The coolest place in Paris just now is in the Catacombs. These subterranean galleries, which extend under a great part of the city, have upwards of A. H..... sixty entrances in different suburbs. The principal staircase which descends to them is in the Rue de la Tombe-Isoire, Armed with candles and pasteboards of authority from the Prefect of the Police we were admitted to these gloomy depths. The galleries and the different compartments are completely lined with human bones, arranged with great care and intermingled with rows of skulls. The catacombs were formerly quarries, worked as far back as the Roman Period, yielding a soft kind of limestone which hardens on the exposure to the air. During the several Revolutions and Reigns of Terror in France, immense numbers of bodies and bones have been brought here from various quarters and thrown in confused masses into these cavities; but in 1810 a regular system was organized for the more seemly disposition of these remains, and the preservation of their resting-place. Paris has more than three times as many inhabitants underground than overhead, still they come, and the number is continually increasing. This reminds me of my recent visit to Cologne, where in the ancient church of St. Ursula are displayed, in about the same manner of grouping as are the swords and bayonets in the Tower | Caleb Schurman & wife," of London, the bones of some 11,000 virgins, who, on a return from a pilgrimage to Rome, were mercilessly slain by the hordes of Atilla. However visionary it may appear to some deep-thinking minds that 11,000 virgins could have been brought together and made to travel on foot from Cologne to the Holy City and back, yet there are many who place implicit! faith in the story. Furthermore, the bones can be viewed by any person on a payment of about 25 cts., and with the bones are shown the skulls of the chief virgins arranged around in a most artistic manner.

As the grand semi-circular colonnade of the Palace of the Trocadero is still adorned with its promised sculptures, and likely to remain so for an indefinite period, what an appropriate place that would be to place the skulls of the charitable hotel aand restaurant keepers, arranged so as to face the Exposition buildings on the Champ de Mars so that the people of all nations could believe, in Nova Scotia. It was estiview the remains of this noble army of martyrs to conscience, and plainly discern in their phrenological formation how excessive was their benevolence. But there is no possibility of such a collection being made at present. Most of those who would contribute to its formation insist that they still owe an unselfish duty to the mass of pilgrims visiting Paris and the Exposition, in looking after their welfare, and laboring merely the encomiums of the just.

For the Christian Messenger. The Temperance Jubilee at Yarmouth.

The 1st of Aug., 1878, was conspicuous in the history of the Temperance move ment in Yarmouth. On the above date a large concourse of people assembled at the Rink to celebrate the great Temperance Jubilee. The Rink is the most capacious and convenient building for any great public occasion we have, I mated that it would conveniently seat six thousand. The leaders and officials of the great movement met at the Rink at 10 o'clock, a. m., on the above date, to inaugurate the principle features of the Jubilee. The clergy of the different denominations, including the town and county were courteously received at the Rink. The different Lodges from town and county were present. Dr. Miner, indefatigably to promote their comfort from Boston, Dr. Clay, M. D., Mr. and happiness, asking as their reward | Dutcher, and the Rev. Mr. Temple, were the principal speakers. Our aged and much respected Rev. Mr. Moody, Episcopal minister, was on the platform. The Rev. Mr. Reed gave the first address. After these, suitable preliminary addresses intermingled with thrilling music from the band and choir. The announcements were made that the principal meeting would be held at ! o'clock, p. m., at the close of which the procession took place, the clergy following, in carriages. The scene was exciting in all its bearings, conveying, no doubt, a new and powerfulimpulse to the temperance movement. At 7 o'clock, p. m., the people, en masse, crowded the Rink. After a solemn prayer and reading of the scriptures by the Rev. Mr. Moody, Dr. Miner addressed the audience with a thrilling speech. His sentences were clear and penetrating, unveiling the fundamental principles of temperance, and exhibiting in pictorial illustrations the fearful ravages of intemperance on the human frame. I believe that the Dr. has fought the beasts at Ephesus before, and gained some noble prizes in repelling the deadly onslaught of the fiery serpent Intemperance. This mode of attack shows the skill of the general, and courage of the lion.

His heart swells in the eloquence of his living words that strike deep into the souls of his hearers. He gains them at once, and holds them fast in the arms of his burning eloquence; for what is eloquence but the feelings of the soul flowing out into the hearts of hearers in words of touching sympathy and love? Mr. Dutcher is a natural orator. RELIGIOUS INTELLIGENCE.

FIVE ISLANDS AND LOWER ECONOMY .-Last Sabbath was a good day for this church. In the morning the pastor preached at Lower Economy to a large and attentive congregation from the Divine Commission, Mark xvi. 15, 16, shewing the scriptural subjects for, and mode of baptism. In the afternoon a very large company assembled on the beautiful beach at Central Economy for the purpose of witnessing the ordinance of believers' baptism. As this was the first time it has been administered in that place (although quite a number of the inhabitants are Baptists,) there was great interest manifested specially on the part of the young, many of whom brought their Bibles, and turned to the passages which were read shewing our authority for immersion. Rev. M. P. Freeman kindly officiated for the pastor and led into the water a dear sister, 83 years of age, the oldest person in this township. And they went down into the water, both the minister and the woman, and he baptized her, and when they were come up out of the water she went on her way rejoicing.

We then went to the Town Hall, where an overflowing congregation assembled, and after devotional exercises an excellent sermon was preached by Bro. Freeman, showing our authority for practicing restricted communion. The discourse was able and timely and was listened to with great attention by the large and intelligent congregation, many of whom are members of Pedobaptist churches. After remarks by the pastor in confirmation of the sermon, the right hand of fellowship was given to the sister just baptized, and the Lord's Supper observed after the New Testament pattern. As this was our first communion service in that place quite a number of friends remained as spectators.

It is hoped that having given our tesreasons for our practices, we may be allowed to proceed on our way without being described as lacking moral courage, called bigots, narrow-minded, and other choice epithets of abuse by those who differ from us in regard to the subjects for and modes of baptism, and not as to subjects for communion.
