system, or having their letters registered, the charge for which is now only two cents. The safest mode of remitting is by money orders, but in places where there are no money order offices, the Registration system should be taken advantage of.

When an unregistered letter, stated to contain money, goes astray, suspicion rests not only upon the Post Office Employees by whom the letter has been handled, but upon the sender, and receiver also, for it has been known that parties owing money, when pressed for payment in the hope of either evading the debt altogether, or gaining more time in which to pay it, have stated that their remittance had been duly forwarded through the Post Office, when on investigation it was found that no remittance had ever been made at all.

A careless or dishonest man may receive an unregistered letter containing money, and forget, or intentionally omit to acknowledge its contents; in either case, however, the Post Office is blamed, when, in reality, in many instances, no blame should have been attached to it.

In connection with the foregoing remarks, I annex an extract from a report of the Post Master General at Canada:

"If the consequence of this procedure were limited to the mere risk of the loss of the money so sent, the senders of money in unregistered letters might reasonably urge that if they chose to encounter the risk, they should be free to do so; but higher considerations are involved in the question, and the chance of loss to the careless remitter is really but the smallest part of the evil associated with the practice.

"The point of most importance to this country is the cruel temptation which the enclosure of money in unregistered letters throws in the way of the numerous body of persons employed in this branch of the public service.

"Against actual dishonesty on the part of Post Office employees, a registered letter is incomparably more secure than an unregistered one, for an unregistered letter leaves no trace behind it, while passing in the great stream of ordinary correspondence, though its presence as a money letter, and the nature of its contents are, to any person accustomed to handle letters, as manifest as though the letter had been singled out and marked by the registered stamp.

"Moreover, the safety of an unregistered letter is dependent on the integrity of a Post Office clerk, during the whole time it remains in his custody, frequently for hours and even days, whilst a registered letter will, almost invariably have to be acknowledged at the moment of its passing into an officer's hands, and cannot therefore be suppressed without leaving him individually accountable for its disposal.

These remarks are so true and forcible, that I would earnestly recommend their attentive perusal, especially by those who are in the habit of sending money, &c., by mail, in unregistered letters; and I would further suggest, that letters containing money should invariably, be sealed with letter sealing wax. A. WOODGATE, Post Office Inspector's Office, Halifax, May 13, 1871.
