

For the Christian Messenger. MR. PALTISH GOODWIN.

Died at Pubnico, on the 10th inst., aged 75 years. About 40 years ago he made a profession of faith in Christ, and was subsequently baptized by Rev. C. Knowles. When the Baptist Church was organized at Pubnico he united with it, and continued to be a consistent member thereof until death. Bro. Goodwin was highly esteemed in the community, and by all acquainted with him. In public and in private he adorned the doctrine of the Lord Jesus Christ, by a well-ordered life, and a godly walk and conversation. He was always ready to give a reason of the hope that was in him with meekness and fear. During the past six months he suffered much bodily distress, in which he was sustained by divine grace. He was enabled to look forward with joyful anticipation to that rest which remains for the people of God. In him the little church has lost a pillar, and a large number of children and grandchildren, have lost a patriarchal counsellor and affectionate parent. A funeral discourse, having reference to his death was preached by the writer on the 16th inst., from 2 Cor. v. 1.—Com. by Rev. W. H. R.

For the Christian Messenger. MENTAL CULTURE.

Dear Sir,— As a friend of University Education, I read with much interest, some two years ago, several articles on the above subject, published in your paper from the pen of a writer over the nom de plume of "Modern Culture." The articles referred to were levelled against the Ancient Classics—Latin and Greek, and it was argued that they were no longer entitled to occupy a place in the College Curriculum.

Although not quite convinced of the soundness of the conclusions drawn by the writer of those articles, I gave him credit for fairness and honesty, in stating his facts and arguments. I was accordingly astounded on learning from the same writer in the last issue of your paper that Prof. DeMill, of Dalhousie College, in his address, on the occasion of the opening of that Institution a few days since, had subscribed to the views of your correspondent—that the Professor was not prepared to sweep Greek from the Curriculum, and soon would be ready to do the same for Latin. After giving what purports to be a quotation from the Professor's address in the communication referred to, "Modern Culture" remarks: "This is plain talk from a high authority. At least it proves that my ideas are not to be rejected for want of fair and respectable backing." "Modern Culture" backed by Prof. DeMill!! Had my ears deceived me? I had long known the Professor as an earnest and powerful advocate for the retention of the Classics in our Colleges; his address referred to so far as it touched the subject, had been understood to be an able and eloquent plea for the Classics; but perhaps I had been mistaken. I may still be benighted, but I have read and re-read the address as published in the "Dalhousie College Gazette," and an excellent address it is, and I fail to see the "backing." What the Professor did say is "significant," but hardly in the way represented by "Modern Culture," I think. In advocating University Education and answering possible objections. He says:

"The strongest objections made to the present course of College study are of course levelled against Greek and Latin. Now, as to Greek, much might be said, but it is not possible in the small time at my disposal. Personally I believe in Greek. I am unfortunately Greek seems to be dying out of our Universities. I am afraid that it will cease to be obligatory—that it will ultimately be studied, only as a specialty, like Hebrew or Sanscrit. About Latin however, the case is altogether different. From many points of view it seems evident that Latin must remain."

After arguing the matter at some length the Professor goes on to say:

"Twenty or thirty arguments in favor of Latin might be given, but one more will suffice. For school drill, nothing is equal to it, except Greek."

These are what "Modern Culture" calls 'confirmations of his idea'!

I can only say that if all the "confirmations" discovered by "Modern Culture," in the course of his reading, are equally "significant and pertinent," while they may minister to the comfort of the discoverer, they will scarcely disturb seriously his opponents, and I may still remain an advocate of the

There have been demonstrations against Minister Sickles. A mob collected in front of the American Legation, but were promptly dispersed by the Government, and there is no doubt here in official circles but that the authorities at Madrid are fully capable of preventing any outbreak.

Reports were raised that an attempt was made to assassinate Minister Sickles. It is said that the Government at Washington has official despatches confirming the cable report that Castelar's Cabinet had determined to give the United States and England honorable satisfaction. It is known here that Castelar is as much incensed as the most earnest friend of humanity can be, at the murders committed in the name of order.

A REMARKABLE CHANGE.—The steamer Atlas, which left Boston on Tuesday for Liverpool, took home 230 steerage passengers, mostly composed of mill operators and artisans, seeking employment in England. This is a remarkable change of affairs, and will do more to injure the United States than anything else that could happen.

There was a stormy debate in the Assembly on the prolongation question. On Wednesday another stormy debate on the same question took place. A motion by M. Roubier for reference of the matter to a plebiscite, was lost by a vote of 499 to 88.

M. de Peireca, member of the Right, moved an amendment to the report of the Committee, providing that President McMahon's power be prolonged to seven years, independently of the constitutional bills. It was adopted by a majority of 65. The motion was then made on the part of the Right, that a Committee of thirty be appointed to report on the Constitutional Bill, which was adopted by 68 votes. There is great excitement in Paris over the result.
