From The President.

Now that the evenings are becoming long and cool and people are more willing to attend prayer meetings, would it not be well for each Endeavourer to secure at least one who has not been in attendance at our weekly Endeavour meetings, to begin to attend. In some cases it may require much persuading to secure even one and to keep that one in attendance, but remembering that the influence of our meetings even on one who is not an active member cannot fail to do good is the end sought not worth the effort. Nor should we be content with merely securing attend. ance but we should not cease to pray for the salvation of that soul. If each member can with God's help thus secure the salvation of one soul during the year what a grand report we will have for our next League meeting. Fellow workers let as think over this, pray over this, labour over this and God will not only bless our efforts in behalf of others, but will make our own spiritual lives richer and fuller in proportion as we work earnestly and faithfully for the spiritual good of others.

AMOS O'BLENES

From the Corresponding Secretary.

Over two months have passed since our League's inspiring session at St. John. It is well for us at the beginning of the year to enquire thoughtfully and prayerfully "Lord what wilt Thou have me to do"? If by the blessing and strength of our Divine Master we have done something, during the past year, to extend His Kingdom and to cheer others in Christian Endeavour let us take courage." Yet it would seem that for near ly every other step in life there is more deliberation. For nearly all other duties there is instruction. training. Why should there no be for marriage, when so much de pends upon it? Why should not mothers talk thoughtfully to their daughters of the meaning of marriage, of the principles which should guide them in entering the relation and of the duties which will be theirs when they become wives? Why should not fathers have quiet a'ks with their sons on the subject, telling them what a husband's duties are, how he must forget himself and live for the happiness of the woman he chooses for his wife, giving up his own selfish ways and unlearning habits he has formed which prove hindrances to the blending which alone makes perfect marriage?

Such wise instruction, given in outh, would certainly lead to more thoughtfulness, would prevent many inconsiderate marriages. It is often said that marciage is a lottery, as if it were necessarily a sort of game of chance. But there need not be such uncertainty about, if only young people would give serious attention to the ubject before entering into it.

For example, the young man should consider whether the young woman he is interested in is fitted to be his wife. Perhaps it will be necessary for him to live economically, at least for a time. Has this girl had the training which will make her a good poor man's wife? Will she be able so to manage her household affairs that they can live in the small income he will have? then will she be willing to live in a plain way, befitting their circumstances, and will she be contented in doing so?

Then has she other gifts and qualifications which will make her the dearest woman in the world to him? Are her attractions such as will wear? There is a vast deal more required to make a woman interesting to a man three hundred and sixty five days in a year for forty years or more, than to make her pleasing or winning for an evening two or three times a week for a winter.

Then a young man's questioning should not all be on the side of the gira's ability to make him happy and to be a good, faithful, helpful wife. He ought to be quite as severe regarding himself-whether he is the man to make this woman the hus band she needs, whether he can make her happy, and whether he is ready to devote himsalf to the holy task. This should be a really serious question with every young man who asks a girl to be his wife. It means that he must make him self worthy of her in every way, his own preferences in many matters and live for her. Then while he makes sure that the girl he is thinking of so warmly will be ready to sweetly share a plain home and close economy with him as his wife, he must also make sure that he is ready and that he will be able to provide for her in a way that will not lay too heavy a burden of sacrifice upon her. Too many young men never give serious thought to this phase of the marriage problem. The result is that many a noble girl, willing to share privations and close economies with the man she loves, is taken out of a home of frugal comfort to endure pinching experiences and even wretched poverty, because the man who promised to keep, comfort and cherish her, lacks either the capacity or the energy to provide for her a comfortable home.

may argue, and passionately as orators may declaim, there seem . feer all but one solution possible, and that is the grand, old, God given folk are so willing to be persuaded that the principle is not workable ticable and altogether deligh ful in the parlor or on the playground, it.

But profoundly as philosophers

A large employer of labor had clerk who showed much more than ordinary assiduity and intelligence in the discharge of his duties. The testimony of that clerk is as follows:

"I've never had to ask for a raise in my salary since I've worked with ed me into his private cffice, and said: John, I'm not paying you what you are worth to me, and my conscience is not easy about it Your salary will be raised tomentioning an amount a good deal above what I was then getting.

Again, the proprietor of a large laundry establishment has many women in his service. It is his most meritorious and exemplary custom to allow each one three days rest every four weeks. And he finds the practice a good invest ment from every point of view.

A still more shining example comes from the country district . Some years ago there was a great hay famine in the vicinity of Hamilton, Canada. The winter had been exceptionally prolonged, thefarmers' mows had become empty, and the cattle were dying of starvation.

Hay then sold for forty five dollars a ton in open market in the city, and the poor farmers fought for it at that ruinous price rather than have their live stock die on their hands.

Farmer S --- found himself in this emergency with several hun dred tons of hay on hand more than he needed for his own use. Here now was a splendid opp rtunity for making a pile of money. How did he avail himself of it? T e other farmers came crowding to him eager to purchase. He met them with the question: Have you any money?

If the answer was yes, the response was: Then go into Hamil ton and buy in the market. My hay is for the farmers whose money is all gone, and whose stock will starve unless I help them. And on this basis he disposed of his hay at one balf the rate at which it was selling in the market, while the whole country-side rang with bis identify Yourself with the Church

For the sake of others, as well as for your own, identify yourself with the Christian church, be not a visitor, but a member. Example is more potent than words. The spectacle of a dozen manly men and womenly women walking up the aisle to devote and dedicate their lives to the cause of Christianity will move a congregation more deeply than a year's preaching.

"The square peg in the round hole" figuratively expresses the use of means unsuited to the desired end. A great many people who have been cured of dyspepsia and other diseases of the stomach and its allied organs of digestion and nutrition by the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery say: "We tried man medicines with only temporary benefit. It was not until we began the use of 'Golden Medical Discovery' that we found a complete and lasting cure."

It is undoubtedly true that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery holds the record for the perfect and permanent cure of indigestion and other diseases of the stomach and associated organs of digestion and nutrition. It is not a palliative. It cures the cause of disease and builds up the body with solid healthy flesh, not flabby fat.

"It is with pleasure that I tell you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and 'Pellets' have done for me," writes Mrs. T. M. Palmer, of Peede, Kaufman Co., Texas. "Two years ago I was taken with stomach and bowel trouble. Everything I ate would put me in distress. I lived two weeks on milk and even that gave me pain. I felt as though I would starve to death. Three doctors attended me—one said I had dyspepsia, two said catarrh of the stomach and bowels. They attended me (one at a time) for one year. I stopped taking their medicine and tried other patent medicine; got no better, and I grew so weak and nervous my heart would flutter. I could not do any kind of work. Now I can do my house work very well; am gaining in flesh and strength, and can eat anything I want."
