Hymn and Tune edition, square tion, 16mo, sheep, $1 25.

IF First supply to Churches for introduction furnished at $1 60 and $1 00. If The same in extra styles of binding, with prices to correspond. This work is intended specially, as its title indicates, for Public Worship in the House or THE LORD, not for Sabbath Schools, or for the ordinary purposes of Conference Meeting.

it contains 1069 Hymns and 38 Doxologies, in every variety of metre with the author's named attached to each (so tar as known) and the date of its first publication. Also a choice selection of Scripture and chants for chanting The MUSIC for CONGREGATIONAL SING. ing is admirably adapted to the object.

The numbering of the Hymns of the different editions correspond, a ver, important consideration. There are SIX INDEXES, fuil, clear, and well arranged

The price, considering the character of the work, and its superior mechanical execution is lower than any other in the market

The abject has been to provide an ample collection of the choicest HYMNs in the language, united to the very best music extant for Con-GREGATIONAL SINGING, and, in order to avoid a thick, heavy cumberous volume, the Publishers have aimed to obtain clear distinct type, a neat open attractive page, the wnole compact, light as possible, and every way convenient for use and it will be seen that these several all important points have been fully secured in "THE SERVICE OF SONG"

The work is receiving the warmest and most unquelified commendation of Pastors, churches and all who take suitable pains to examine (with candid, usprejudiced minds) and thereby learn its superior merits, and many attractive peculiarities. A large number of letters and reviews, (unsolicited) from leading ministers and others, strongly commending the work have been re-

Combination of Reeds and Pipes.

THE MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN CO., have the satisfaction of announcing THE EUCCESSFUL COM-BINATION OF REEDS AND PIPES, so long attempted by organmakers in vain, but which is now effected by the inventions of MR. CARL FOGEL. BERG, a Swedish organ builder, now resident in the United States.

This invention they offer in the MASON & HAMLIN REED AND PIPE CABINET ORGAN

The introduction of pipes in the Cabinet Organ, by which are added to the rich, vivacious tones of reeds the more liquid and ture, though passionless, tones of the pipe, has long been deemed an object so important that ex periments have been unceasing for its attainment. There are few Organ-makers who have not given much time and attention to the matter, though heretofore without success. It is true that certain attachments have been presented as "pipes and reeds," but these have in no case been real pipes, but only tubes of tin or other material, no capable of producing any tones themselves, but only supposed to modify somewhat the tones of the reeds.

The difficulty, heretofore found insurmountable, arises from the fact that the pitch of pipes and reeds is differently affected by changes of temperature. Tipes are quite sensitive to such changes, and reeds much less so; while the change is in different directions. As the a mosphere becomes warmer the pitch or pipes becomes sensibly higher, while that of reeds, though affected very little, is yet a trifle lower. Thus, though pipes and reeds be funed exactly together, a few hours may produce sufficient change in the temperature to throw them so much apart that they cannot be used together. It is evident that until this difficult ty was overcome it was impracticable to combine reeds and pipes. Mr. Fogetberg's invention includes the modiffication of the form of the pipe, and the employment of a valve or cover extending over all the pipes and regulating one of the openings to each, so that by a single movement the pitch of all can be raised or lowered sufficiently to compensate for atmospheric change. When a change of temperat re has thrown the pipes out of tune with the reeds, the simple turning of a screw is sufficient to raise or lower the pitch of the pipes to the exact pitch of the reeds,

THE ONLY TRUE LIKENEESS

Taken from one cut in an Emerald by command of Tiberius Cæsar and which was given from the Treasury of Constantinople, by the Emperor of the Turks, to Pope Innocent VIII, for the Redemption of his Brother, then a Captive to the Christians.

The following Extract. in proof of the Authenticity of the above Portrait is translated from the Latin contemporary Historians of the

" News to the Senate of Rome concerning JESUS CHRIST in the days of Tiberius Cæsar the Emperor, as the govenors of sundry provinces under the Senate and people of Rome used to advertise the Senate of such news as chanced in diverse countries

"Publius Lentulus, being at that time president in Judea, wrote an epistle to the Senate

" There appeared in these our days a man of great vi tue named JESUS CHRIST, who is yet alive amongst us, and of the Gentiles is accepted for a Prophet of Tru h, but hi own disciples called bim the son of God. He raiseth the dead and cureth all manner of diseases. A man of stature somewhat tall and comely, with a very reverend countenance, such as the beholders may both love and fear; his hair of the colour of phi bert full ripe, and plain almost down to his ears: but from the ears downward somewhat carled, and more orient of colour, waving on his shoulders. In the midstof his head goeth a seam, or partition of his hair, after the manner of the Augurites; his forehead, very plain and smooth; his face, without spot or wrinkle, beautified with a come ly red : his nose and mouth so formed as noth. ing can be reprehended; his beard somewhat thick agreeable in colour to the hair of his head, not of any great length, in the midst of an inu ceut and mature look; his eyes grey, clear and quick. In reproving, he is terrible: in admonishing, courteous and fair spoken: p'easent in speach, mixed with gravity. It cannot be remembered that any have seen him From the great advantages we possess for laugh, but many have seen him weep. In proportion of body, well-shaped and straight; his hands and arms right, and delectable to behold; in speaking, very temperate, modest and wise-A man for singular beauty surpassing the chil.
