RELIGIOUS AND GENERAL FAMILY NEWSPAPER.

Halifax, Nova Scotia, Wednesday, July 13, 1881.

NEW SERIES. Vol XXVI., No. 28.

gs.

pul-safe

y is tr's is l no

ner-

of sci-n of inci-vir-ugs, , of

sure sible

orm.

ikes

of all elief ts of

ible, In

oat, an's Ca-PEC-an-y its kept pro-In tion ious,

neof

heap: ered, ities, l are tient,

nand

dan-and

that

with, Use may is a

n and

is as fine tians, their

y has l pul-d the

Co.,

nts.

E.

80.

TE.

IS

st

Q,

rches,

ds of

. B.

SE

-1879

IS,

N. 8.

RIZE.

up for

manu-

our in-ranted

Church

Terms

ess H.

anni i

CER Terms in ad-

r three 18 $2.50

TOR,

sreet,

N. S.

HT

Poetry.

For the Christian Messenger. The Day is given for Toil.

The day is not for mirth, but toil, Our life is not a care free song; He lives who works ; and earth's be spoil. Is won by souls pure, patient, strong.

Bear burdens; battles fight and win; The upward is the golden way, The crown succeeds the struggle's din.

Who toils shall rest; who rests shall reign

Where glory shines resplendent, pure, Where joy shall ne'er be mixed with pain,

Where peace shall evermore endure. O. C. S. WALLACE.

1-0-0-1

Lead, kindly Light, amid the encircling gloom, Lead thou me on; The night is dark, and I am far from Bible, and laid it with due solemnity home;

and, in some cases, a tune book too. harmonium-pew. Alas, alas, often very hearty joy in my brother's good, in his A kind word of farewell' is sometimes glutinous and dirty, and very difficult gifts and talents; and may I be truly said on parting. All movements are to remove without doing mischief. made as noiselessly as possible. The upon the Lord without distraction."

Chrenstiam

cobwebs of the pulpit. In not a few of our chapels there are certain little by preachers and landlords. There is Married People would be Hap negligences in this part of the sanctuary something Bohemian and attractive in which may be looked after with advantage. It is not nice to see an untidy cushion or a torn Bible. There is a whiff of disregard' in these that is not helpful in devotion. Then sometimes the demeanour of the occupant might be susceptible of improvement. Formerly the progress to the pulpit from the yet to be appointed. - London Freeman. vestry was full of dignity. First a fore-runner with all gravity brought the grand, gold-edged, immense pulpit shown to a seat with an air that shows There are cobweos of the porch-peo- O my father, keep me humble ! Help thereby. It is popular in consequence in all .- Norman McLeod. Secondly, we pass on to notice the of this, for it is remarkable by what eccentricities notoriety may be attained the prolonged neglect. Yet at the last Brewster Sessions the magistrate declined to renew the licence without a promise being given that they should be cleared away. The authority that shall clear our places of worship from dusty, untidy cobwebs has, we fear, Answers to Prayer.

Sometimes God, for wise reasons may not answer our prayers at the time begowned and bebibbed, the minister they are offered; He may defer an anmounted the pulpit stairs, the verger swer for weeks or months; but He is following to close the door. All that all this time drawing us out to make cobweb has been swept away, but has our supplications with greater ardor, I was not ever thus, nor asked that thou not another taken its place? The sight and more humility, and stronger faith. It is in love and mercy to us that He keeps us waiting. It is that our desire for an answer may become more intense and our perseverance more inflexible, and that the answer when it comes may exceed our expectations. While the indifference on entering a pulpit, and if blessing is being withheld, it is becoming more vast. - While the mercies and as he may imagine some of his fathers favors are kept back, the store of them were in their stately ways. It does not is increasing. While the heavenly rain is forbidden to descend, it is only preparing to come in more copious showers. The sweetest and most blessed manifestations of the divine presence are ing a manuscript. The whole aspect bestowed on those who are most imporshould be that of one who has thorough- tunate and persevering in their requests at the throne of grace. By continued and fervent prayer, by long inner life. Schleirmacher performed and earnest talking with God, a condi- the important act of bringing the irretion of mind is obtained that is well ligions generation of his day to a conpleasing to God, so that He can bestow sciousness again of this. Indeed, Thirdly, and there are cobwebs of the blessing that is sought in perfect before all reflection, before all religious A cobweb is a small festoon which is the pew. The first we may notice is consistency with the administration of thought and action religion is already the drapery of neglected places. It that excessively dusty, ugly one of His government. To bestow a pecu- there, in the innermost being of man. enjoyment of some creature long since ninety-nine cases out of each thousand whose heart was not in a fit state to its place in the central part of his

he is welcome, and yet without any ple standing thereat, and, by careless me to have respect toward my fellowappearance that shows he is, con- talking, robbing the hearers of the in- men, to recognize these several gifts as ferring a great favour by his visit. fluence of the sermon. Then there are from thee. Deliver me from the sins of A hymn-book is quietly handed, cobwebs of the organ-loft and of the malice, envy, or jealousy, and give me glad in his superiority to myself, if God In a certain quarter of London there be glorified. Root out all weak vanity it consist? aim is to accommodate without disturb- is a noted old tavern which goes by and devilish pride, all that is abhorrent ing, to be polite without cringing, to serve the name of "The cobwebs." The to the mind of Christ. God hear my without loss of dignity, and, especially, ceiling is festooned with the growth of prayer. Grant me the wondrous joy Toil, then, till fades day's last faint ray; that each one present " may attend | many years, and the windows darkened of humility, which is seeing thee as all

pier,

neighbours.

every-quarrel. tioned to receipts.

courtship days.

If each would try to be a support and comfort to the other.

human being, not an angel.

WHOLE SERIES. Vol. XLV., No. 28.

shape with different persons ; with the majority it takes the shape of knowledge, or will, or feeling : but under all forms it is ever still the one essence of religion that is manifest, if it be only genuine and true.

essemaer,

But this religion, this affair of the inner life-what is it? Of what does

We must say : its first form is faith ; all religion is faith. For faith is a phenomenon of the inner life, in which my whole inner being, my feeling, knowledge and will centre in the object of my faith. Scripture characterizes faith as a firm assurance of that which is hoped for, a conviction of that which is not seen: Heb. xi. 1. That is: If home trials were never told to faith is not simply a supposition or simple opinion, but an unwavering If they kissed and made up after assurance, and indeed of something not sensuous. Faith ever turns its eye to If household expenses were propor- the invisible. For what one sees is not an object of faith but of sight. But If they tried to be as agreeable as in the invisible which one believes, he not merely assumes and supposes that it is true, but is most positively certain of it. This certainly however is not If each remembered the other was a something arbitrary or imaginary, but something inwardly grounded. All If women were as kind to their hus- faith rests upon such confirmation. Not iudeed upon intellectual demonstration, If fuel and provisions were laid in but upon an immediate inner convic-If both parties remembered they object in question and get an ineffacemarried for worse as well as for better. able. impression of it. This inner If men were as thoughtful for their knowledge and experience is the founwives as they were for their sweet- dation of all true faith. If I believe in the love or friendship of a man, so If there were fewer silk and velvet that I am certain of the same in spite of contradictory appearances-do I not believe therein because I have received an immediate inner impression thereof, which has wrought in me this immediate and unwavering certainty? Upon this inner experience and conviction my faith rests. So is it also with religious faith. For the supersensuous and invisible which is the object of my religious faith, is also a reality, a really as the love or friendship of a man, so that I can be inwardly touched by it and can immediately experience and know it and its effect. What has become inwardly so immediately my own, I can justify indeed in the way of intelligent reflection, and this might suffice; but in the first place faith rests not upon such vindication and argument, but it is immediately an affair of Lead thou me on. Keep thou my feet; I do not ask to see The distant scene; one step enough for Shouldst lead me on; I loved to choose and see my path, but Lead thou me on. I loved the garish day, and spite of fears, Pride ruled my will. Remember not

So long thy power has blessed me, sure Will lead me on, O'er moor and fen,o'er crag and torrent, The night is gone, past years.

And with the dawn those angel faces smile. That I have loved long since, and lost awhile.

NEWMAN.

Religious.

Sweep away the Cobwebs.

The subject may be divided into three taking no trouble to be in time. Then continually to heaven. pulpit; and (3) those of the pew.

and pleasure of the service than a fussy would have done you good to see how -From "Pulpit Earnestness." or a negligent or a bungling treatment worried the people were." With such of visitors. Persons who have charge a ministry weariness might be well exof this duty ought to give it seri- cused, but not improprieties of behavious study. It is very disagreeable our. There are many others that might to every right-minded person to see well employ the service of a good strong not be mentioned, the place has been the closing hymn.

on the cushion. Then with slow step, of a minister ascending the pulpit as though it were a solemn place, and he had a burden, was not without its power. In the reaction from the pompous we may find another extreme. No true servant of the Lord can feel he affect it he is as guilty of hypocrisy look well to see the preacher take his seat with an air of semi-carelessness. It does not look well to see him during the singing looking out a hymn, turning over the leaves of the Bible, or consultly thought out his work, arranged all that has to be done, and is seeking to set the example and convey the influence of a prepared, a devout, and a hallowed spirit.

bands as they were to their lovers.

during the high tide of summer work. tion, in which I directly perceive the hearts.

street costumes, and more plain, tidy of all the talk of men, or in spite even house-dresses.

Luthardt's Apolegetical Discourses on the Fundamental Truths of Christianity.

(Translated from the German by Prof. D. M. Welton.)

SIXTH DISCOURSE.

Religion.

Religion is an immediate fact of the was once of service, being the work and coming late. It is in nine hundred and liarly great and rich blessing on one It is the hearth of the inner fire, it has the inner life. In this inner affair feeling, knowing, passed away. It frequently hangs a habit, nothing more nor less. Very receive it, would be unwise-would be nature. We cannot pick out a single and willing coincide. For as in respect over windows, and if allowed to remain ugly and venomous must have been contrary to the laws of His spiritual faculty and designate this as of human love or friendship I feel in after its craftsman has departed, it the spider who spun this. It is indeed kingdom. Before God can wisely be- the seat of religion. It is at home the first place, that is, inwardly perceive collects dust and obscures the light. It a hypocrite's hope, feeble as a spider's stow extraordinary benefits, the heart where all the particular faculties of the and am sensible in my soul that another is harmless enough otherwise. Yet web, that God will accept service must be set on their attainment, the spiritual or psychical life join in im- loves me, so religious faith is also such it is considered by all good bousekeepers marked by this failing. It has been desires after them must become intensi- mediate unity. It is a matter of know- an immediate inner perception and sento be a symptom and symbol of untidi- permitted to disfigure our worship for fied, and the purpose must be fully ledge : for to know God and Christ is sibility of the eternal and of God himness, which ought to be remorselessly long, and ought to be swept away. formed never to rest until they are ob- eternal life. John xvii. 3. And self, and thus a feeling. But with this swept away. Are there not some We speak not of certain cases, which tained; and this state of mind can only naturally enough: for whatever is an feeling is joined at the same time an moral cobwebs in some of our chapels? every minister understands and knows be secured by prayers of uncommon affair of our inner life and of our immediate perceiving and knowing. Some tapestries outspun by persons of a to be unavoidable, but of the defenceless fervor and perseverance. The soul highest interest, must also be a matter Concerning the matter which is the past age which remain gathering dust practice of some low-souled people who must be full of burning earnestness, of our knowledge. Still religion is object of my faith, much can be hidden and darkening light? Let us enquire. see little harm in forming the habit of and the flame of prayer must ascend not a subject of knowledge only; for from me and unknown; but its essential then it would consist simply of precepts inner nature becomes immediately heads. Let us consider (1) the cob- some disturb the solemnity of all around Get into close connection with the which we know and not of a life which known and acknowledged while. I am webs of the aisle; (2) those of the them by turning over the leaves of living fountain-the fountain of life in we live. Knowledge is not sufficient inwardly moved by it and inwardly books. And others look at their Christ-and then you may be the means to make a man pious, nor is orthodoxy perceive it. And this is a knowledge First, then, we shall consider the watches. These symptoms of inatten- of conveying streams of the water of sufficient to make him a believer. Re- characterized by the firmest conviction cobwebs of the aisle. The prosperity tion in the short services of the present life to others. If full of love yourself, ligion is an affair of the will, for it and certainty, because it rests upon of a congregation is greatly dependent day are difficult of excuse. A Scotch you will kindle love in others. If full must be a moral matter, and a desire the testimony of experience. What on the way strangers are treated, and minister was asked if he was not very of light, you will communicate light. to do the will of God, Jesus designates however I receive in the way of such the enjoyment of the worship, too. Few much exhausted after preaching three If full of the Holy Spirit and of power, as the way to the truth. John vii. 17. knowledge and certainty, that do I things are more detrimental to the calm hours. "Oh, no," he replied, "but it other hearts will be divinely influenced. And hereby everything obtains only its make at the same time an affair of my true worth to us by the signification it will. For it is an act of my will that also bears for the life of our will. But I inwardly join myself with that which religion is not simply a willing and is believed in the unity of the inner doing : it is also a matter of feeling, life. Faith is an act of liberty. Faith for it is the felicity (Gal. iv. 15), it is is on the one side somewhat involun-God knows me better than I myself. the joy of man. peace and joy in the tary : whoever believes cannot do otherstrangers standing neglected at the door, broom. Amongst them may be men- He knows my gifts and powers, my fail- Holy Spirit. Rom. xiv. 17. But it wise than believe, he is as it were inor to see them conducted noisily along tioned that on one occasion a gentleman, ings and my weaknesses. So I desire is also not this alone : it is knowing wardly constrained, he is overcome, so the aisle disturbing the attention of all professing to be a Christian, was ob- to be led; to follow him; and I am and willing and feeling together, and that he must believe; and still again whom they are led past. Or to see served putting on his overcoat during quite sure that he has enabled me to do because it is an affair of the innermost believing is an act and his own act. them smirked at and made a fuss over the time the benediction was being a great deal more in ways that seem to man, the ground of his personal life, For as Fichte says faith is the ceteras though their patronage of the service pronounced; and on another occasion me almost a weste in life, in advancing we may designate this last the disposi- mination of the will not to question was greatly valued. Matters have im- a mother, who wished to bring up her his kingdom, than I could have done in tion, or with scripture, the heart. For knowledge. Faith rests not upon a proved in this respect of recent years, children piously, was positively seen any other way. I am sure of that. scripture makes the heart the seat of demonstration which compels me to an but in many places there is room for ad- handing the little ones their gloves Intellectually, I am weak; in scholar- religion, the source of the religious admission so that I am obliged to vance. At a certain church, which need during the singing of the last verse of ship, nothing; in a thousand things, a life: the word must penetrate the believe, as is the case with mathematibaby. He knows this, and so he has heart, Acts ii. 37, the heart must be cal propositions ; but faith rests upon mapped out. Anumber of young gentle Other classes might be referred to. led me and greatly blessed me who am opened to the word, Acts xvi. 14, the moral conviction, so that I must be men have engaged to take a division. There are cobwebs of the vestry. nobody, to be of some use to my church heart is the organ of faith, Rom. x. 10. willing to believe. And whoever is In a polite way, they endeavor to make Loud talking therein just before or and fellow-men. How kind, how good. This life of the inner man that we not willing to believe can never be each stranger feel at home. He is after service is not pleasant to hear. how compassionate art thou, O God ! name religion, can assume a different brought to faith. God has concerned

God's Knowledge.

, Cards,