AROUND TOWN.

Items Gathered by the Editor and his Reporters.

The Queen's 80th birthday was loyally observed in Fredericton, quite a number of excursionists from St. John and other places assisting in the celebration. Although we are democrat we would have no possible objection to Her Majesty's reign being prolonged for a like period of years. But as this is out of the question, as queens must die as well as common people, we hope at least that her life may be spared to equal that of Gladstone's. With no ailment, as the result of a pure and temperate life, there is no reason why her life might not be prolonged to her people for eight or ten years yet.

We call attention of our readers to the big sale of dry goods and clothing at the establishment of T. G. O'Connor (Queen street, next below Barker House), who is "up and at" it and means business and you will be so well pleased with your purchases that you would not have your money back.

The Merry-go-round, which furnished mirth and music for three weeks in the vicinity of the JOURNAL OFFICE, has taken its departure for "green fields and pastures new."

Freddy again bestrides the fountain as gay as a lord. Whether through a desire for change or in obedience to a prudish sentimentality he was condemned to exile for a long period in the precincts of the City Hall, but the regal crown and other devices substituted in his stead, having failed to add grace or beauty as a top piece, proved flat failures, and as a consequence he has been reinstated. May he long hug the dragon and flap his wings and wink at the girls as they pass by.

The editor of The Hartland Advertiser in speaking of the execution of Thomas Nulty, gets the name "Nulty" and the place where he lived "Ramdon" instead of Rawdon. He must have been "nulty" when he wrote it. However he cannot "ramdo(w)n" our throat any such stuff.

A consignment of 50 boys and girls from the Middlemore Orphans Home, Birmingham, Eng., arrived in town the other day and have been apportioned out to people in this city, the country and Woodstock. They are a bright, healthy looking lot, and brimful of fun and mischief. The circumstances and conditions, which exile them from their country, to take up their abode among strangers, are a sad reflection upon society as at present constituted. Some belong to drunken and worthless parents, who have squandered their earnings, and brought up at last in the prison or workhouse. Others belong to respectable and Christian parents, which the economic conditions of large cities have crowded to the wall despite their best efforts, who have given up the struggle in despair, or died of starvation. While others still, have no parents, in the legal sense of the term. Our Christian civilization cannot shirk the responsibility they are under before God, in helping to retain, or at least not trying to overthrow the monstrously uneven conditions, which make everflowing wealth, privilege and position the lot of some and consign others to grinding poverty, despair and crime. A percentage of them in years past have not given general satisfaction to the people with whom they have been placed, but we are safe in assuming that they are as good, on the whole as our own children would be under like circumstances.

The Cyclists' Friend.

No cyclist's kit is complete without a bottle of Hagyard's Yellow Oil. Can be taken internally or used externally. For Cnts, Bites, Bruises, Sprains, Stiff Joints, Coughs, Sore Throat, Pains in the Chest, etc., it is always effectual. Has no equal as an all round remedy.

All Friends.

Some people have advanced the idea to us, that because we have given special notices along with their ads, to certain firms, that we are trying to make fish of one and flesh of another. We assure them that they were never more mistaken in their lives, as all local notices outside of introductions to new advertisers and removals are paid for.

All who advertise with us, or patronize us in any way are our friends and we can make no distinction. They are all reliable firms, and we can as conscientiously recommend one as the other. But, as we have said in another place, our space is too limited to notice all, and it is natural that we should give special notices to those who confer on us special favors.

Disordered Kidneys.
