Make up a sentence of not more than five words using words that are to be found in advertisements in this paper. The words must be English words to be found in the dictionary. Proper names, hyphenated words and coined words are not eligible. The sentence must make sense as a proper sentence. For instance, to say "Maritime pickles are always superiority" would be disqualified as not being properly constructed. If instead of the word "superiority" the word "superior" was used it would be a proper sentence, or such a word even as "bituminous" would be a complete sentence. While the latter word would make the sentence rather ridiculous it would nevertheless be termed a complete or proper sentence. The sentence may be as ridiculous as you like to make it so long as it is a proper sentence. Below you will find a chart giving the value of each letter in the alphabet.

Contestants will use the blank chart below in filling in their answers; putting in the name of the advertiser from whose advertisement the word is taken and place the letters contained in the words in the squares, and the total tally in the last column. The object being to pick out words that will make a correct sentence whose letter values will total the highest score. Words taken from advertisements of Maritime manufacturers will carry a 15% bonus value.

Send your answers to TALLY, Maritime Broadcaster, 22 Canterbury Street, Saint John, N. B. Answers to this week's Tally must be in this office not later than FRIDAY, May 8th, 1936. Decision of the judges must be accepted as final. Winner of this week's contest will be published in the issue of May 15th, 1936.

KEY TO THIS WEEK'S LETTER VALUE

The accompanying table (on the right) shows the relative value in Tally points of the 26 letters of the alphabet. The number appearing under each letter is the point-value of that particular letter.

The value of each letter in points is changed occasionally. For that reason it is important that you check these values each week. For example: The value of the letter "A" is 8 points. The following week the same letter may be valued at only 2 points, and so on all through the alphabet.

Mr. Jones: It was pretty rough on me to pay five hundred dollars for an operation that was entirely unnecessary.

Surgeon: But it was necessary. You see, Dr. Slicer and I had a little bet on. He said you had an enlarged appendix and I said you hadn't. There was only one way to decide it. I won.

THE EXCEPTION

The professor of law had been talking steadily for more than an hour, and his class was becoming a trifle restless.

"Take any article, for instance," he droned on. "When it is bought it goes to the buyer-"

"What about coal?" interposed a weary voice.

The professor gazed over his glasses at the interrupter. "Well," he snapped, "what about it?" "When coal's bought, doesn't it go to the cellar?' asked the youthful student.
