

Liberals Losing Support Of Their Own Followers

Mud Slinging Tactics of the Opposition Helping Government Cause.

There is a trite saying that a person cannot play with mud and keep clean. After several weeks of campaigning, the Opposition party stand up in the mire, in which some of them have been wallowing, and throw handfuls of mud in the direction of the Government candidates. While denying all connection with communists and red organizations, party workers proceed to circulate literature with a decided red tinge. Their chief campaign material is an attempt to arouse the baser instincts. In many instances they have not shown any of those qualities, which are usually associated with statesmanship.

But they are defeating their own plans by such tactics. Votes, which normally they would secure, are being withheld and in many cases groups of Liberal workers have withdrawn from the party organizations.

It is most regrettable that men who offer themselves for such high positions, as members of the Legislature, would be guilty of such unfair tactics, especially the spreading of false statements and statements that are intended to besmirch the characters of their opponents.

If New Brunswick should happen to select such men as their leaders, then this province is surely going on the rocks.

The Government on the other hand is confining its campaign to placing before the people the people the records of the Tilley Administration and they have only launched into personalities when it was necessary to answer some statement of the Opposition. Many former Liberals have given their support to Mr. Tilley and his colleagues, fully realizing that with the Government back in power the affairs of this province will be conducted with dignity and a business-like management of public affairs in the best interests of the people of the province.

The News On Review

As a protest against the appropriation of their lands for use as a railway right-of-way, 1,000 villagers of a district near Nanking, China, lay on the newly laid tracks and forced all traffic to suspend. They refused to move until they were compensated for land seized. The railway company finally yielded.

Discovery of a substitute for gasoline, said to be cheaper and more efficient for use in automobiles, is claimed by Fang Cheng, chairman of the Department of Chemistry in the College of Engineering in the National University of Peiping. The substitute, designated as a "modified alcohol" was discovered by Mr. Fang after working for a formula since 1927.

The Austrian Government has taken preliminary steps to increase its army in line with Adolf Hitler's apparently successful scrapping of military clauses of the Versailles treaty. A decree requiring that everyone living in Austria be registered was tentatively approved. Persons of both sexes and of all ages, including foreigners, would be obliged to register and to indicate what qualifications they have for serving the country. At the same time the cabinet ordered wholesale promotions in the federal army to create officers for an enlarged military program.

To transfer the site of executions from provincial jails to penitentiaries would require a change of law, it was learned at the justice department at Ottawa. The matter had been brought up in Parliament from time to time but never seriously considered. An execution in a jail is considered a temporary affair and has an effect locally, such executions taking place in the district where the crime was committed, an official said. The scaffold is erected, the execution takes place and there is nothing left to mark a morbid spot nor does any morbid interest remain as would be the case of a permanent place of execution in a penitentiary.

An important increase in the Italian air force by July 1 and transfer of an army corps to Bolzano, near the famed Brenner Pass—the gateway from Austria—was announced recently. There will be 288 military pilots added to the 1,755 now in the air force by the first of the month. Supplementary personnel such as service officers and specialists likewise is to be increased. No details were made public concerning the basing of the army corps at the northern frontier posts. The announcement limited itself to a statement that a corps formally stationed at Verona was being transferred to Bozano and one at Florence transferred to Verona.
