Some Facts on the Religions of India. BY KATE T. PHILLIPS

The chief religions of India are -Brahn an sm Buddhism, Mohammedanism, Dymon-worship, and Parsi-ism.

The religion that hinders the spread of Christianity more than any single influence is Bramanismthe religion of the Hindus.

The Hindus believes in a Supreme Being of whom he knows nothing except that He exists, and is said to have made himself manifest at different times as Brahma, the Creator; Vishnu, the Preserver; Siva, the Destroyer and Reprodu-

Brahma is seldom worshipped. Siva has many temples but is not always represented in human form. Vi hnu is believed to have appeared on earth in ten different forms of animals and of men. The wives of the gods are also worshipped and many inferior gods and goddesses, besides sacred animals, rivers, mountains, hills, plants and stones

Brahmanism teaches that four classes of men were created by Brahma, 1, the Brahmans, or priests chants, 4 Mechanics and Servants. Each of these cas'es are sub-divided and below all are the outcasts.

Castes foster pride, insolence and s lfishnes?, si ce the Brahman even when wicked must be worshipped The Hindus may not eat or drink with those of a lower caste. Those belonging to a lower class can never rise socially, while the higher castes can never fall except by transgressing caste rules. Marriages must be between those of the same caste. To become converted means much to the Brahman. He must become despised and rejected by the men in his own caste, and willing to be abandoned by his family and friends.

Brahmanism degrades women. As a woman she cannot hope for heaven. If very faithful and obed. ient her next birth may be as a man and then she may reach heaven. The degradation of women has produced infanticide and childmarriage.

Although Buddhism has for the most part passed away from India, the land of its birth, yet the mark of Gautama's teaching is ineffaceably stamped on modern Brahmanism, and some of the worst characteristics, habits and convictions of the Hindus are due to Buddha's teaching.

Gautama Buddha was an Indian Prince who lived at the time of Daniel. Arnold called him the Light of Asia and a faint glimmer of light seemed to have hovered about him and his strange religion. Buddha spent six years of solitude in a cave and came very near to nature but not to nature's God. Foundations of his creed have been summed up in an ancient formula invented by Budda and are as follows: -1. That misery always accompanies existence. 2. That all modes of existence of man oranimals result from passion. 3. That there by destruction of desire. That this the three fold way. The first awakening of the hearts is when they first turn to the Enlightened One for comfort and guidance. When they have done this they are awake and have entered upon the first stage of the Buddhist way of salvation.

third and last stage, to have become a god. He did not teach bis follow. ers to worship him, yet he is worshipped by the Brahmans as well as the Buddhists. It is said that now there is no trace of the morality Buddha taught and it has been called the least hopeful of the misfaiths of misguided men.

Wood In a Storm.

Louisa M. Alcott tells the following story of her kind hearted and benevolent father and mother: One snowy Saturday night, when | ple of one thing. our wood was very low, a poor child came to beg a little, as the baby was sick and the father on a spree with all his wages. My mother hesitated a little at first, as we also had a baby. Very cold weather was upon us, and a Sunday to be got through before wood could be had. My father said, Give half our stock, and trust in Providence; the weather will moderate, or wood will come:

Mother laughed, and answered in her charry way, Well their need is greater than ours, and if our half gives out we can go to bed and tell stories.

So a generous half went to the poor neighbor, and a little later in the evening, while the storm still raged, and we were about to cover benevolence. In Bombay they have our fire to keep it, a knock came and a farmer who usually supplied us appeared, saying, anxiously.

I started for B ston with a load of wood, but it drifts so, I want to When the Hindus conquered go home. Wouldn't you like to have me drop the wood here? It would accommodate me, and you needn't hurry about paying for it.

Yes, said father; and as the man went off he turned to mother with a look that much impressed us children with his gifts as a seer. Didn't delay, get a bottle of Bickle's Antithey are rid of all impure desires and rocks, and must be conciliated I tell you wood would come if the weather did not moderate?

Payable To Order:

A promise is like a check. If I have a check, what do I do with it ? Suppose I carried it about in my pocket and said, I do not see the use of this bit of paper; I cannot buy anything with it, a person would say: Have you been to the bank with it? No; I did not think of that.

But it is payable to your order. Have you written your name on the back of it?

No; I have not done that. And yet you are blaming the person who gave you the check! The whole blame lies with yourself. Put your name on the back of the check, go with it to the bank, and you will get what is promised to you.

A prayer should be the presentation of God's promise, indorsed by your personal faith. - C. H. Spur-
