"Yes, isn't 'em sweet! We won't let the horrid old weeds sting you to deff." (caressing them) "An' I'm goin' to get 'em out o' here too. If I don't tell stories, nor slap Jack, an' mind mamma quick—an'an' be pleasant when I don't want to be, will they go away?"

I assured her of this, and it was several days before I thought again of the lesson of the weeds, until the sequel came out in a remark from her much perplexed mother:

"I never saw Dora so good and sweet tempered as she has been for a week past. Really, I thought she was ill; but she rambled on continually to herself, her dollies, to Jack, of weeds, weeds, weeds. Jack seemed to understand; but to me she would make no other reply than, 'Oh, it's something—I know.'"

DANDY AND THE AXE.

Dandy was a little dog who lived with his mistress in a New York apartment flat up two flights of stairs. They indulged in the luxury of an open wood fire in cool weather, and Dandy was the errand boy who brought wood from the cellar when necessary.

One day Mrs. Scott, his mistress, discovered she had no wood, so she said, "Dandy, go down cellar and bring me a stick of wood." (He usually brought one stick at a time, and travelled up and down stairs until the wood-box was replenished).

Away went Dandy as gay as a lark, but only to appear in a few minutes with a very doleful air, and without any wood.

"Why, Dandy," said Mrs. Scott, "d'you hear me? I said bring up some wood."

Downstairs went the little dog a second time, and soon Mrs. Scott heard a noise as of something being pulled or dragged across the cellar floor. Going herself to investigate, she found the little dog at the foot of the cellar stairs with the axe, the handle of which was in his mouth, and he was trying his best to carry it upstairs to her, to show her there was no wood cut.

This is a true story, and may be vouched for.—Christian Endeavor World.

How Girls Can Help their Mothers

Every girl, if she be not thoroughly selfish, is anxious to lift some of the burden of household management from her mother's shoulders on to her own; but, unfortunately, many girls wait to be asked to do things instead of being constantly on the lookout for little duties which they are capable of doing.

If you would be of any real use in the home you must be quick to notice what is wanted—the room that needs dusting, the flowers that need rearranging, the curtain which has lost a ring, and is therefore drooping. And then you must not only be willing to do what is needed, but willing to do it pleasantly, without making people feel that you are being martyred.

It is almost useless to take up any household duties unless you do them regularly. If you do a thing one day and not the next, you can never be depended on, and if some one else has to be constantly reminding you of and supervising your work, it probably gives that person more trouble than doing it herself would cause.

Have a definite day and a definite time for all you do. The flower vases will need attention every other day, the silver must be cleaned once a week, and there should be one day kept for mending and putting away household linen. Begin, too, directly after breakfast and keep on steadily till your work is done.

If you begin by sitting down "just for a minute" with a book, or think you will "just arrange the trimming" on your new hat, the morning will be half gone before you know where you are.

A girl who has brothers may spare her mother all those tiresome little jobs which boys are always requesting to have done for them, if she will only do them kindly. But a boy will not come and ask his sister to repair frayed-out buttonholes and to make him paste for his photograph album, if she snaps and says he is always bothering. It is not easy work, but it is quite possible for the daughter at home to make sunshine.—Philadelphia Ledger.

TOMMY'S LESSON.

I thought when a boy was old enough to have a slate and book and go to school he was big enough to take care of himself and go the way he wanted to; so I did not go straight down the road as my mother told me, but I climbed the fence to go across the field. By and by something said, "Bow-wow-wow!" and there was a big dog running right at me. Didn't I run? That dog almost caught me before I got to the fence, and I tumbled over, and scratched my arm, and broke my slate, and tore my clothes; so I had to go home to mamma.

She said: "Ah, Tommy, boy, people never get too old to go in the right way instead of the wrong one. The straight path is the safe path. Remember that."

And that is all the lesson I learned in my first day at school, 'cause I didn't go.—Early Days.

KEEP LITTLE ONES WELL.

There ought not to be any sickly, fretful, sleepless children—there would not be any if mothers gave their little ones an occasional dose of Baby's Own Tablets. The little ones are sickly and fretful and sleepless usually because of some stomach, bowel, or teething trouble. These and the other minor ills of little ones are speedily relieved and promptly cured by Baby's Own Tablets, and the little one thrives and grows plump, sleeps well at night, and lets the mother get her much needed rest as well. Mrs. R. R. LaRue, Mountain, Ont., says:—"I can recommend Baby's Own Tablets to all mothers who have cross or delicate children. I do not know how I could get along without them. Mother, isn't it worth your while to give this medicine just one trial? If your medicine dealer does not keep the Tablets, send 25 cents to The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont., and the Tablets will be sent by mail post paid."

HOW A SNAKE MOVES.

Now any one who has looked at the skeleton of a snake—and it is really a beautiful object—will have been struck by the great number of ribs, which may be as many as ten hundred and fifty pairs. In these lies the secret of the ability of the serpent to do some of these wonderful things. The lower end of each rib is connected with one of the broad scales that run along the under side of a snake, and when a rib is twisted slowly backward, it pushes on the scale, the edge of the scale catches on the ground or whatever object his snakeship may be resting on, and the body of the snake is pushed just a little bit forward. Of course, each rib moves the body but a mere trifle; but where the ribs are so many, and they are moved after another, the result is that the snake moves slowly but steadily ahead.—From Nature and Science, in April St. Nicholas.
