The Only Home Package Dyes in the World That Give Perfect Results.

The sufficient preparation of dyestuffs and putting them up in a proper shape for family dyeing has been brought to perfection by Wells & Richardson Co., who are proprietors of the Celebrated Diamond Dyes.

These popular dyes have been brought from the homes of Canada madder, fustic, logwood, cochineal and all other antiquated dyestuffs. The work of home dyeing is now done quickly and successfully by Diamond Dyes; the process is one that would astonish our grand parents.

To-day millions all over the world use the scientific Diamond Dyes in preference to all others. Diamond Dyes commend themselves to all who use them, because they are the strongest, brightest and fastest, and the easiest to work with.

Diamond Dyes, like all other perfect and popular preparations, are largely imitated in style of package and the way they are put up. These imitations are worthless and adulterated dyes, ruinous to all kinds of goods and dangerous to handle. Great caution is advised when buying dyes for home use. Ask only for the "Diamond"; see that the name is on every packet

A TIMELY WORD TO VOTERS.

This is what a Presbyterian paper, published in the Southern States, has to say of the duty of young electors: The exercise of suffrage is a badge of manhood which the young man is eager to put on. He becomes a citizen and his vote marks him a man. As a voter he begins to rule the land. His vote not only determines who will govern himself, but also who will govern others. His responsibility is very great; but often his spiritual advisers are so much afraid of becoming contaminated by discussing politics that they fail to instruct him in the duties and responsibilities of suffrage. The state makes no effort to teach him and the young man is left to himself to gain his political education, with many unprincipled men volunteering their tuition. Is it a surprising thing that he supports wicked men for office, regardless of the truth that "when the wicked beareth rule the people mourn?"

The state is as much a divine institution as the church. Its rulers have their authority from God alone. There is nothing in the Bible to show that God will be better pleased with impure and wicked men in state offices than he will with the same men in the official positions of the Church. The young Christian man should approach the ballot box with the same spirit that he prepared his voice for pastor, elder or deacon in the church. Moreover he should know that every principle of rectitude and ability laid down as requisite for these offices is equally requisite for offices in the state. No man should be elected to office in the state, whose moral character does not meet the approval and awaken the confidence of those who know him.

LITERARY NOTES.

The situation in the Far East is a question of large importance throughout Christendom, and the October Century throws some lights and side-lights upon it. Bishop Potter, in "Chinese Traits and Western Boundaries" shows that on his visit last winter he took to China an open mind as well as open eyes. Gov. Roosevelt's essay entitled "Civil Helpfulness," written before his nomination to the Vice Presidency, points out what is being done by individuals and institutions, other than official, to help the weak and unfortunate. Sir Walter Besant continues in "East London Types" his picturesque studies of slum life in London. The present number, rounding out the magazine's sixtieth volume, contains the final chapters of Mr. Morley's work on Cromwell.

A STRANGE CHILD.

How dreadful a thing "heredity" is! It is the physical counterpart of original sin. Here is an illustration from Harper's Bazar: What is to be done with Charles Edward Mason, a baby twenty months old, whose mother was imprisoned for stealing, six months before he was born, who was born in a mission-house to which the mother was removed from the New Jersey State prison for the event, who, unconvicted of any wrong but his parentage, was, at the age of six weeks, returned to the prison cell with his mother, and in prison has lived all the succeeding months? The baby is beautiful, bright, and—impossible as it may seem—happy. He is the pet of the prison. Murderers, thieves and prison officials vie with one another in loving him. But he has no father. His mother is a thief, so were his uncles, grandfather and great-grandfather. The history of the case warrants the deduction that he is a [born degenerate, and it is said the shape of his tiny hands is oddly suited to the criminal profession of his progenitors. The mother has a certain pride in her child, but she freely admits her greatest pride will be in teaching him to steal. What is the state to do with such a child? The Governor of New Jersey proposes, now that the child is weaned, to take him away from the mother, and put him with a good family in some remote place where his identity may be lost, and the advantages of a moral environment secured him. But where will the right sort of a family be found to receive him? Even though the baby's hair is golden, his eyes blue, and his ways lovable, would you take him with his heritage of crime to your heart, and rear him among innocent children of your own? What shepherd would put a young wolf to sleep with his ewe lambs? Learned men interested in this case suggest that the prison baby, with fifty or one hundred other offspring of criminal parents, be herded for an experiment in criminology—given the finest training modern educators can provide—and let science record the results. Poor baby! Poor trifling data for theories concerning human degeneration—what of his heart one day, when he measures himself with children who have parents and home? And in the end, what of his soul?

Heredity is doubtless a dreadful problem. But let us not forget that where sin hath abounded grace much more abounds; that as in Adam all die in Christ all are made alive. The grace of God is stronger than all pre-dispositions and hereditaries.

Don't Cough

Stop it with SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil.

A little coughing is nothing—the tickling, that makes you cough once, is some dust; not the least harm. You scratch an itch, and forget it. This cough is scratching an itch.

But the cough, that hangs on and comes back, is a sign of an itch that hangs on and comes back. There is something that makes that itch.

Inflammation: a germ; it's alive; like a seed in moist warm ground; it will grow if you let it, even in children.

Take SCOTT'S EMULSION of Cod Liver Oil. and the germ will die.

If you have not tried it, send for a free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto, Ont., and all druggists.

THE LIQUOR ASSOCIATION CALL ON THE TRAFFIC TO OPPOSE PROHIBITIONISTS.

The Licensed Victuallers' Association of Montreal is the militant body of liquor men in Canada. This organization keeps its eyes on the political outlook, in as far as "the traffic" is concerned. At the meeting of the Association in Montreal, on October 2d, 1900 the president, Mr. Lawrence A. Wilson, made a motion: at a week upon Hugh John Macdonald, in consequence of the latter having introduced a law putting into force prohibition in Manitoba. President Wilson said: "We are at present about to enter into a campaign, in which one section of the people will support the Liberal and another section the Conservatives. With many it is a question of sentiment; with us it is purely a business proposition. We also know the Hon. G. E. Foster's position on the question of prohibition, and with the presence of Hugh John Macdonald, in the event of the Conservative party being returned, his hands would immeasurably be strengthened, and that which is the fate of our friends of Manitoba to-day may be ours to-morrow."

Hugh John Macdonald was elected Premier of Manitoba not many months ago. One of the principal planks of the platform which caught the faithful vote was prohibition. Immediately upon assuming office he re-elected his pledge, and passed a prohibitory law, which will blot out on June 1, 1901, every licensed victualler of that province. Needless to tell you of the ruin and destruction he is causing and will cause to our brethren of that province. He is now seeking admission to the councils of the whole Dominion, and I would ask the whole common sense where the election of such a man and his presence in the Cabinet would not be a menace to the livelihood of ourselves and our families.

The position of the trade. "This is not a political statement; it is simply hard facts, and I would ask you to consider and to weigh well the position of the trade in this matter. Our friends in Manitoba have been ruined by Hugh John Macdonald. Are we to permit ourselves to be ruined also? This is for you to consider, and for you to judge. Hugh John Macdonald is now knocking at the door of the House of supreme power of the Dominion, to do with us as he has done with our friends in Manitoba."

It is of no account to me what a man's politics are, that is his own business; but I would ask the common sense of the trade of the whole Dominion whether it is within the possibilities that you will calmly submit to help to admit a man who has so unmistakably declared himself your enemy. "Let every licensed victualler in Canada who supports a candidate of either party demand that such candidate publicly have his views declared to his constituency on the subject of prohibition, and state what course he will adopt in the event of such legislation being submitted to the Dominion power. Time has come when we must be able to distinguish our enemies from our friends."

We also demand in justice that the tariff upon wines and spirits be revised, giving the people a more equitable scale of prices. Why should the poor man be taxed more for his toddy than the millionaire is for his champagne and fine wines? We do not seek to decrease the revenue on these commodities, but we want a rearrangement that will satisfy the great public and put an end to monopolies enriching the few."

Mr. Arthur Jones moved the following resolution which was seconded by Mr. Victor Bougie, and unanimously adopted: "Considering that the federal election will take place in the near future, it is advisable, and in the interest of the liquor dealers throughout the Dominion, that, before deciding in favor of a candidate, they should obtain from him a formal promise to pronounce himself in favor of and work for a change of the traffic so as to obtain a reduction of the duties, actually so excessive, and a more judicious redistribution."

A DESTRUCTIVE HURRICANE

The Dominion statistician says the storm which destroyed Gales was one of the greatest hurricanes of the century. It raged through the tract of country between Galveston, Newfoundland, and was especially destructive to fruit. From New State and the peninsula of Niagara reports are that the fruit crop was aged to the extent of several millions of dollars. Along the valley of the Lawrence, from Kingston to Point, it shook the trees and downed the fruit in a most violent manner. From New England it ran over New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and up the Annapolis Valley, report from Prince Edward Island says that the fruit crop is ruined. Thousands of bushels of fruit were destroyed, barns blown down, wharves badly damaged, fishing boats driven ashore, and six hundred traps destroyed in one place. The crops destroyed is unknown. The bridge the Strait and gulf of Newfoundland. By telegraph dated 18th of September from St. John far eight or two schooners were wrecked ashore and foundered, over a hundred more being damaged. Fifty lives are known to be lost. Belle Isle Strait the fishing vessels were destroyed. On the French of Newfoundland over fifty were lost. The immense destruction of property caused by this hurricane will probably never be accurately estimated. The loss of life was not from 9,000 persons, and the loss property during the five days it took to travel from Ucautan Channel to the Gulf of Mexico to Galveston thence to Trinity Bay Newfoundland may be computed at thirty millions.
