MISSINCER. CERTSTIAN

Lamily Reading.

My Fairee Prince. BY ANTHONY E. ANDERSON.

-

"I wants to hear a story before I goes to bed. An' muzzer, you can tell me the best est one, I know !" And on my breast there nestled a curly golden head-"One teenty story, muzzer, an' then them, won't he ?' she said. I'll truly go,"

Christie warmly.

the snowdrops.'

blood of Jesus."

'Mabel,' said her mother, ' you must whiter than snow.'

Christie looked up brightly.

carried them through it. Some of the

' It seems dark and dim to me yet,

happy.'

trust you anywhere."

money to buy them with.

asked the lady kindly.

And then I dropped my knitting, and with folded hands I sat. And searched my drowsy brain for stories old and new; When I began to tell one, my listener said, " Not that !" Until I really wondered what tale of mine would do!

At last I told the story about the priccess fair, Who went to sleep, and slept for one hundred long, long years ; And all about the prince with the curls of golden hair, Who woke her with a kiss, and allayed last night: the people's fears.

'Twas such a sleepy story, it made me sleepy, too, While all the time I wondered if Johnnie's eyes were closed ; My head sank lower, lower, to that of golden hue,

· Yes, if you like. Mabel darted into the house, and know what the gift is ? returned with a large bunch of single Treffy did not answer, so the clergywhite snowdrops, prettily arranged with man went on :

sprigs of dark myrtle leaves. Very white 'It is the forgiveness of your sins and pure, and lovely they looked. Treffy ; it is the clean heart, for which "Here, organ-boy,' said Mabel, as you are longing; it is the right to enter into 'Home, sweet home,' for which she put them into his hands, 'these are my own dear snowdrops; Aunt you have been praying. Treffy; wi Helen gave me them, and you must you take the gift ?"

take them to Master Treffy, he'll like ' I want to take it,' said old Treffy 'but I don't know how.' · Ay ! that he will, missie,' said ... Did you stop to think how you were to take my gift, Treffy ?'

' No,' said the old man, ' I just too teach Christie the little prayer I told 'Yes,' said the clergyman. ' exactly you always to say when you looked at and that is what you must do with the Lord's gift, you must just take it.' 'Yes,' said Mabel, 'I will. This is "Would it have pleased me, Treffy, it, Christie; ' Wash me and I shall be said the clergyman, ' if you had pulled your hand back and said, Oh, no sir I don't deserve it : I don't believe you 'Will you say that prayer, Christie ?' would ever give it to me, I can't take it yet.' ' ' Yes, ma'am' said Christie; 'its just

' No,' said Treffy, ' I don't suppose it like what me and Master Treffy said would,'

'Yet this is just what you are doing 'Cleanse me and save me. to the Lord Jesus, Treffy. He is hold-Cleanse me and save me, Wash all my sins away.' " ing out His gift to you, and He wants Then the lady smiled when Christie you to take it jat once, yet you hold said this, and seemed very pleased. back, and say, "No, Lord, I can't be-

'I am so glad you know of the only lieve what you say, I can't trust Thy way to be washed white,' said the lady. word, I can't believe the gift is for me, out your hand and take it. Do you to know you are forgiven, not to feel you are forgiven. There is a difference between feeling and knowing. You knew you had taken my gift, and you didn't know what I meant when I asked you if you felt I had given it to you. It is the same with the Lord's gift, Treffy. Your feelings have nothing to do with your safety, but your faith has a great deal to do with it. Have you taken the Lord at his word? Have you trusted Him? That is the question.' and anticion charteriant

' Yes, sir,' said Treffy, ' I have.' "Then you know you are forgiven, said the clergyman with a smile.

'Yes, sir,' said Treffy, brightly, * can trust Him now.'

Then Christie walked up to Treffy and put the bunch of white snowdrops in his hand.

' Miss Mabel gave me them,' he said, and she said I was to say a little prayer whenever I looked at them . Wash me, and I shall be whiter than snow." "

'Whiter than snow,' repeated the clergyman, ' whiter than snow ; Treffy ! that is a sweet word, is it not !'

'Yes.' said old Freffy, earnestly, as he looked at the flowers, 'whiter than snow, washed white in the Blood of Jesus.'

Then the clergyman took his leave,

Man has but one chance-BY. JOSEPH COOK.

Gentlemen, this universe, up to the edge of the tomb, is not a joke. There are in this life serious differences bereport. tween the right and the left. Nevertheless, in our present career, a man has but one chance. Even if you come weighted into the world. as Sinbad was with the Old Man of the Sea, you have but one chance. Time does not fly in a circle, but forth, and right on. The wandering, squandering, dessicated moral leper is gifted with no second set of early years. There is no fountain in Florida that gives perpetual youth ; and the universe might be searched probably in vaia for such a spring. Waste your youth; in it you shall have but one chance. Waste your middle life; in it you shall have but one-chance. Waste your old age; in it you shall have but one chance. It is an irreversible natural law that character attains final permanence, and in the nature of things flual permanence can come but once. This world is fearfully and wonderfully made, and so are we, and we shall escape neither ourselves nor these stupendous laws. It is not to me a pleasant thing to exhibit these truths from the side of terror; but, on the other side, these are truths of bliss; for by this very law through which all character tends to become unchanging, a soul that attains a final permanence of good character runs but one risk, and is delivered once for all from its torture and unrest. It has passed the bourne from behind which no man is caught out of the fold. He who is the force behind all natural law is keeper of his sheep, and no one is able to pluck them out of his hand. Himself with out variableness or shadow of turning. he maintains the irreversibleness of all natural forces, one of which is the ineffably majestic law by which character tends to assume final permanence, good as well as bad. much to there who already take to anothe

DECEMBER 13, 1882.

it will explain virtues to be vices indisguise.

It is astonishing with what unconscionable avidity fabulous reports are heralded. Recently a visitor came several miles to navrate a disparaging 'Incredible !' I exclaimed. 'This person you refer to is incapable of such conduct as your statement implies ! I prefer not to hear any more !'

C

. Well,' replied this officious personage, somewhat crestfallen, ' perhaps time will convince you !' And from this the conversation turned to other social topics. When the visit came to an end, faint and disheartened I closed the door upon this retiring guest. Unbappily the suggestion was not without any effect even on me. Some people achieve meanness, others have it thrust upon them. To the latter class we must all occasionally belong. Not infrequently have I been reported ashaving made assertions which were wholly incongruous with my character, by those with whom I had not the slightest intimacy. Such trials have caused me the bitterest and yet most profitable hours of life,-bitterest, less those whom I held most dear, should believe and become estranged; most profitable, because in agony of spirit I have been divested of sufficiency

And then-oh, must I tell it ?- I shut my eyes, and dozed !

Wee hand crept softly upward, and patted my bowed head, And kisses soft as thistle-down were showered on my lips, "You's slept a bundred years nowwake up" the good prince said, And tried to ope my heavy lids with ^Srosy finger-tips. Racine, Wis , 1882.

Select Sevial. CHRISTIE'S OLD ORGAN. BY MRS. O. F. WALTON. CHAPTER VII.

LITTLE MABEL'S SNOWDROPS. The next morning Christle woke with a happy heart, for he remembered his last night's prayer, and in his simple faith he had taken the Lord at his word and that the blood of Jesus Christ had cleansed him from all sin. can wash away all sin.

But old Treffy's doubts and fears came back again. He began to look within, and the remembrance of his sin returned upon him. What if, alter all, there was sin on his soul? What if the gates were still closed against him?

" Christie, boy, I don't feel it's all right wi h me yet,' he said anxiously. "Why not, Master Treffy ?" asked Christie.

'Why, I've been so bad, Christie; it doesn't seem likely He'd do it for me so soon as that; there's such a deal of sin on my soul.'

"But you asked him to wash your Master Treffy, didn't you ?'

'Ay, I asked Him, Christie,' said Treffy, in a despairing tone.

" And He said He would if you asked Him, Master Treffy, didn't He ?'

'These snowdrops, always make me can't take it yet.' think of the souls washed white in the

"Treffy,' said the clergyman, earnestly, "if you can trust me, oh, why The lady and little Mabel passed on, can't you trust the Lord Jesus ?" and Christie looked down very tender-

The tears were running down the ly on the flowers. How he would love old man's face, and he could not speak. them now ! He turned his steps 'I am going to ask you another homewards at once, for he did not want question, Treffy,' said the clergyman. the snowdrops to fade, before they Will you trust the Lord Jesus now? reached old Treffy. How fair, and 'Yes. sir,' said Treffy, through his clean, and pure they looked! So tears ; 'I don't think I can help trustdifferent to the smoke and dirt of the ing him now.'

noisy court. Christie was almost afraid 'Now, Treffy, remember Jesus is in lest the thick air might soil them as he this attic, close to you, close to me, very, very near, Treffy. When we speak children ran after him and begged for to Him, He will hear every word we a flower, but he guarded his treasures say; He will listen to every sigh; He very carefully till he reached the attic. will read every wish.

And when Christie opened the door, "But, before you speak to Him, who should be there but the clergyman, Treffy, listen to what He says to you,' sitting beside old Treffy, and talking to said the clergyman, taking his Bible him earnestly ! He stopped to give from his pocket. ' These are His own Christie a kind word, and then went on words, . Come, now, and let us reason with what he was saying. He was together, saith the Lord ; though your telling Treffy about the death of Jesus, sins be as scarlet, they shall be as and how it is that the blood of Jesus white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool,' for ' the 'I can't see that it's all right with blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleansed me,' said Treffy, in a trembling voice ; us from all sin,' Treffy, will you trust the Lord Jesus? Do you think He don't feel that I've got it; I can't feel would tell you a lie?'

' No,' said old Treffy ; I'm sure He * Treffy,' said the clergyman, sudwouldn't.' denly, ' do you think I would tell you

' Very well, Treffy, then we will tell him so.

' No, sir,' said old Treffy ; ' I'm sure The clergyman knelt down by you wouldn't; I could see it in your Treffy's side, and Christie knelt down face, sir, if nowhere else. No sir, I'd too, and old Treffy clasped his trembling hands whilst the clergyman pray-'Now, Treffy,' said the clergyman, taking a half-crown from his pocket, It was a very simple prayer; it was · I've brought this for you. You cannot just taking the Lord at His word. work now, and you need many things Old Treffy repeated the words after the you cannot get; I will give you this clergyman with the deepest earnestness, and when he had finished the old man 'Thank you, sir,' said old Treffy, still clasped his hands and said, ' Lord the tears running down his cheeks; 'I Jesus, I do trust Thee, I do take the but, as he was crossing the court, he beard Christie running after him. He had a lew of the lovely snowdrops and a sprig of the dark myrtle in his hand-'Please sir.' said Christie, 'would you like a few of them ?'

'Thank you, my boy.' said the c'ergyman, 'I should indeed.'

He carried the snowdrops carefully home, and they taught him a lesson of faith. The seed he had sown in the mission room had not been lost. Already two poor sin-stained souls had come to the fountain and had been washed whiter than snow. The old man and the little boy had taken the Lord at his word, and had found the only right way into the bright city, into ' Home, sweet Home.' God has been very good to him in letting him know Surely, he would trust in the this.

future.

ing left.'

An Angel's Touch.

One evening, not long ago, a little girl of nine or ten entered a place in which is a bakery, grocery and saloon in one, and asked for five cents' worth of tea.

'How's your mother?' asked the boy who came forward to wait on her. 'Awful sick, and ain't had anything to eat all day.'

The boy was just then called to wait upon some men and the girl sat down. In five minutes she was nodding, and in seven she was sound asleep and leaning her head against the barrel, while she held the poor old nickel in a tight grip between her thumb and finger. One of the men saw her, and after asking who she was, said : 'Here's a two dollar bill that says I've got some feel-

With an all the south of Slander. adirischia hun Servilad all

2 + Estatus as

"People may expatiate upon the evils of intemperance, polygamy, and other gigantic social evils,' said a guest, but from observation I can say that I believe there is no commerce more active or more hurtful to society and the church than that of slander There stayed on its Redeemer .- Intelligencer. is a traffic in this article from the weakest solution to the strongest, in that which concerns the statesman and that which concerns the humblest laborer.'

'Yes,' I replied ; 'and the venders of this pitch are not altogether among the lower classes of society, in homes of ignorance. Sometimes we meet them where we expect a higher style of manhood and womanhood, among those who have much cultivation and Christianity.

'Now,' replied the good Domine. jestingly addressing the ladies at the table, 'you ladies who have so much executive ability, who have been so successful in various social reforms,---'And I can add a dollar,' observed surely you might exert an influence for and through depths of trouble have entered into the tellowship of Christ's sufferings.

He that sitteth at the helm of the universe, and who stilleth the tempest with one word, sends trial and adversity to his people not only as an act of sovereignty, but as a test of faith. Then let us cling closer to the immutable, immovable Rock of Ages. Dear sufferer from misrepresentation, can you not leave your reputation in the hands of your Almighty Friend, 'Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings. and not one of them is forgotten before God? Fear not, therefore, ye are of more value than many sparrows. Commit thy way unto the Lord ; trust also in him ; and he shall bring it to pass- And he shall bring forth thy righteousness as the light, and thy judgment as the noon day.' You are not an orphan, but a child of a King. · He is able to keep all that you have committed to Him against that day.' The true believer must have a heart at rest and a mind at peace, because

A good old man was one day walking to the sanctuary with his Bible in his hand, when a triend met him and said :

"Good morning, Mr. Price," what are you reading there ?

"Ah, good morning,' replied he ; " I am reading my Father's will as I walk along.' desinfant sale manand? is "Well, and what has he left you ?" the superints is said the friend. . Why, he has bequeathed to me a hundred fold more in this life and in the world to come, life everlasting.'-Baltimore Bulletin.

 Ay, Christie, I believe he didy said Trefy. Then of course he has done it,' said Christie. I don't know, Christie, boy; I can't feel it,' said old Treffy pitifully. 'I don't seem to see it as I ought.' So, whilst little Christie was walking in the sunshine, old Treffy was still groping on in the shadow, sometimes hoping, sometimes fearing, but never trusting. Christie paid another visit to the suburban road that week. Little Mabel and her mother were coming out of the house when Christie reached the gate. The little girl ran eagerly forward when she caught sight of the organ, and begged her mamma to stay whilst she turned the handle just six times. The lady spoke very kindly to Christie ; she asked him several questions, and he told her about old Treffy, how ill he was, and how he had not another month to live. The tears were in the lady's eyes, and she asked Christie where he lived, and wrote it down on a white tablet which she carried in her pocket. Mamma,' said little Mabel, 'I want to whisper something to you." 	ery badly off just now, Christie and e, Stop, Treffy,' said the clergyman, It isn't yours yet, you must take it.' Treffy put out his trembling old and, and took the balf-crown with nother murmur of thanks. Do you feel that you've got it, reffy?' said the clergyman. 'Yes, sir, it's here,' said old Treffy. 'Are you sure you've got it, Treffy, id the clergyman again. 'Yes, sir,' said Treffy, in a bewild- red voice, 'I know I have; I don't now what you mean sir.' 'I will tell you what I mean,' said he clergyman. 'The dear Lord esus has come into this room just as have, Treffy. He has brought a gift or you, just as I did. His gift has ost Him far more than mine cost me; has cost Him His life. He has come lose to you, as I came, and He says you, as I said: 'Old Treffy, can ou trust Me? do you think I would ell you a lie?' And then He holds ut His gift, as I did Treffy, and He ays 'Take it; it is for you.' Now, Treffy, what have you to do with this ift? Just exactly what you did with aine. You have not to work for it, or	knees and said, 'Treffy, when you had taken my gift what did you do next?' 'I thanked you for it, sir,' said Treffy. 'Yes,' said the clergyman, ' and would you not like to thank the Lord Jesus for His gift of forgiveness?' 'Oh,' said old Treffy, with tears in his eyes, 'I should indeed, sir,' So they all knelt down again, and in a few words the clergyman thanked the dear Lord for his great love and good- ness to old Treffy in giving him pardon for his sin. And again old Treffy took up the words and added : 'Thank you, Lord Jesus, very much for the gift; it cost Thee Thy life; oh, I do thank Thee with all my heart'. 'Now, Treffy,' said the clergyman, as he rose to go, ' if Satan comes to you to morrow and says, '' Old Treff, do you feel you've got forgiveness? perhaps after all its a mistake, what shall you say to him?' 'I think I shall tell him my text,' said old Treffy, 'The blood of Jesus Christ, His Son, cleanseth us from all sin.'	They made up a purse of an even five dollars, and the spokesman care- fully put the bill between the sleeper's fingers, drew the nickel away, and whispered to his comrades: "Just look a-there—the gal's dream- ing." So she was. A big tear rolled out from her closed eyelid, but the face was covered with a smile. The men tip toed out, and the clerk walked over and touched the sleeping child. She awoke with a laugh, and cried out: "What a beautiful dream! Ma wasn't sick any more, and we had lots to eat and to wear, and my hand burns yet where an angel touched it?" When she discovered that her nickel had been replaced by a bill, a dollar of which loaded her down with all she could carry, she innocently said: "Well, now, but ma won't hardly believe that you sent up to heaven and got an angel to come down and clerk in your grocery."—Washington Chroni- ele.	and the privacy of our closets, where we can wield the weapons of faith and prayer. This remedy has been proved the most effectual.' 'You are right,' said the Domine, seriously. 'Our God is a refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble.' Here the subject was dismis- sed from conversation, but not so from our thoughts. We asked ourselves the origin of this evil; and our investiga- tion showed it invariably the outgrowth of envy, which is so deceitful and in- jurious in its operation, that the ques- tion has been asked in Scripture, 'Who can stand before envy?' It undermines the very ground upon which you are standing; it breathes inuendoes; it suggests suspicions against your character, which, light as	Thoughtful Mary. 'I don't see how I'd git along wi out Mary, nobow,' Mrs. Blucher served, pausing to wipe the perspirat trom her aged features and put anot ladle of soft soap into the steam suds, while her daughter's voice at piano could be distinctly recogniz floating out from the adjoining part 'I don't see how I'd git along with that gal, nohow. Al'ays on these di when I hev the tiringest work, she jo picks out her nicest pieces, like 'Sw Rest, By and By,' and 'Mother Growing Old,' and sings 'em fur afore she goes out on the lawn to per croquet with the other young for 'Tain't every gal as ud be so thought I kin tell you. Now, most on 'em just bang away with 'Jordan is a H Road to Travel,' or 'Whoop 'em Eliza Jane,' but she ain't none o' to sort. She's a pile o' comfort,' and M Blucher fanned herself with her app preparatory to running the clout through the second water.—Tot American.
--	---	---	--	---	--