On our last page will be found an extract from The Letter Bag of the Great Western, the perusal of which will afford pleasure to our readers. The character of the fair Quakeress, altho' not original is correctly drawn; and the amiable and condescending demeanour of a person of high breeding, must have recommended itself strongly to an author, recommended itself strongly to an author, who was brought up in the village of Windsor, where society has been split and spoiled by various and absurd distinctions.

We omitted to notice in our last, that on introducing a Report, Mr. Fisher explained,—with reference to the report of a debate, which appeared in a former number of this paper, where we understand him to say, that the surplus of the Civil List, would be increased by the salary of the Secretary,—"That in the event of the death of the Secretary, or a change taking place in any of the officers, whose salaries were chargeable on the civil list, the surplus would be encreased by a reduction of the salaries; that he never had advocated a reduction of the salary of any existing incumbent, though he was anxious where their emoluments were derivable from fees, in whole or in part, such fees should be commuted; and the only We omitted to notice in our last, that on insuch fees should be commuted; and the only instance in which the House had altered the salary of an incumbent, he had opposed, because they appeared to be actuated more by personal consideration than from principle."

By the St. Andrews Herald we perceive the day was kept much in the same manner as was anticipated, and that every thing was conducted with harmony and decorum.

Brunswick and Nova Scotia Land Company, discussion, the following Resolution was to close the Session with the following

The following is the speech of Mr. FISHER on the Bill for providing payment to the members of the Legislative Council, which we were unable to publish with the remainder of the Debate:

Mr. FISHER had voted for the introduction of the Bill on a former day out of courtesy to the other House, as it related to that House, and not from any abatement of the conviction in his mind, that it ought not to pass. If he consulted his feelings on the occasion, he would vote for the bill, for some of the gentlemen it affected were his best friends. The hon, member for Charlotte, Mr. Brown, appeared to think it was a mere question of expediency; he might as well say that the existence of the other branch was a mere question of expediency. The principle of pay as applied to this House could not be applied to the other. This was the democracy, and unless the expenses of members were paid, it would be impossible for the country to exercise a free choice in the selection of representatives. There might be and often were, men well qualified to discharge the duties of members of this House, whom the constituency would elect; but whose ciscumstances would not admit of their serving at their own expence, consequently pay was necessary to ensure the services of such men, and to avoid the necessity of the electors choosing another description of persons. The same reason did not apply at all to the middle branch; that was supposed to contain the aristocracy. Indeed that principle formed an important ingredient in its composition if constitutionally viewed. He Mr. F. disliked this Bill upon general principles, and he disliked it for its invidious character, for it was partial it its application. The country had provided Legislative Councillors for fifty years with your results of the New Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with your results of mostly provided that the results of the New Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the aggregate of mostly provided that the results of the New Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the aggregate of mostly provided that the results of the New Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the aggregate of mostly provided the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the provided that the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative Councillors for fifty years with the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislative for the new Brunswick Segiment of Artillegislativ second branch was supposed to consist of gentle-men representing all the great interests in the country, and not to be influenced by a local and sectional feeling, that the mere county selection would foster. He had recommended in his Despatch to Sir Colin Campbell, that the Councillors should be selected from towns and from the rural districts. So far as his knowledge extended, he was quite satisfied Councillors could be found in every section of the Province whose means would enable them to serve without pay, and whose appointment would give satisfaction to the country. Paying the Council might have the effect of introducing persons into that body, who would seek after the situation for the sake of remuneration, and by this means lead to much greater evil than good. To preserve the first constitutional balance, the members of the Legislative branch should be independent in ell-generated of the present o pendent in all respects; and if they were so, no pay was requisite. Some hon, members had expressed themselves dissatisfied with most of the late appointments to seats at that Board, and had at the same time refused any measure, defining the qualification of Councillors, on the personal consideration than from principle."

Extract of a Letter from St. Andrews.

In honor of the Queen's marriage we are to have a Ball on Wednesday evening next—a regatta in the morning—the United States Cutter is to be here, and her boats are to row against some of ours, manned by our Pilots. The Indians are to assemble, and to try the speed of their cances.

fining the qualification of Councillors, on the ground that they had every confidence in the Executive. This appeared curious reasoning to express dissatisfaction and approbation in the same breath.—To complain of an evil and refuse to provide a remedy. The most ludicrous argument that had been urged in favour of the Bill, was that the Council had agreed to the grant to the Baptist Seminary, and the Delegation. As this Bill only provided pay for part, he supposed their cances. dians are to assemble, and to try the speed of their canoes.

A hogshead of porter and lots of roast beef and bread for the poor, and power to fire a royal salute in honor of the day, are provided by subscription, and the whole town is to be enlivened by flags placed at several points. ### SPEECH:

Mr. President, and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council. Mr. Spéaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,

I offer you my hearty congratulations upon the proceedings of the Session, which have been marked not only by a close attention to the business of the Country, but by if possible, an increased disposition on the part of each Branch of the Legislature to carry on the duties of Legislation in a spirit of perfect good understanding with the other. Possessing a Legislature animated by such dispositions and composed of men practically and throughly versed in what its true interests consist,—enjoying with these terms, immediate proceedings be taken by the Crown Officers for the recovery of Brunswick cannot fail, under the protecting care of Divine Providence, to be carried rap-

In the name of the Queen I thank you for the liberality which has characterised your Grants and Appropriations for the Public Service, and please present the same for adjustment; and all parties. be my earnest endeavour in carrying them into effect, to make them, to the utmost extent, available for the beneficial purposes for which they are intended.

Mr. President, and Honorable Gentlemen of the Legislative Council,

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the House of Assembly,
The prospect of any further disturbance with the Neighbouring States appears to have greatly diminished, if not wholly to have vanished, in consequence of the prudent course adopted by our more immediate Neighbours of Maine, in having placed the conduct of the Boundary Dispute wholly in the hands of the General Go pily subsisting between two of the greatest and most enlightened Nations of the world, and in the maintenance of which their best interests are acknowledged mutually to consist, will not be suffered to be disturbed, or interrupted on light or insufficient grounds.

In now taking my leave of you, therefore, I do so in the confident hope that nothing may occur, during the Recess, calculated to impair the prosperous and satisfactory state of Public Affairs under which we separate.
