QUEEN ST., FREDERICTON

An Invitation to American Tourists.

Come brothers, from your mansions tall

To fields and pastures green
And register at WINDSOR HALL,
THE BARKER and THE QUEEN.

Or at the far-famed WAVERLEY
Drop in and take a seat—
A hospitable shelter, and
A cool and safe retreat.

By Star Line and by C. E. R.
Come in by droves and swarms
And we will kindly welcome you
And take you to our arms.

And Coleman's frog will leap for joy,
The flags on high will swing
And on the fount the "little boy"
Will clap his hands and sing.

And though this is a Scott-Act town
And drinks are never sold;
Yet all of you who care, may drown
Within the flowing bowl

Dull care, and drive away the blues
In what'er suits your taste;
And so no time you want to lose
And to our city haste.

Our brave policemen then will be
Most surely "out of sight,"
They'll "Rideout" to the country and
They'll say it is all "Wright."

You will not have to cross a "Marsh,"
The "Kernel" you will find
After you once have cracked the shell
Most affable and kind.

And if there's anything you want
Your outfit to supply
In anything you may be scant
Just step right up and buy.

And if a bicycle you need
You'll find it at the store
Of R. C. Chestnut, like the ones
He sold to the "Big Four."

For clothing and gents' furnishings,
Hats, caps and boots and shoes
And many other useful things
Our merchants you can't "lose."

The many rounds of pleasure are
Too numerous to relate,
But ere you go you'll have enough
Your appetites to sate.

There's boating on the river, and
There's driving in the park,
There's loitering and spooning
On the sidewalks after dark.

There's base ball and lawn tennis
And clubs and billiards too
And many home amusements
That to you may be new.

For churches and societies
The city does not lack,
And if you are inclined that way,
Before you do go back.

You'll make among them lots of friends
And kind remembrances ;
You'll have of us until life ends
In tender memories.

And if you want to take a wife
To share your weal or woe,
Our city still with beauty's rife
You need no further go.

You'll find in Fredericton's fair girls
When got "upon a string"
Collections rare of choicest pearls
As e'er adorned a king.

But sentimental rhapsody's
Not now within my line,
I started out to welcome you
To this fair town of mine,
And I will do what'er I can
To make you happy here,
For boy or woman, child or man,
Except "set up" the beer.

TWO WRISTS.
