A DAY'S CASUALTIES.

FALL OF A RACING GRAND STAND—MANY PERSONS INJURED.

Collapse of a Bridge With Hundreds of Persons on It—Big Fire.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 5.—While 10,000 people sat in the new grand stand at the Buffalo Driving Park yesterday afternoon a section of the stand fell. The cause was a weak stairway which held forty or fifty people at the time. Undereath the stairs was a wine room, which had been crowded with people only a moment before. They were climbing back to their seats in the stand to witness the start of a race when the accident occurred. In caving in so suddenly the stairway took with it a section of the grand stand, and piled about sixty people, men, women and children, in a mass. Then the immense crowd stood up in their seats and rushed toward the stairway and then back from it again. In the stampede women fainted and were trampled upon and many jumped from the stand to the ground and in other ways contributed to the excitement. The stand was finally cleared and those who had fallen were extricated. Carriages took to their homes about forty men and women who were more or less injured in the fall or the rush or who suffered from the shock. Ambulances transferred a number of the injured to different hospitals.

ELKHART, Ind., July 5.—Yesterday afternoon, during the progress of a boat race on the St. Joseph river at Bristol, six hundred people were jammed on a three-span iron bridge. During the finish of an excited race, and while the crowd was cheering tremendously, the bridge gave way. A mass of humanity was precipitated into the water forty feet below. Thirty-eight persons received serious injuries, and it is feared many of them will die. The town was at once thrown into the wildest excitement. Physicians from Elkhart, Goshen, Laporte and other cities were telephoned for and went to the scene with all possible haste.

The unfortunates landed in the water amidst a mass of iron and wood framework. The groans and cries of men, women and children spurred those on shore to the work of rescue. Luckily the water was only five feet deep or many would have been drowned. The people in the water fought with each other for a place of vantage, or some means of escape from death. It was some time before effective aid could be given. As soon as possible, however, planks, ladders and ropes were secured. A dozen men waded out, and, helped by those on the bank, lifted the main girder, which held several people under the water. One by one the injured were brought to shore. Those living in Bristol were taken to their homes and others were removed to neighboring stores and houses, which were turned into hospitals.

WELLINGTON, Ohio, July 5.—All the business portion of the town and many residences were destroyed by fire last night.

A HORRIBLE SUICIDE.

STRATFORD, Ont, July 3.—Edmund E. Seeley, a gunsmith, committed suicide last evening by putting the muzzle of a double barreled gun to his forehead and pulling the trigger by means of a cord connected with his left foot. The top of his head was blown completely off, leaving nothing above the nose. Seeley had been in financial difficulties lately.

THREE FOOLS.

There was a business man who failed To win the longed-for prize. Of riches and prosperity; He did not advertise.

There was a lover once who died Quite wretched, I suppose, Because all through his life he was Too bashful to propose.

There was another man whose ways His neighbors greatly pained, Because he didn't know enough To go in when it rained.

All three were fools; but, worst of all, To everybody's eyes, Was he who was a business man And didn't advertise. —Somerville Journal.

A FOURTH OF JULY TRAGEDY

BOSTON THE SCENE OF A TERRIBLE AND FATAL RIOT.

'The Little Red School House Parade' the Cause of the Trouble—Crowd Attacks the Procession and a Desperate Fight Ensues—Men Shot Dead by a Parader—Others Injured.

BOSTON July 4.—One man was killed, one fatally wounded and several injured during the little red school house parade, in East Boston this afternoon. This parade was booked to move at 1.30, and the head of the column started from White street about on time. The column was headed by police, and policeman flanked both sides of it for one hundred yards. There were fully 300 policeman, under command of Deputy Pierce and Capt. Church. About 2,000 were in the parade. It was headed by a float bearing a facsimile of the regulation New England school house. In front were a number of men wearing sashes made of the stars and stripes, standing in the open doorway of the house was a tall figure representing Uncle Sam. On each side of the miniature building were three windows and in each window was a man reading a book. The school house was surmounted by the stars and stripes.

At the end of the procession, which was without police protection, came a barouche drawn by four grey horses, containing Mr and Mrs. O. C. Sullivan, H. E. Roberts and Mrs. F. J. Campbell. The carriage was profusely decorated with American flags. Mrs. F. J. Campbell wore an orange dress. When the rear of the procession was on Saratoga street, the crowd closed in. A drunken woman marched up to the rear of the carriage and made insulting remarks in a loud voice. One of the men pushed the woman back, when some men in the crowd fell upon the man with loud shouts. A milk can was thrown into the carriage and the occupants shouted for help. Albert E. Andrews, of Everett, standing on the sidewalk in the uniform of the Roxbury horse guards, armed with his sabre and a bright yellow plume in his helmet, caught the attention of the ladies in the carriage, and one of them called on him as a soldier for help. Andrews rushed into the thick of the fight, drawing his sabre as he ran. He waved the blade above his head and the crowd fell back, but in a second rushed upon the orange plume with a tremendous roar. Four men stood by Andrews, one brandishing two self-loading revolvers.

In a few minutes a terrible battle was raging. Andrews was driven up Saratoga street. Twice he fell and twice the man with the revolvers fired. It is probably the weapons contained blank cartridges, Andrews wielded the sabre but made only one cut, slashing off the nose of a young man named Stewart. When the fight began there were no policeman within a quarter of a mile of the scene and a messenger was sent for officers. Three mounted policeman were sent to the spot. Andrews and his supporters were nearly done for. Officer A. S. Bates had a number of teeth knocked out with a brick immediately after he reached the scene of the fight. The officers did considerable fighting, protecting Andrews with great difficulty until he reached his fathers house 449 Saratoga street, where he dashed under Bates horse and over the fence into the yard. The policeman held the crowd at bay for ten minutes more. Then 14 officers dashed to the rescue, clubbing right and left. Many heads were broken before the crowd went scurrying down Saratoga street.

Michael Dwyer was clubbed so severely that he is dying at the city hospital. Two arrests were made. The crowd made another attack on the line at Princeton street, but were easily dispersed. After the parade was dismissed, a small detachment of paraders was passing the Atlantic works, Border street, near Maverick when some persons in the crowd began hooting and hissing. Sticks and stones were thrown, whereupon a number of the paraders drew pistols and began indiscriminate firing. According to the testimony of an eye witness John Ross, one of the paraders, fired his pistol directly at John W. Wills, who is said to have been an on-looker. The bullet struck Wills above the right hip, passing into the abdomen and killing him. John Quirk sprang towards and tent over Wills, when a bullet grazed his right temple. Quirk claims Ross fired and shot at him. Patrick A. Kelly was injured in the back of the head. Ross and Harold G. Brown were arrested on suspicion. Many persons were held as witnesses. Ross lives in Cambridgeport. Wills lived in East Boston and was a longshoreman. The police formed guard about this detachment and escorted it to the ferry, where the paraders hid their badges and regalias and mingled with the crowd.

BLACKFOOT INDIANS THREATEN TO RISE.

TORONTO, July 4.—A report has reached Toronto that the braves on the Blackfoot reservation, near Gleichen, Northwest Territories are in a very ugly mood, and even goes so far as to threaten to murder all the whites on the reservation. The English church missionary, Rev. J. W. Tims, has been obliged to flee for his life. This is the reserve on which Frank Skynner, ration distributor, was killed last winter. Trouble has been brewing since the shooting of his murderer. The cause is hard to ascertain, the reasons that Indians give being very childish and indefinite.

NEWFOUNDLAND.

GOV. O'BRIEN WITHHOLDS HIS ASSENT TO THE REDUCTION OF SALARIES BILL.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., July 5.—The legislature was prorogued this afternoon. Gov. O'Brien assented to all the bills passed except the bill providing for a reduction of the salaries of the public officials, because it reduces the salary of the government from $21,000 to $7,000 and reduces the judges of the supreme court to $1,000 each. This action has been expected for several days. The governor reserves it for the royal assent. Full salaries will be continued to everybody if the bill is not assented to and this will interfere with the loan project recently arranged by Colonial Secretary Bond.
