

Boy, Aged 13 Years Runs Cinema For Young Children

Must Move From Ramsgate
Cellar; Seeks New Hall.

Ramsgate.—Eddie Oliver, 13-year-old cinema proprietor, operator, director, and general manager, is seeking a new hall in which to continue his penny program, now stopped through the decision of the local magistrates.

The underground room in which for three years he had given penny performances "continuous from 6.00 p.m. till 8.00 p.m.—matinees every Saturday 2.00 p.m. till 4.00 p.m.," did not comply with rules and regulations. So Eddie is seeking new pastures, more grandiose and not offensive to the law.

"It has always been my ambition to be a cinema operator," he told a reporter. "I actually started five years ago when I gave magic-lantern shows in my bedroom.

"With money I obtained by selling my magic lantern and a gramophone I had won I was able to buy a small second-hand projector. Then I started giving shows, and during the past three years 16,010 children have paid to see the films. A number of adults have also been to see my shows.

"At first I had to turn the handle of my projector for two hours every night until I had saved up enough money to buy a motor. I have now got two projectors."

Fascinated with his new-found hobby, Eddie saved every copper he could scrape up and bought a camera. With it he took local "shots" and projected them on his screen, in addition to "feature" films which he bought.

"Although my cinema has been closed the children keep coming round to ask when the pictures will be shown again," he explained.

"As soon as I can find a hall which has been passed by the local authority I intend to give the children their penny pictures once more. I am going to buy a bigger projector and new films and when I get enough money I shall try to show talkie pictures.

FORMER CHAMBERMAID MAY BECOME A REAL QUEEN

Tokio. — The beautiful young daughter of a Moslem chieftain in Chinese Turkestan may be the innocent cause of Japan acquiring another colony. And a princess who was once a chambermaid may share its throne.

Discontent arose when a Buddhist governor of Khotan, one of the six districts of Turkestan, appointed by the government of Nanking, demanded the hand of the daughter of a Moslem chief.

The Moslems rebelled, drove him out and set up a government of their own at Kashgar. But anarchy has resulted.

General Araki, the war minister of Japan, saw his opportunity. Prince Abdul Kerim, grandson of the last sultan of Turkey, was staying in Tokio.

General Araki "offered" him the governorship of Turkestan. Abdul Kerim, who has been wandering round the east looking for a job since his father disinherited him, gladly accepted.

Abdul Kerim is reported to be on his way to Sin-Kiang, accompanied by his wife, Princess Niamat. When Abdul first met her she was a Sabal-Fawaf, a Syrian chambermaid in his father's household in Damascus.

Mammoth Tusks Brought To Light In Fisherman's Net

Sea Has Mysteries as Well as That of Loch Ness.

London.—That the sea has mysteries as curious as those of Loch Ness is evident from the recent experience of one of the Aberdeen trawlers of the Mac Fisheries Ltd., fishing in deep water in the North Sea off the Shetland Islands. When the trawl-net was hauled aboard and emptied the fishermen discovered, to their amazement, that they had raised from the sea-bed two large tusks of strange appearance.

The skipper, realizing that his catch might be of more than usual interest, landed the tusks with due care and they were submitted to the Regius professor of natural history at Aberdeen University. He states that these tusks are relics of the mammoth or shaggy elephant, which was in existence in Europe during the great ice age and which has been extinct for about 50,000 years. The tusks may have floated into the North Sea, frozen in an iceberg drifting down from the Arctic regions, and have fallen to the bottom of the sea when the ice melted; or they may be remains of mammoths which lived on the great plain once existing as dry land where the North Sea now is.

For their better preservation, the tusks have been scientifically treated and mounted, and are now in the offices of the owners of the trawler which brought them to light.

Laborers Work With Lords For Charity Funds

Marquis of Bath's Family in Play With Villagers on Estate.

Longleat. — The Marquis of Bath and his son and daughters—Lord Weymouth, M.P.; Lady Nunburnholme and Lady Kathleen Stanley—took part in a non-stop variety show in the village hall on the family's estate in Wiltshire.

Lord Bath's daughter-in-law, Lady Weymouth, and Colonel Oliver Stanley, his son-in-law, and grand-children of the marquis were also in the cast, acting with villagers.

Lords and laborers were in the audience which packed the hall.

In a comedy turn with Lord and Lady Weymouth and Lady Nunburnholme, Colonel Stanley appeared as "the big bad wolf." The others, masked, were the docile inhabitants of a farm.

Children appeared in tableaux. One of the most striking depict-

PLAY "LUCKY" Over CFBO Every Evening (Except Saturday and Sunday) at 6.00 o'clock

L	U	C	K	Y

• At 6.00 o'clock each night (Saturday and Sunday excepted) get your copy of "The Maritime Broadcaster," turn to this page and listen in to CFBO, when the game will proceed. Numbers under the various letters will be called out. When a number is called under the letter corresponding to your number under that letter, place a button or some article over the number. As soon as you have covered all the five figures telephone 3-3674 and say "Lucky"! Your number will be checked and verified and you will be asked to read a part of an advertisement appearing in "The Broadcaster" that you will have with you, which must be the current issue. If it is found that you cannot comply with the conditions, the game will proceed until a winner is declared.

• The first one telephoning in "Lucky" and complying with the conditions above mentioned will be the winner. There will be one winner each evening. You may win as often as you are successful in covering your telephone number, and are the first to telephone 3-3674.

• NOTE—This contest is eligible to telephones in residences only. To emphasize this and make it perfectly clear, these telephones must be so designated in the telephone book with the letter "R" or word "Residence." In other words, all telephone listings in the telephone book of July, 1933, pages 11 to 76 inclusive, which embrace "Greater Saint John," which have the letter "R" or the word "Residence" embodied, indicating it is a residential telephone, will be the only telephones that will be eligible to win "Lucky" prizes.

• The telephone number must be in the latest telephone book, or if anyone has a residence telephone not listed in the book, if they will telephone CFBO between 11.00 and 12.00 in the morning and give their telephone number, it will be checked with the Telephone Company and if it is found to be a residence telephone, it will then be listed and eligible.

• We ask you to please co-operate with us by observing the rules and we will all have a good time—and please do not telephone in until you have all the numbers covered. PLAY THE GAME.

USE THIS COPY of "The Broadcaster" in playing "LUCKY" for February 9th to February 15th, inclusive. The issue of February 16th for playing on February 16th to 22nd, inclusive
