True Worship. The ends for which we assemble in the house of God are two-to worship God, and to listen to religious instructions. The public worship of God is the chief and most sacred purpose of every religious assembly of Christians. Let it here be remembered that it is not the uttering, or the hearing of certain words that constitutes the worship of the Almighty. It is the heart that praises or prays. If the heart accompany not the words that are spoken or heard, we offer the sacrifice of fool By the inattentive thought, and the giddy and wandering eye, we profane the temple of the Lord, and turn the appearance of devotion into insult and mockery. With regard to religious heaven, first transmitted to man by the origisometimes weaker, according to the mediums 22, a Valenciennes."

by which it is conveyed; but still, as far as the instructions delivered from the pulpit are illuminated by the ray from heaven, they are the truths of God, and ought to be received as such. Refinements of vain philosophy, drin-tricate subtelties of theological controversy, are undoubtedly not entitled to such regard. But when the great principles of natural or revealed religion are discussed ; when the im portant doctrines of the gospel concerning the life, and sufferings, and death of our blessed Redeemer, are displayed; or useful instructions regarding the regulation of life and the proper discharge of our several duties, are the bjects brought into view, it is not then the human speaker, but the divine authority that is to be regarded.

In the speaker, many imperfections and infirmities may be discovered. The discoveries of the gospel are represented in Scripture as a hidden treasure brought to light; but by the appointment of God, we have this treasure in earthen vessels. 2 Cor. iv. 7. It is not the spirit of curiosity that ought to bring us to Too often, it is to be feared, we assemble there merely as critics on the preacher, critics on his sentiments, his language, and his delivery. But such are not the dispositions which become us on so serious an occasion.— It is with humility, with fairness and candour, with an intention to improve ourselves in piety and virtue, with a view to make personal-application to our own character, that we ought to hear the word of God. When we enter the sacred temple, let us ever consider ourselves as creatures surrounded with darkness, seeing illuminations from heaven; as guilty creatures, imploring forgiveness from our Judge; as frail and mortal creatures, preparing for that eternal habitation into which we know not how soon we are to pass. If with such sentiments and impressions we join in the worship of God and the ordinances of religion, we may justly hope that they shall be accompanied to us with the Divine blessing. It is the express precept of God, not to for-men, women, and children, that they may hear, and that they may learn, and fear the Lord your God, and observe to do all the words of this law." Duet. xxxi. 12. "Enter his gates with thanksgiving, and his courts with praise Give unto the Lord the glory due to his name." Thus bath God commanded, and he never commanded, his people to seek his face in vain; for, where two or three are gathered together in his name, our Lord hath told us that he is in the midst of them. Matt. xviii. 20. God hath said that he loveth the gates of Zion more than all the dwellings of Jacob. Ps. lxxxvii. 2.-The prayer of the upright is his delight.-
