MR. BROWN'S OFFER.

"I do think it's to bad for anything! the insolence to write to Uncle Josiah that he is coming all the way from out West to ask me to marry him ?"

Kitty Clover's blue eye flashed, and something very suspiciously like angry tears were glimmering on her long, curling brown lashes. Her cheeks were flushed, and her lovely mouth dimpled into a look of scorn and rage that did not at all suit Aunt Susan's view of the case as she looked over her spectacle rims, and took Kitty quite sharply to task.

"I can't see what there is so terrible about it. Brother Josiah and I have known Archie Brown ever since he knee-high to a grasshopper, and a nicer boy and a finer man you'll never find than and rich, and wants a wife; and he's seen your picture and fallen in love with you and he's written to know if brother Josiah has any objection to his coming to ask wouldn't come across twice in your life, and here you must set up contrary to it and consider yourself almost insulted. Kitty I'm ashamed of you."

Miss Susan Clover jerked her needle so emphatically that the strong thread snap-just because he happens to have the cash. Oh, Mr. A. Brown, how I hate you! And I won't have anything to do with it. now! I know I'll just hate him-yes, I hate him already: and when he comes you can tell him my opinion of him !"

And then, after she had flounced out of the pleasant sitting-room, her wavy brown hair all a tumble over her low white brow her pretty blue eyes all a gleam with genuine girlish indignation her white berself, thinking what silly fools th herself.

"Yes, I am pretty, and I don't wonder he has fallen in love with my photograph! and Uncle Joe and aunt Sue both say he is good-looking and for all that I perfectly despise him? I've a good mind to just fix myself up as irresistibly as possi ble and see him when he comes, at eight o'clock, and then pay him for his impudence by completely crushing him. Yes. I will !

The anger was all gone from the blue eyes now, and the scorn from the luscious searlet lips; and instead there were gleams of merry mischief, and dimpling smiles at prospect of the glorious triumph so near at hand.

"Archie Brown! The idea! But would be revenged! Oh, is he here already :" For the one maid-servant of all-work in the Clover household was handing Kitty a card, and on it she had read name that sent warm flushes to he cheeks despite her determination. "Tell Mr. 'A. Brown' that Miss Clove sends her compliments, and will see hir presently."

Then she turned to her glass for a part ing critical survey, and saw a very satisfactory reflection of a slender, graceful girl, with a fresh, sweet face and blue eyes that were half-roguish, half-indignant, and a saucy mouth that struggled between the expressions of cold contempt and haughty indifferance-a lovely, lovable girl, in a dark blue silk costume whom it was little wonder Archie Brown away out in Kansas, had come all the way back to win, if he could.

And he was down stairs-come to bar gain with her, come to buy her as he would buy a load of hay! The thought sent flashes of suppressed indignation to her eyes, and more beautiful flushes to her cheeks, as she went slowly down stairs and into the parlor, her train rustling after in a sort of eloquent protest-to see standing in the bay-window, curiously examining a luxurious pot of smilax, a little on the back of his head, and wearing a suit of clothes that were neither especially new nor wellfitting.

more than a quarter of a century, and have obtained a world-wide reputation for their virtues. They correct diseased action in the several assimilative organs of the body, and are so composed that obstructions within their range can rarely withstand or evade them. Not only do they cure the every-day complaints of everybody, but also formidable and dangerous diseases that have baffled the best of human skill. While they produce powerful effects, they are, at the same time, the safest and best physic for children. By their aperient action they gripe much less than the common purgatives, and never give pain when the bowels are not inflamed. They reach the vital fountains of the blood,

Adapted to all ages and conditions in all climates, containing neither calomel nor any deleterious drug, these Pills may be taken with safety by anybody. Their sugar-coating preserves them ever fresh, and makes them pleasant to take; while
