

NEW YEAR'S DAY.

New Year's day was kept up with great life and spirit by the Officers of the garrison of Fredericton, the Commandant Lieut. Col. Maxwell, K. H. 85th Regt. having intimated a wish that the officers should attend him, to wait in a body upon His Excellency Sir John Harvey; their sleighs drew up in the square at 1-4 before 12 o'clock, and on the bunting sound, drove off in splendid style, the gallant Colonel driving unicorn, and leading the van, immediately followed by the officers of the staff, and the rest in regular succession, dashing on at a snacking pace, and forming altogether with varied trappings, and ornamental coverings a gay pageant, the whole cavalcade being conducted by the sound of the bugle, and like a column en route, conforming to the different windings and turnings of its head. Fancy for a moment seized possession of us, and we pictured to ourselves the gallant chief leading them on to victory!

After having paid their respects to His Excellency, by whom they were graciously received, the Cortege following the lead, and taking a circuit round the town returned to their Barracks, where the gallant Colonel on alighting informed the Officers that it was his intention to visit the Regimental school at 2 o'clock, where an excellent dinner and other entertainments had been prepared for the children, and where he hoped to meet them, and any of their friends, who might like inclined to witness so interesting a spectacle.

At 2 o'clock, the Drums and Fifes beating the "Roast Beef of Old England," announced to the hungry maws of the Juvenile crew, that the hour for commencing operations had arrived; and the spectators principally composed of the fair sex having assembled, the gallant Colonel entered the Hall, amidst the vociferous acclamations of the children, as soon as the uproar caused by this spontaneous expression of their feelings had subsided, a remarkably fine Boy named Moran, only 11 years of age rose and repeated the following address, in a clear and audible voice:

"We cannot allow this Festival to pass, without returning, on the part of the Schools of the 85th Regiment, our most grateful thanks to our kind, and most esteemed and beloved Colonel MAXWELL, for this and all his other marks of kindness—not only in contributing to our gratification at the commencement of a New Year, but also for his constant and fatherly superintendance of our schools, both in the week and on the Sabbath; and we bless God, who has, by his kind Providence, placed over us so kind and vigilant a Benefactor, and pray, that he may long be spared to watch over us; and to enjoy, with his beloved family, many, many happy New Years."

On his sitting down an intelligent and pretty little girl named Creighton only 10 years of age, stood up, and with great ease and self-possession, spoke as follows:

"We beg most thankfully to add our very grateful thanks to our kind benefactor, Mrs. CARMICHAEL, who has at all times given her devoted attention to the schools of the Regiment, not sparing herself either under the burning influence of the climate of the West Indies, or the chilling cold of the Northern blast—and we most heartily wish her, and all those dear to her the enjoyment of many happy years."

Lieutenant Colonel Maxwell not willing to detain them from their dinner, spoke but a few words, which however were full of feeling and greatly to the purpose. He, as well as Major Cairnes and the Ladies seemed deeply affected. The latter wept, and we thought we could discover a tear trickling down a veteran cheek. The Reverend Archdeacon Coster who as Garrison Chaplain was present, read an impressive grace, and the signal being given, the eager expectants fell to in earnest,

"Deal take the hindmost on they drive," and fine opportunity had they for a display of their gastronomic powers, for a greater profusion of good things never appeared on any table. There was a lavish abundance of boiled, baked, roast, fried, and stewed dishes, together with all sorts of pastry, pies, tarts and cakes, with their great chieftain Plum-pudding raising his welcome face above all, add to this a variety of sweetmeats of the Lollypop family; and other detectable et ceteras. And some idea of this banquet may be conceived.

The room and the tables were tastefully decorated. The Band played in an adjoining room and as there was a great display of beauty amongst the fair visitants, the whole formed a delightful lounge. Pleasure and mirth beamed on the countenances of the happy children. This was again reflected from the eyes of the sensitive fair ones, all present caught the contagion, and smiles and glances were reciprocally shot forth, to delight the hearts of lovely nymphs and faithful swains.

After the youngsters had well tucked in, the health of their beloved Colonel was proposed and drunk, as well as the sons of St. Andrew themselves could have done it, with the greatest enthusiasm, and he returned thanks, concluding with a fervent prayer for their health and happiness, and expressing a wish that he might long continue in command of the Regt. and promote many such festivals.

Major Cairnes also returned thanks in a neat and appropriate speech, for his health, which was drunk with great applause.

The Major had interested himself much on the occasion, and it was a pleasing contrast to view the tall and manly form of the veteran, stooping over the children, carving and helping them to all the good things provided.

After the dinner, the tables were cleared away; one of the soldiers played the fiddle, and as merry a dance was struck up as ever the Limerick Races could boast—old and young joining in the fun, and "humouring the music" in every possible way.—Heel and toe, shuffle the brogue, Highland Fling—in a word— "Horripipes, jigs, strathspeys and reels, "Put life and mettle in their heels," And we know not how long they kept it up, for we left it delighted at all we had witnessed, and quite convinced that such incentives to good conduct were not thrown away on any of the little people, and that they will only work the harder throughout the present year to merit a return of such generosity. We must not omit a remark that, all the children were nicely clothed, which not only reflects great credit upon Colonel Maxwell, and all the members of the Regiment, who patronise the institution, but upon their parents, who took such pride in seeing them comfortable and respectable.

GREAT STORM.
The American papers received during the week contain lengthy details of a tremendous storm which on Sunday the 15th December swept with terrific violence from New York over the greater portion of the New England States. The loss of life and property has been very great at Gloucester, in Massachusetts. Twenty lives are ascertained to have been lost, twenty-two total wrecks, and 32 vessels dismantled. In many parts along the coast, and in the interior of the country, the damage done by the storm is described as being almost without precedent, and no less than forty lives are already estimated as having been lost in different parts along the coast and the country.

RE-OPENING OF THE WESLEYAN CHAPEL.
We are requested to state, that the Wesleyan Chapel in this town having recently been enlarged, will be re-opened for public worship tomorrow. Services to commence at 11, 3, and 6 o'clock. The Rev. Messrs. Bushy, Smallwood and Strong, are expected to preach. Collections toward defraying the expenses of the enlargement will be taken up after each service. In order to accommodate such persons as may not have had sittings in the Chapel hitherto, all the new pews, and a number of the old ones, will, for the day, be thrown open to the public. On Monday at 10 o'clock the new pews will be sold at public auction.—Terms as sale.

FOR THE SENTINEL.

Mr. Editor,
Having been induced to purchase several tickets for a concert given some time ago in Fredericton, I have some curiosity to learn the manner in which the proceeds of that affair have been disposed of, particularly as I was assured at the time that a portion of the funds were to be appropriated for charitable purposes, not having heard of any charitable fund being augmented by my subscription, I trust I shall not be considered intrusive in thus asking for information, on a point of which I am ignorant, as are also other charitably disposed persons who on that occasion contributed their mite for the furtherance of a laudable purpose.
