On the 5th inst., Thomas McLearn, in the 73rd year of his age. Brother McLearn had been deacon of the North Baptist Church from its commencement, and was highly esteemed by all its members, and by the community generally. He was a good man and cared for the poor. Although he has been for some time past incapacitated by reason of age and infirmity from active labor yet his love for the church and the House of Worship induced him to be present on all occasions, till within

At Truro, on the 9th inst., in the 92nd year of his age, David B. Lynds, Esq, M. D. Thus has passed away the last of the male members of a family intimately connected with the early history of the Baptists in Colchester. Before there was any place in which they could conduct the public service of God, the father of the deceased, had opened his own Louse both for worship and for a home for the ministers of the gospel. The activity of the subject of this notice in forwarding the interests of the church (Onslow) of which he was a member securing, with these, a place for public worship in the village in which he resided, is well known by his brethren in both churches while his own house was a happy home for the ministers, who not only shared the hospitality of his home but often of his purse as well. Our benevolent objects participated in his munificence, and he was a firm friend of our Educational Institutions for whose interests, he has treque tily contributed material aid. Though conscientiously attached to his own denomination he held in high esteem christians of any name and highly prized the visits of other christian ministers. From all public life he had for some time retired and the time came for him to depart so the master sent for him atter " He was full of days," the token to pass over the river was given, " for the strong men bowed themselves, and the golden bowl was broken," but he passed into his rest.

Registration of Letters, containing Money, Cheques, or Articles of Value.

Notice to the Public.

The Post Office Department having gone to a great deal of trouble and expense to ensure, as far as possible, the safe transmission of money by Mail, it is much to be regretted that the public will still continue to send through the Post Office letters containing money, cheques, or valuable papers without availing themselves of the money order system, or having their letters registered, thec harge for which is now only two cents. The safest mode of remitting is by money orders, but in places where there are no money order offices, the Registration system should be taken advant-

When an unregistered letter, stated to con tain miney, goes astray, suspicion rests not only upon the Post Office Employees by whom the letter has been handled, but upon the sender, and receiver also, for it has been known that parties owing money, when pressed for payment in the hope of either evading the debt altogether, or gaining more time in which to pay it, have stated that their remittance had been duly forwarded through the Post Office, when on investigation it was found that no remittance hed ever been made at ali. A careless or dishonest man may receive an unregistered letter containing money, and forget, or intentionally onit to acknowledge its contents; in either case, however, the Post Office is blamed, when, in reality, in many instances, no blame should have been attached

In connection with the foregoing remarks, I annex an extract from a report of the Post

Master General at Canada: "If the consequen e of this procedure were imited to the mere risk of the loss of the money so sent, the senders of money in un registered letters might reasonably urge that if they chose to encounter the risk, they should be free to d so; but higher considerations are involved in the question, and the charce of loss to the careless remitter is really but the smallest part of the evil associated with the practice.

"The point of most importance to this country is the cruel temptation which the enclosure of money in unregistered letters throws in the way of the numerous body of persons employed in this branch of the public service. "Against actual dishonesty on the part of Post Olice employees, a regis ered letter is incomparably more secure than an unregistered one, fo an unregistered letter leaves no trace behind it whilst passing in the great stream of ordinary correspondence, though its presence as a money letter, and the nature of its contents are, to any person accustomed to handle letters, as manifest as though the letter had been singled out and marked by the registered stamp. "Moreover, the safety of an unregistered letter is dependent on the integrity of a Post Office clerk, during the whole time it remains in his custody, irequently for hours and even days, whilst a registed letter will, almost invariably have to be acknowledged at the moment of its passing into an officer's hands. and cannot therefore be suppressed without leaving him individually accountable for its disposal." These remarks are so true and forcible, that I would earnestly recommend their attentive. perusal, especially by those who are in the habit of sending money, &c , by mail, in emregistered letters; and I would further sugges. that letters containing money should invariably, be sealed with letter sealing was.
