England's war resources,

(From the Innolan Times.)

Finding rings should be entertained in any quarters as to the real capacity of this country to maintain on foot a free representation on foot a free representation of the war in which it is engentle and the pennitural of the war in which it is engentle and the pennitural of the war in which it is engentle and the case. We know gathered strength across the test perfectly and authors and marked the decided of the war in which it is engentle and the case. We know commend and the case where the adolately cannot are interested of peace, and lad been taken of the pennitural of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war in the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the peace of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the peace of the war interested of peace, and lad been taken of the peace of the war in the peace of the peace build further rely upon the services of 288, 000 local militia and 65,000 yeomanry calvary. The total sum of these numbers is 813,000. Now, in the year 1851, when the last census was taken, the population of Great Britain was 21,121,967, so that allowing for increase since that time, we have probably a population at the present moment not inuchless than double that of 1813. The rest of the problem we may safely leave our readers to work out. e may safely leave our readers to work out

we may safely leave our readers to work out for themselves.

It cannot, however, be any matter for surprise that even with these resources the numbers of a British army in any particular field bers of a British army in any particular field bers of a British army in any particular field bers of a British army in any particular field supplied on liberal terms.

Among many excellent bits of experience Books, Stationery, and works to the following lesson in civility;

With respect even to the special and limited point of milime of the neglect and rudeness experienced tary duties, see how extensive is our range. In Europe we are at Gibraltar, Malta, and the Ionian Islands. In Asia the draught upon our levies is enormous. Our troops have to point in the city towards which they are proposed in the streets. They asserted, in particular, that as often as they requested directions to any point in the city towards which they are proour levies is enormhole. Our troops are a point in the city owards which all the point in the ci the south, and, as our yesterday's impression been exceedingly different; that I had never informed the public, we have found out a new enemy in the North. No fewer than 72 men, who, if they were not of British blood, were serving in the British than uniform and under the British flag, fell in a conflict with the natives British flag, fell in a conflict with the natives. British flag, fell in a conflict with the hadres of some barbarous village, the very stituation of which it would be a puzzle to trace. All this while, over and above the demands of North America, there are the fevers of the Carribbean Sea at work upon our West Indian garrisons, and now the treasures of Australia, arrisons, and now the treasures of Australia, the product of the traces of the conflict of the product of the product of the product of the public o
