RADIO NOTES

Barbara Maurel will avoid passing anyone on a staircase.

Al Jolson, heard often on the NBC networks, is rated by fellow performers as one of the stage's most liberal contributors.

Asked to relate his favorite anecdote, Paul Whiteman told in the NBC studios about a man three sheets in the wind who halted on a bridge on his way home late at night. Leaning over the rail, he was gazing fascinatedly at the reflection of the moon on the water when a policeman appeared. "Say of-fisher," he asked, "what's that down there?" "That is the moon," said the cop. "For the love of Pete," exclaimed the souse, "how did I get way up here?"
