Let us pray.

Oh, Almighty God, we thank Thee that concerning the work of Thy hands, we may command ; not simply ask, but claim. This thing is too big for us ; we cannot manage it ; it is a stupendous undertaking. It requires more than all human wisdom combined to make arrangements for this Conference to project its programme, to determine those who shall take part in it audibly; God, of the revivals of the last half of to prepare for its various meetings. It the last century. Humanly speaking, requires something far beyond us to determine who shall come to it and shall contribute by their presence, counsel to what is done and said, to what is determined, and what shall be The Ohristian Berald, it was an offer India and in various countries. In the final outcome. Thou canst lay no blessing, and Thou canst detain such and prevent their coming. Oh Thou canst peculiarly anoint, with the power of the Spirit, those that are appointed to come, so that they shal come, not in their own might, not in their own wisdom, but in the power of God. Even the things that seem to be untoward and disastrous, disappointing, discouraging, Thou canst take out of the way, or turn to the glory of Thy Name. And now, our Heavenly Father, we beseech that whatever else takes place here this morning, there may be the most thorough prostration of heart before God, the most absolute humiliation; that we may see how far our divine knowledge has been above our practice, how far our conceptions have been beyond our expectation, how far our instruction has outrun our actual practical contact with Thee. Oh, our God, we beseech Thee, bring to naught any of our thoughts which are not according to Thy thoughts, and now grant that we may be like a musical instrument that is open to the touch of God, that is in tune with the divine purpose, the keys of which are in sympathy with each other and prepared for God to use us in this symphony of prayer, that because Christ is in the midst and touches our hearts with His own divine power, we respond to the divine will, and our will is lost in the will of God. Now, if we have had any thought that we could guide this Conference, or that we could contribute anything to the wisdom of these counsels, we our self-complacency and self-conceit, and that we may come before Thee this morning, and maintain this atti shall be planned; and we beseech Thee.

OF INDIA

Among the Native Christians at the Conference, one of the most notable was Miss L lavati Singh, M. A., professor of E glish literature in Lucknow College, India, who won all hearts by her charming personality, her burning words, and her sweet singing. At a reception to foreign delegates held at the Hotel Savoy, General Harrison paid her this remarkable tribute, "I have never at any time in my life owned as much as a million dollars; but, if I had, and had given it all to missions, and it had produced even one such woman as Miss Singh, I should feel that it had been well invested."

Miss Lilivati Singh spoke very wisely. The women of India should owe everything to the people of Engthe first to respond, and the United land and America. Dr. Scofield, Mr. Moody's pastor, was telling us, in Dr. Nixon's church, of this very fact in connection with a common, unlettered man, who was moved so to pray about the awful lethargy and apathy in the town in which he lived. In the middle of the night a man came and rapped at the door, and he looked so wild that he thought he was going to be shot, but his visitor proved to be a plain farmer from the country. He came in and got down on his knees and began to weep and pray and confess his sins. He had been a formal, nominal Christian, and together they besought God for that town, and they had scarcely ceased praying when they received news of a marvellous outpouring of the Holy Spirit on that town, and it taught me a tremendous lesson on this matter of prayer.
