May Help the Sunday School.

1. They can make a thorough canvass of the district in which the church is located, for recruits to the school. A full list should be kept of the names of children who are not attending any school, that they may be visited again, if they fail to accept the first invitation.

2 They can be at the door of the Sunday school room every Sunday, to welcome new scholars, supply them with hymn-books and Bibles, and assign them to classes.

3. They can organize a class of volunteer teachers-those who will lessons and to supply the places of the regular teachers when the latter are absent.

4. They can invite the older scholars to attend the C E meeting. This can be done either by visitation, or by sending a note of invitation, sent to each teacher, to be read before the class.

These are only a few of the can be dones that will suggest themselves to a wide-awake Sundayschool committee. In many places important missions have grown out of the labors of these committees in opening and maintaining schools in neglected neighborhoods. There is scarcely a society that could not well undertake such a work, if it were under the guidance of a wise committee.—Christian Guardian.
