THE MAGAZINES.

The Housekeeper magazine for September is an interesting number. The usually practical and entertaining contents are embellished by beautiful illustrations. One of the features in this number is the symposium by Housekeeper readers on "How Should the Wife's Pocket-book Be Filled?" The varying opinion of wives and husbands are interesting, and much light is shed on this perplexing problem. The practical departments which have caused The Housekeeper to be called the Magazine of Helpfulness are continued. The Housekeeper Corporation, Minneapolis, Minn. Price 60 cents a year.

SOFT CORE

Like the running brook, the red blood that flows through the veins has to come from somewhere.

The springs of red blood are found in the soft core of the bones called the marrow and some say red blood also comes from the spleen. Healthy bone marrow and healthy spleen are full of fat.

Scott's Emulsion makes new blood by feeding the bone marrow and the spleen with the richest of all fats, the pure cod liver oil.

For pale school girls and invalids and for all whose blood is thin and pale, Scott's Emulsion is a pleasant and rich blood food. It not only feeds the blood-making organs but gives them strength to do their proper work.

"NERVOUS APPREHENSION."

Mentioning a professional man who is said to be suffering from "nervous apprehension," Zion's Herald says:

The disease—though we do not know that it is put down under that head in the medical books—is not an uncommon one. There are people who suffer from it all their lives. These are the dear folk who are always afraid that something is going to happen. Perhaps it will not happen, or perhaps if it does happen it will not be very dreadful after all, but at any rate it is of little use worrying about either the things that can be helped or that cannot be helped. "Nervous apprehension" assists no one either to progress along the earth's surface or to fly as by an invisible aerodrome toward heaven.

As worrying is one of the besetting infirmities of the writer, we hereby produce a homily against it which has been read several times with some good and powerful resolutions. The Chicago Post says:

"Rev. Thomas Dixon, Jr., pictures one of the characters in 'The Only Woman' as having carved across his oaken mantel the words: 'I am an old man now; I've had lots of trouble, and most of it never happened.' No doubt most of us when we near the end of life's journey could give expression to the same sentiment. In general our troubles have three proportions according to our point of view: They are all fearsomely large in prospect; the worst of them is bearable in actual occurrence; and they shrink to a mere dot in retrospect.

"The great bulk of our troubles are those of anticipation, and a generic term for them is worry. Most of them never happen, and those that do have shrunk so that, we scarcely can recognize them."
