THANKSGIVING.

A stranger passing through our country on the day set apart for thanksgiving would have been much surprised to be told that it was Thanksgiving day. The closed schools and banks, would be the only evidence that it was a holiday. If the stranger wanted to go to church he would find many of them as securely closed as the banks. Stores and factories were running as on other days, and the 'farmer gathered hi belated harvest, and grumbled b-cause it was not larger, or was thankful that he had a harvest to gather. ecording to his mood.

Why should not our day of thanks giving be a general and genuine one Why should not all the churches be pened on that day, and crowds go up to give thanks to God, instead of a few lone worshippers? ' Where are the nine " who have not returned to give thanks to God for his manifold blessings?

Is there any land that has more reason to have a day of general thanksgiving than ours? Peace within our borders, our barns and granaries filled to overflowing, the hum and whir of factory and mill heard in the land. sweet music in the bread-winners ears.

Not for one brief day only should thanks be given, but every day, for the lines have fallen to us in pleasant places, and we have a goodly heritage.' KEEP THE ROAD CLEAR.

Spiritual roadmakers are always needed to keep the King's highway clear. They are especially required just now to see that such stumbling blocks as promises, rum and five dollar bills, are kept out of the walks of those whose duty it is to walk to the polls in Nov. 7th. Make a smooth, clear path for your neighbours feet.

REV. THEODORE L. CUYLER, D. D.

There are several other good women named in Bible biographies to whom we owe our gratitude besides Hannah, representative preacher of the gospel finds in Him its "All in all." Then it the model mother, Ruth, the model ceasing would be a sin. God reserves to Himself the right to grant our He choos s. It is our duty to pray answers that seem best to Him ; i. e., such answers as are for our good and find.

for His glory. The right kind of faith is that temper of the soul which submits to what God orders, but never submits to what God can make better If we yield to temptations and yield to discouragements when we ought to struggle against them ; if we are tamely content to be without spiritual blessings, and neither labor nor pray persistently for such blessings, we deserve to suffer.

Prevailing prayer must always be accompanied with prevailing effort on our part. God never puts a premium on cowardice or laziness, or palpable neglect of duty. There is no haphazard in prayer. All of God's promises have conditions ; we must comply with their conditions, or we cannot expect the blessings coupled with the promises. No farmer is such an idiot as to look for a crop unless he has ploughed his field and sowed his seed. Be sure, my Christian friend, that you are honestly and perseveringly doing your part, if you expect God to do His part. He promises His Holy Spirit to His ministers and His churches when they are willing to co-operate with the Spirit; if they quench the Holy Spirit, they pay the terrible penalty. What a magnificent epic are the triumphs of prevailing faih! PARK LIBRARIES.

Brooklyn has inaugurated an admirable extension of the free library system by establishing libraries in the Parks. The atmosphere of even the best-conducted public reading-room is liable to become decidedly "stuffy, and there are many who enjoy the delights of a garden and the fresh air al, the more if they have a book in their hands at the same time. It was a very happy idea to turn the public gardens to use in this way. In a single park at Brooklyn 16,832 books were taken out in seven months for home reading, and 19,300 books were read on the premises under pleasant open-air conditions. The idea might very well be adopted in other places.

RELIGIOUS INSTRUCTION.

A Royal Commission, consisting of ninisters representing all denominations except Roman Catholics and Jews, which was appointed to suggest what religious instruction should be given in the State schools of Victoria, Australia, has selected a series of lessons from the Old and New Testaments which it unanimously recommends should be read in the schools and explained by the teachers. A conscience clause is provided for both teachers and scholars. Prayers and hymns have also been collected for the optional use of teachers The Commission recommends that the question of the adoption of the lessons should be submitted to a direct vote of the people in the form of a referendum
