Home Canned Meat Can Be Put Up As Easily As Fruits

Bulletin on This Subject May Be Obtained from Ottawa.

By Press and Publicity Division, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, Ontario.

The home preservation of poultry, fresh meats, fish, and soups is one of the high arts of the efficient housewife who is aware that these commodities may be canned as successfully as fruits and vegetables. Besides giving a supply of fresh meat for emergency occasions, the canning of some of the meat butchered on the farm is a right step in the way of economy. Beef which might otherwise be used more freely than necessary at the time of killing can be saved for use in seasons when fresh meat is difficult to obtain. In all successful canning operations, there are many points to remember, but, with the appearance of a bulletin of the Dominion Department of Agriculture on the subject, much unnecessary anxiety has been obviated. This publication is named "Home Preservation of Meats, Poultry, Fish and Soups" and contains full information on what to do in canning fresh meat, poultry, corned beef, fish, chicken stock soup, chicken with rice, vegetable soup, in making farm sausages and head cheese, and in curing meat by the brine cure, by the dry salt cure, and by smoking. Some hints are also given on the storing of meat. There is now on the market a smoke-treated salt, manufactured to complete the smoking and curing in one operation. It is a brown-colored substance consisting of common salt to which smoke has been added by means of a patent process. The Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa made an edible test comparison between meat smoked with the smoke-salt and meat treated by the ordinary dry and brine salt cures and found all systems equally desirable.

RESIGNATION

Golfer (in bad trouble)—"What shall I do now, caddie?"
 Caddie (sourly) — "Anything you like, sir. I'm too late to go to the pictures now, so I'm in no 'urry."
