

RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

PRINCE EDWARD ISLAND—We are informed that since the P. E. I. Association, there have been about seventy baptisms in the Island churches.

The late discussion of various religious matters, has cleared away much of the existing darkness. Christian truth is appearing in all its harmony and beauty, and the Spirit is applying the truth to the hearts of the people.

There are now 960 missionaries and ordained native pastors in India, exclusive of Burmah and Ceylon. The additions to the churches the past four years have been at the rate of 4,000 a year. There are now 116 lady missionaries connected with different women's societies.

It was stated in the Southern Baptist Convention, at New Orleans, "upon reliable authority, that in the Southern tier of parishes in Louisiana there are one hundred Catholic priests, missionaries among the coloured people." "Since the close of the war they have now over twenty thousand coloured converts to the Catholic faith, a number greater than have been received during the same time into all the Protestant Churches of the State! Outside of New Orleans there is no Protestant mission in Louisiana for the coloured people."

FIVE YEARS OF PRESBYTERIAN GROWTH.—Dr. Hatfield, Stated Clerk of the Presbyterian General Assembly, has compiled a summary of the comparative condition of the Presbyterian denomination in the years 1872 and 1877. We take from it the following items:

Table with 3 columns: Year, 1872, 1877. Rows include Synods, Presbyteries, Ministers, Churches, Communicants, and Contributions for various purposes.

During the last five years, therefore, benevolent contributions have dwindled from $5,000,000 to $2,000,000 while during the same period contributions for home church expenses have increased in spite of hard times $1,000,000. Or, in other words, while the membership and home expenses have increased about 20 per cent., benevolent contributions have fallen off about 60 per cent.!

THE SCOTCH BAPTISTS.—Rev. David Young of Glasgow, speaks of the Baptist growth in Scotland on this wise:

The Baptist cause is making steady progress in Scotland. The church at Lochgilphead, Argyllshire, is in a very healthy condition under the faithful ministrations of our brother, the Rev. Mr. Forbes. During the summer months large crowds attend the ministrations of the Rev. Samuel Crabb, of Rothesay, Butehire. The church at Rothesay has received several accessions by baptism of late. The church of Wisbam, Lanarkshire, has doubled its membership in a year, under the faithful and zealous labors of the Rev. George Whittet. The great number of baptisms in connection with the Baptist church of Wisbam has not escaped the notice of the Reformed Presbyterian minister of Wisbam, who has publicly admitted that Baptist principles are spreading. All prudent Presbyterian ministers think it advisable to maintain silence on the vexed question of baptism. Some of our more outspoken ministers admit that the Baptist side of the question has much in its favor. One parish minister said to one of his parishioners, who belongs to the Baptist denomination, "I believe the Baptists are right. If I had children I should not baptise one of them." "Why," inquired our Baptist sister, "do you sprinkle so many babies?" "Because," the minister replied, "it pleases the mothers, and does the bairns no ill."

The Presbyterian Board of French Missions deny the allegations of Mr. Court, and asserts that Mr. Chiniquy's mission is prospering most satisfactorily.

He thought the former should issue no notes between $100 and $50 and small denominations under $5. The national banks should be satisfied with the circulation of notes of $500 and upward. The effects of such a plan would be to increase the national bank circulation and thereby the loaning power of banks and to give the nation a bank note currency superior to any country in the world.

The Gaulois adds: "Thus the Republican party loses at once its old consul and its young tribune. Will honest Grevy be strong enough to replace them both?"

TURKEY.—A correspondent before Plevna describes, from personal observation, the attack of Saturday, the 8th, made by a column headed by Skobeloff from the Russian left flank near Lovatz and the Plevna road, against one redoubt on the southern side of Plevna. The Russians drove the Turks from their outlying positions, but as they neared the foot of the slope the Turkish fire became terrible. From the parapet of the redoubt poured forth a steady flame, but the redoubt was hidden in a thick white smoke. The roar of the tremendous fire was simply fearful.

This lasted about 20 minutes when the Russian skirmish line began to withdraw. The Turks then made a sortie from this redoubt, which was repulsed by the Russians.

The Times' correspondent describing Tuesday's fighting about the Plevna parapet, estimates the forces engaged at about 57,000 on the Russo-Roumanian side, against 50 to 70,000 Turks. The valor of the Russian troops is the only thing to be praised, as the attack was unskillfully directed, and the waste of life unnecessary. The Turks were very skillfully handled. They must have lost some men in their two sallies, otherwise they were completely covered, and lay close till the moment of assault.

The Times' correspondent says the capture of the redoubts converts a bloody repulse into a final and perhaps permanent success. In any case subsequent attacks must be by sap and trench, for the last reserves were engaged on the Russian side. Another account says two hundred thousand troops were engaged in the battle at Plevna. The Czar, Grand Duke and Prince Charles were present directing operations. The Turks are reported to be in a strong position at Guintza.

A correspondent of the Standard before Plevna telegraphs that at the taking of the Grivila redoubt the Turks neither ran away nor asked quarter. The first Russians who entered thought the redoubt was abandoned. But the garrison had only retired to the casements and galleries, where they stood at bay. The fighting was at close quarters, all with the bayonet. The Turks immediately tried to retake the redoubt, and poured a large number of men into the adjacent entrenchments. The Russians bombarded them, but suffered severely from the rifle fire at only 200 yards distance. This attempt to take the redoubt and another one on Wednesday, were repulsed.

While General Rodionoff was wounded slightly, Adjutant Scilitor, commander of the 17th infantry regiment, and General Dobrowsky, Chief of the third rifle brigade were killed. Six Russian battalions took part in the assault on the Grivila redoubt. We captured two standards and five guns. Our losses in wounded alone exceed 5000. The number of killed is not ascertained.

At day break to-day a vigorous artillery fire recommenced along the whole line. Our troops are in front of the Turkish fortification in the position taken yesterday."

A Russian official bulletin dated Poreidita, Sept. 13th, says:—

Yesterday we made no further attacks, but bombarded the Turkish fortifications and the town of Plevna at short range. Towards 4 p. m. the town began to burn, and two explosions were observed within the fortifications.
