

Wool Is Favored As Material For New Clothes For Spring

Can Be Used For Garments For Day or Evening Wear.

Wool-gather to your hearts' content this spring, ladies. At home or abroad you will want to wrap yourself in wool. You will be content to stay in it from daylight until dark and maybe even later, for some of the woollens are so sheer and beautiful in texture that they are worthy of lavish afterdark entertainment.

A visit to any large store, wholesale or retail, where woollens are on display brings genuine enjoyment. The eyes may feast on colors and weaves; the hand luxuriates in softness and sheerness of texture. To see and to touch is to be convinced of the importance of woollens in the spring and summer mode.

The American manufacturer has put his best efforts into the creation of very wearable fabrics unusually fine in quality. For the sober type of suit that has elegance there is a fine twill. You remember your mother's best suit was generally of twill? Well, here is the trusted friend back again in a better edition. If this were an era of "Sunday suits" you would consider twill for yours, too; that is, if you like monotonous, for it comes in that dark blue that is a perennial spring favorite, and in black, grey and grege.

But since this is a sporting era when you don one suit for luncheon and tea, or town and country the manufacturers have also turned out fine rough tweeds that are perfect for the English sport type of suit, and these fabrics, with their homespun weaves, their checks and their chevrons, run a pretty close second to their English and Scotch cousins, the Lin-

The WOMAN'S PAGE

WOMEN HEED PRINCE

Needles and thimbles displace drivers and niblicks once a week in the women's section of the North Middlesex Golf Club, England. For two hours each Monday women members meet to make clothes for the poor and jobless. More than 140 new garments were made in the first fortnight. The idea for the sewing afternoon resulted from a speech of the Prince of Wales, who said: "If only every woman would work two hours a week for the Personal League, what a marvellous response there would be."

tons and Harrises, Glenurquharts and Cumberlands. For classic tailor makes they have turned their attention to the mannish type of suitings with a firm surface, the kind that makes one feel well-groomed in every line.

SALADS

After a heavy main course the salad should be something crisp, light and refreshing. A plain green salad with a piquant French dressing, is always a good choice, or if you did not serve a fruit course to start with, by all means consider the virtues of a few chilled grapefruit or orange sections, on crisp lettuce. Half a preserved pear with its cavity filled with that smooth white cream cheese or a cottage cheese beaten up with a little cream and salt, is good.

Germans consume, per head of the population, 156.9 pounds of meat and 216 pints of beer every year.

Monkey Fur Used As Dress Trimming

Simian Tribe Contributes Its Coat To Latest Fashions.

There's monkey business in the new spring mode—that is, monkey fur is being used as a trimming.

Epaulets of the long silky fur were used on a suit displayed in a Michigan Avenue shop window to give that new squared-off look to the shoulder line. Also, monkey fur was used to make an elbow length cape to be worn either with a suit or a coat now and dresses later. It was tied with patent leather ribbon that matched the slick gloss of the fur.

And speaking of furs, they are much in vogue for spring. Scarves of fox, stone marten, sable and kolinsky of two, four or six skins that can be worn twined around the neck or thrown over the shoulders, are popular.

There are any number of jackets for spring wear. They are developed in Jap weasel, bluefox kidskin, mauve kidskin and American broadtail in addition to the lapin jackets, which are still holding their popularity. In style these jackets range from the demure to the sophisticated. They may be hip length or brief Eton affairs. Capes of fur add a debonaire and are very smart.

WHAT ONE GIRL WORE?

By BETTY BROWLEE

We talked about coats earlier in the season and we're going to talk about them again this week. If you have shopped for your spring coat you know what a wide variety of reasonable garments are available this season.

This is one spring when the new coat to be smart did not necessarily have to have fur trimmings. Of course, as always, there were the heavily-furred coats trimmed with fur that are smart as well as expensive.

The girl whose budget is limited should never try to buy a fox-trimmed coat. The fur is sure to be inferior in quality and will almost certainly wear poorly.

Many of the new coats are entirely untrimmed and manage to be as striking as any we have seen. Some reveal small touches of pique trimming—smart and practical since it can be laundered.

One fur that won popularity on the more inexpensive coats is gal-yak. It is used effectively to fashion collars, separate scarves, or for sleeve trimming.

Personally we think that the coat without fur trimming is a very sensible choice for spring. When the warm days roll around it isn't so very comfortable to have a fur scarf around one's neck—particularly if it is a scarf that cannot be detached.

Extremely simple and very effective is the coat sketched today. Of pin-striped tweed in a new greyish-brown shade, it uses its fabric in reverse fashion to form the shoulders and collar. White pique edging emphasizes the shoulder width. A wide brown suede belt nips in the waist properly and there are sporty slit pockets.

Gland Secret At London Hospital Cures Bow Legs

Summer Styles

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE in the British film, "Lord Camber's Ladies," gives an early glimpse of summer styles. In this one, the long gloves of black net are an effective touch.

Believe Four Glands Contain Bone Building Supplies of the Body.

A gland secret which reveals the cure for bow-legs, rickets and weak bones is said to have been discovered by a physician while treating a young woman at the London Hospital, Whitechapel. When the patient was admitted to the hospital, it is stated, her bones were so bent and weak that they threatened to collapse.

The young woman in question was operated upon and the tiny parathyroid glands in her neck were found to be diseased. The glands were treated, and the woman is now making good progress. Further observations by the physician led to the discovery that the four glands control the bone-building supplies of the body.

Captain Harry L. Milson, secretary of the hospital, told the following about the case:

"The London Hospital is recognized as one of the foremost hospitals for the treatment of bone diseases, and patients come to us from far and near. The physician's name cannot be disclosed, but this discovery is important. Hitherto the purpose of these glands has been unknown. It now appears that the parathyroid glands ensure that the amount of calcium in the body is maintained at a correct level. When the glands become diseased calcium is taken from the bones, which are thereby weakened."

For several years, Dr. J. B. Collip of McGill University, Montreal—who, in conjunction with Dr. F. G. Banting, produced insulin for the treatment of diabetes—has been trying to find the secret of the glands.

MODERN WOMAN'S BEAUTY AIDS SUPPLIED BY MINES

Modern woman is dependent on the mineral kingdom for most of her beauty aids and many articles of personal adornment. The base of face powder is talc, a soft, pearly mineral, and another powder, titanium oxide, which makes the talc stick, is likewise a mineral product, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Rouge is made from hematite, a very pure iron ore, and even the mud pack of the beauty parlor is made up of a volcanic ash. The face powder may be perfumed by a synthetic scent from coal-tar products, and the dyes of her garments have the same origin, while aluminium is used to set the dye. Silk stockings may contain as much as 60 per cent of tin to give them weight and chromium is used to tan the leather for her shoes and sulphur in making the rubber heels.
