Kate Carves Bird

"Have a slice of white meat?" asks our favorite airwaves singer, KATE SMITH, as she proceeds to serve this delicious turkey. The camera caught her, above, in the act. It is a dish fit for a queen-of-the-airwaves, and who more than Kate deserves the title? Kate is heard currently over CBS each Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday at 8.30 p.m., A.S.T.

LATEST SLANG ON CAMPUS

Have you a little drip in your home? No? A nyaa, then, or a stooze? You have the condolences of the crowd if you have the two first named, but congratulations are in order if you have a stooze or possess a friend who is one.

A "drip," my dear, is the latest campus slang for a flat tire—a bore—an utterly uninteresting person. A nyaa is a little worse than a drip. A nyaa is what may be called an active bore, an offensive bore. A person can be like that, so can a party, or even a football game. A nyaa simply is no fun at all.

But a stooze, now, is another matter. A stooze, male or female, is a person who can be depended upon to back you to the limit, whether it be in your latest dodging of the campus rules, or your weakness for chocolate layer cake. A stooze is a buddy, and she is never a drip and never, never a nyaa.
