N. S. CENTRAL BAPTIST SAB-BATH SCHOOL CONVENTION.

Dear Brother Selden,-

The Sabbath School Convention came off delightfully yesterday in Falmouth. The reading of the letters from the schools in the forenoon, was listened to with much attention. The Essay in the afternoon by Rev. D. M. Welton on "The relations of the Church to the Sabbath School," elicited some lively questioning, and interesting remarks. The essayist was requested to publish his lecture in the Christian Messenger, and prepare an abstract for the Minutes. The sermon preached in the evening by Rev. S. B. Kempton, in the absence of Rev. J. E. Goucher, on Deut. xi. 18-20 presented in concise terms, the Word of God as the instrument, and that word hidden in the heart as the qualification for successful teaching. This too, it is hoped will be given to the public. This interesting discourse was followed by a large number of speeches of seven minutes each, an abstract of which will be published in the reports.

The meeting of the Convention was rendered peculiarly delightful, also from the warm-hearted cordiality of the people of Falmouth.

The public may expect a rich treat next year in the new meeting house in Canard, when in addition to the usual exercises there will be Exhibitions of a Model School and model teaching.

Yours truly, D. FREEMAN. Falmouth, Sept. 13, 1873.

Halifax, N. S., September 18, 1872.

We have no desire to place undue restraints on discussion, but would rather invite public attention to, and full examination of, all matters affecting the well-being of our associated churches and their efforts to promote the spread of the gospel at: home and abroad. It may not be necessary for us to say that we do not endorse all that our correspondents affirm, or the opinions they express from time to time, notwithstanding that we do not feel called upon to offer any disclaimer in connection with such expressions of sentiment.

Our correspondent "Merle," on another page, opens up a wide field of remark by his suggestion of uniting the Maritime Provinces in Home Mission work. His sweeping assertion " that out of our seven or eight Home Mission organizations in the three Halifax, has been dismissed from office, Provinces, we have not one that is we understand, without any reason

It is not worth while to try and deis being done by those of Nova Scotia; The second is, What are we willing | and whilst the amount of money raised ates, is, as we believe, worthy of all standard of efficiency would afford scope for difference of opinion on the subject, and on what is being effected by the combination of judicious brethren chosen to attend to these matters.

Passing over the opinion of our friend as to past and present mission work and appointments in these provinces, we might enquire what are the limits which an organization for most effectively carrying on Home Mission work should have? On this subject there is room for great difference of opinion arising from various circumstances. A Society, like a church, must have some sort of territorial limits within which it may be convenient for it to operate.

We do not at present perceive that a combination such as that spoken of by our brother would be the antidote for any of the deficiencies complained of. day last. It appears that he was for-Each and all the Associations and merly a drummer boy in Garibaldi's Churches would have to give their assent to such a movement before it would be complete.

remark that " at present there seems little prospect of any real union in | missionary in Rome. His friends have Home Missionary work in Nova since disowned him, but he continues Scotia." When the needed legal preliminaries are alluded to we see no reason why there should not be a real substantial union formed of all the true friends of Baptist Mission work in Nova Scotia.

Under existing circumstances we think the territorial limits of each province would be convenient and effective for the boundaries of our sevral Missionary organizations. The limits we have hitherto had in Nova Scotia have doubtless been suitable and convenient-having the two Boards; but now that greater facilities of communication are opening up, it will be well to have an extension, taking in the whole province.

We need not, perhaps, occupy more space at present on this matter. Our brethren must not lose sight of the need there is for carrying on the work, whilst they are thinking of the best mode of promoting co-operation of brethren in it in the future.

McAlpine's Halifax Directory 1872-73 is now ready. In addition to its usual amount of information, of so much value to business men, and its Street Directory, Business Directory for Halifax and Dartmouth &c. &c., bas a fine map of Halifax about 3 by 2 feet compiled and drawn by E. H Keating, Esq., Civil Engineer expressly for this Directory. This map has lines indicating the distances from the Post office which will greatly enhance its value to everybody. The map is worth the whole price of the Directory and will we doubt not find its way to every office of importance in the city.

> We perceive by United States papers that visitors to Halifax do not forget on their return home to speak of the treatment they receive in their visits to these eastern parts of the American Continent. They appreciate the kind attention shewn them by citizens and friends with whom they meet, and go home to tell the thousands who read their papers, the pleasure and benefit they have received by their visits. After the Intercolonial is finished and it becomes possible to reach Halifax in a Pulman Palace Car we shall surely have visitors to Halifax and the other historical places of our Province by hundreds and perhaps by thousands. Let us prepare to receive them.

"THE DAYS OF JEZEBEL," an historical drama, by Peter Bayne. But few writers could take a portion of Scripture history, and present it in a readable drama without doing violence to literary good taste, or to enlightened christian sentiment. Peter Bayne has hitherto been known to fame principally for his vigorous Letters and Essays on the christian life, biography and criticism. He has not before made an appearance as a dramatist. This book however shows that his poetical powers are of a high order, and will command the attention of the literary world as well as a large portion of bible | From a young lady of Granville readers.

There has been much ignorance of the details of old Testament history, compared with what is commonly known of the New. This publication will doubtless lead many to search the Divine Word for the purpose of learning what are the facts on which such graphic and sublime pictures are drawn. The author does not adhere closely to the letter of the record but introduces some persons such as might well find a place in relation to the events so graphically described. Ahab is certainly a most West Clyde River Church. . . despicable coward, but his heathen wife Jezebel is presented as an accomplished specimen of what the rites of heathen worship will effect in woman.

The first Matriculation Prize was awarded to Mr. Frederic D. Crawley, the second to Mr. J. Mc-Donald, both of Wolfville.

In consequence of the continued illness of Rev. Dr. Warren, of Boston, who has for many years filled the office of Corresponding Secretary of the American Baptist Missionary Union, of the Yarmouth Temple Church, for "the the Rev. G. W. Gardner, D. D., of Charlestown, Mass., has been elected to fill that office. The Boston Baptist Ministers' Conference at their last meeting passed a resolution heartily approving of the appointment. Dr. Gardner has had a large measure of prosperity during the 11 years of his pastorate at Charlestown, having baptized 198 on profession of faith, and received by letter and otherwise 194, making a total of additions to the church in the 11 years of 392.

We feel a measure of sadness at the thought of not meeting again with Dr. Warren as Secretary of the Union. His genial nature and excellent spirit was such that to know him was to love him. It is delightful to think that such men are the product of Christian faith and love, and that gospel principles in their results produce what is so lovely and loveable, even on earth. How delightful to think of heaven where all will be even more lovely.

We are glad to hear that Rev. I. E. Bill is actively engaged in his canvass of Annapolis County on behalf of the Endowment Fund of Acadia College. We hope to hear shortly of additions to the number of $100 subscribers. Our brother is hopeful. He says:

Many refusals of course; but the seed must be sown. The reaping day will come. Noble responses now and then cheer us on. A hundred thousand dollars endowment for Acadia is the standard. We must come Crown Lands A. M. Comeau Esq. to it. One thousand persons giving $100 each give us the amount. Where is the Baptist that has the means to give, that will refuse to be one of the glorious thousand? "The Baptists of Annapolis Co. in this grand movement will do their duty."

Bro. Kempton too is at work in Queens, and Bro. Welton in Hants. We trust that each may find a large John Porteous senr. blessing in his work.
