SCIENCE. KEEP THE FEET WARM.-Never go to bed with cold feet. Never try to sleep without being perfectly certain that you will be able to keep them warm. To lie one night with cold feet gives such a strain to the system as will be felt seriously, perhaps ending in a fit of sickness.

Cold feet show an unbalanced circulation. The very best thing to do is to warm them by exercise, if that be practicable. It not, try dipping them in hot and cold water alternately two or three times, and then using vigorous friction. If that does not warm them and keep them warm, heat them before the fire, drying them thoroughly, and then correct your habits or improve your health: for be sure that one or the other is wrong-perhaps both.

With all the rest, if you sleep on a hard bed, with cotton sheets, in a cold room, put on an extra covering over the feet. It is very convenient to have a "foot comfort," just wide enough to cover the top of the bed and about a yard deep. This may be made of some light material (perhaps the remains of a pretty dress), filled with cotton like a " comfortable," and tacked with some harmonious colour. During the day this may be thrown over the foot-board, advantage of this is to secure light covertine, 2 hours and 11 minutes LATER than ing for the feet without overburdening the remainder of the body.

If you use a hot brick or hot iron, and then when retiring remove it. To sleep with the feet in contact with it has a tendency to make the feet tender. But better than these, and to be used with or without them, is the foot-blanket. This may be a square yard of domestic flannel, or two yards folded of Swiss flannel, or anything else you like that is warm enough, only have it nice and clean. Fold this around your feet and ankles before you put them down into the bed. If not very cold, this will often warm them, especially if you have used friction; and if warm, it will prevent their becoming cold by contact with cold sheets. It keeps the warm air around them. It does not make the feet tender, and it is far more convenient than the hot brick or scapstone. Try it; and if you are troubled with cold feet you will be likely to keep it by you hereafter. Whatever you use, always lie at full length. To "eurl up' hinders free circulation .- Herald o

HOW TO EXTRACT PERFUME FROM FLOWERS .- Why do we waste the delicious odor of our flowers? No doubt inquire yow to Let Me No wethar yow Baptists Hymn and Tune Book $1.00 it is simply through our ignorance. The ladies would say "Show us how to improve the essence of a rose, or fasten down the odor of heliotrope, or confine the perfume of orange blossoms?" The way is very simple, and, strange to say, the fetters of these light airs are of the grossest kind, purified fat. Mr. Piesse tells us that the method of obtained scented pomades is the easiest too thing possible. If there is such a thing as a clean glue-pot in the house, throw into it a little of this purified fat, warm sufficiently on the fire to make it liquid, for the loss of their books are someand throw into it as many liellotrope times very curious. For instance flowers as possible; let these remain for (according to the controller) an applitwenty-lour hours, then strain off the fat, and add fresh flowers to it, repeat travelling circus as follows :- " Last this process for a week, and the result night, when I was sleeping in the tent, most remedies), or affect the head as it such, Mr. Piesse says, as can not be tore up my coat, in the pocket of which contains no Optum in any form. The method of liberating the essence of flowers from this fattiness is very simple. The fat is cut into small cubes, and placed in spirits of wine, and the delicate odor immediately transfers itself from the course fat to the spirituous solvent. Thus pomades and essences are already made at home, and we may add that they will pay for the trouble of extracting them. "I will buy any amount of heliotropepo made that I can get," says Mr. Piesse "the ottos of orangeblossoms and jasmin flowers are as valuable as gold, weight In our colonies vast quantities of these waste. Why?" asks this gentleman, "should we not grow flowers for the nose as well as tor the eye!" The query is a very pertinent one.

smooth and semi-transparent, for insects do not care about venturing into dark places. From that distance to the bottom, however, it becomes more opaque, and is thickly set with fine spinous hairs pointing downwards, so as to facilitate ingress, and prevent egress. Insects enter this tabe, attracted by a sweetish fluid which exudes from it. Passing along this passage, they at last reach the bottom, find on attempting to retrace their steps that escape is impossible, and, their wings becoming useless by contact with the viscid discharge from the walls of the leaf, and the moisture secreted at the bottom of the tube, they sink to their death in large numbers, the tube sometimes being filled to the depth of from six to seven inches with the remains of insects in various stages of decomposition. The Darlingtonia has not the power of ejecting these debris from the bottom of the tubes, but their removal is effected by a white grub which feeds upon the material thus accumlated.

DROWNED PEOPLE. - A French physician makes the remarkable statement that one-half at least of the so-called drowned persons are buried alive, and that they may be brought to life by proper treatment after having been "several hours under water." His remedy is to get out the water, pour in and inject alcoholic stimulants, and use a whip energetically, or hot irons in bad cases: The statement has been partially confirmed by the resuscitation of a man after he had been under water in one of the Seine baths for of work. more than twenty minutes.
