PRETTY SMALL WORK.

The dismissal of Sheriff Irvine from office seems to be a pretty small piece of work; and, as Lord Dundreary sententiously observes, "Is one of those things that no fellow can understand." Are we approximating to the style of our neighbours over the line, and dismiss all our officials for every change in the government; or to please the whim of political factions? It does not appear that Mr.
 Irvine had in any way committed himself during his short tenure of office; yet he has been dismissed from that office, for no other apparent reason than to gratify the fancy of a political party, or as a set-off against the retirement from the government, of the member at whose hands he received the appointment. It must seem somewhat anomalous for the gentleman to be so summarily deprived of the office and it's emoluments, when his predecessor had retained both, for many years unchallenged; and, we cannot find any excuse for the ungracious act, when there is not even the very slight excitement of a county election to jeopardise the position of the political party now in the ascendant, and of which Mr. Irvine, has been a devout partisan.

We hear on all sides, opinion as to the why and the wherefore of this action on the part of the government; any one of which may be true, especially that which ascribes it to pique against a late member; we hope however, for the honour of all concerned that it is not so; and, that petty spite may not be the sole cause for the dismissal, as all such excuses for an act unjustifiable and uncalled for; is too small, and too mean, to be received by the sensible part of the community with anything like dignified approbation.

The revolving year has gone round again and another winter with it's snows and other manifold discomforts has gone adown the vale of time. Last year about this time we adverted to the late spring, this year, we are pleased to chronicle an early and genial one. The snow has disappeared fast; under the fervent heat of an April sun, and vegetation has made rapid progress. The spring birds have returned to their accustomed haunts, the Mavis (or as he is commonly called here the robin) "Sings his love song to the morn" The New Brunswick Nightingale chirps away merrily in all the swamps and water-courses, their 'liquid melody' floats on the air from a little after sunset till the sun again shines on their watery home. Can it be of these the poet sang?

"And Philomel down in the grove, Broke sweetly the silence of night."

Glow worms are to be seen on warm and damp evenings. Spring flowers are shooting up in the woodland soil, and forest trees are putting forth their tender green leaves.

Local News.

FARMER'S AND DAIRYMAN'S ASSOCIA-TION.—A meeting of the above society was held in the Caledonian Hall, on the 1st of May. It was not very largely attended by farmers, about one third of the audience being juveniles, of the female persuasion. The business was to initiate proceedings towards a convention, such as was held here two years ago; and also to listen to promised papers on subjects of general interest to farmers, these were:
 Intelligent Farming, by Mr. W. Simpson, and The Cultivation of Wheat, by Mr. J.
 McLaughlin. Mr. Simpson was unable to be present, owing to the rather sudden death of his father; and, the reading of promised paper was postponed. Mr. Jno.
 McLaughlin then read a short, but interesting paper; urging upon his brother farmers, the benefits that would accrue to them by growing their own breadstuff.
 We quite endorse that opinion; and, believe it would be to the manifest advantage of the agriculturist to grow enough wheat for his own consumption. It would not pay to grow it for commercial purposes, as the wheat-growing areas of the world are constantly on the increase, and our soil and climatic conditions, are better adapted to less uncertain; and, more profitable crops. Although we agree with the author of the paper in most of his ideas, yet we cannot endorse his dictum, "That land that will produce a good crop of oats, will also grow good wheat." It has been conclusively shown by Schubler and Dr. Daubeny, in their classification of soils; that land deficient in argillaceous matter, deficient in humus, deficient in lime, while they will not grow good crops of wheat, yet will be found to raise excellent crops of barley and oats. An old established fact in wheat cultivation, is, that the land should be in a condition of superior tilth, free from inimical weeds, and should have been well manured for a previous green crop. There are other conditions involved in the successful culture of wheat, that will hardly commend it as a commercial enterprise to the bulk of our Aberdeen Farmers.

AN OLD SETTLER GONE.—Mr. John Simpson, one of the original Glassville settlers has crossed "that bourn, from whence no traveller returns." Ripe and full of years, he had passed the psalmists limit of man's earthly pilgrimage but remained in harness almost to the last, he was away from home assisting to drive logs out of Teague brook, and only re-reached home the day before being seized with fatal illness. A ciple of quaint old Izaak often met him on the Miramichi pursuing the angler's peaceful To his credit we must add that he was cheerful subscriber to, and a warm friend of The Glassville News, we are sorry to lose an old friend; they are so scarce, in these degenerate times; and, we would bespeak a good place in the happy hunting grounds, for an old and tried friend.
