A DARLING LITTLE DUCK

The Runaway Courtship.

The afternoon sun sage-way. Directly the conductor came was getting low, and sent its beams aslant | along among the trees, lighting up her white dress, and even whiter throat, and bringing her dark hair out in bold relief against the green leafy background. She had not heard the ap-startled at the interruption. "I beg pardon, said a rich manly voice, in grave tones, however, this time; and a tall handsome young man, apparently about three-and-twenty, advanced. He lifted his hat with an ease only to be learned in the best society, and continued:

'I was apostrophizing that darling of duck, I hope I have not alarmed you.' Our hero did not believe a word of this glib apology; but it was impossible to tell the man so to his face.

She bowed coldly, and made no answer. 'I fear I am on private grounds, re sumed the young man, noticing, for the first time, that a gravelled walk, finished by a short flight of steps, led down to the little pond. 'I was told I could get back to the village sooner if I came through these woods; but nothing was said about the grounds being private.'

'It does not matter,' answered our heroine, haughtily, 'But I wish you good-day, sir.' And she turned and went up the steps.

'It was really too impudent in me, soliloquized Charley Stafford, as he watch ed the receding figure. 'She's no fool: she doesn't believe me. What a graceful walk! Now, if it was only she, instead of my bug-a-boo, Miss Thorndyke, whom they're so eager to marry me to, I might not be running away.'

For this was the whole story. Our hero coming home from Europe, after an absence of two years, found that his mother had planned to marry him to a distant cousin, a great heiress. 'She is just the girl for you my son,' Mrs. Stafford had said. 'You remember her, don't you? I have been so afraid somebody would carry her off before you returned. But I think I may say, she is yet heartwhole. And such a fortune! I have asked her to pay us a visit, and she comes next week.

'Comes next week? Comes to marry me, whether I will or not? Good gracious mother, do you think I'm a bale of goods, to be ticketed, advertised, sold and delivered in this manner?'

In vain his mother expostulated, explained, and argued. To her, it seemed quite natural that she should select a wife for her boy. She knew better than he did, she told herself, what kind of a one he wanted; a peculiarity, not uncommon, we have observed, with mothers generally. But Charley Stafford was quite of a different opinion. The more his mother expostulated on the wisdom of the match the more convinced he became, that she and Miss Thorndyke were in a plet against him. 'A girl of any modesty would shrink from coming to a young man's house in this way,' he said in anger. 'She is to be here to-morrow, you say. Well, to-morrow I leave for the White Mountains and there I shall stay till she takes herself home again. And he left the room

His mother was a little startled, it must be confessed by this outburst. But she said to herself, that she did not mean it. 'After having been away so long. he surely won't go off in such a hurry,' she reflected. "He'll like Kate, in spite of himself, when he sees how handsome she has grown. He can't help himself."

What was her dismay, the next morning, to hear that Charley had actually left and two hours before she was up. 'Really gone! she exclaimed to her maid. 'Yes ma'am,' was the reply, 'and left word he nonchalantly replied Charley. wouldn't be back for a month.' A month . The satchel was half open and from its mouth peeped forth a book. 'No breach of honor in looking at the book, said Charley. That evening Charley reached the Profile House, hot and dusty, but not a little annoyed, that, having met this fair nymph egain, he had missed her so stupidly.

Charley found the Profile House intolerably dull, and when he had shifted his quarters, discovered that every other place was dull likewise. Somehow, FACTS WILL TELL. also, he found himself looking at it more and more frequently. He began, too, to think a good deal of its owner.

'Confound her,' he said, at last, 'she has bewitched me ! I can't get her out of my head. I believe I'm in love with her.' He was now in North Conway. He had gone out fishing the morning he had made this last confession to himself; but the fish would not bite; and soon getting tired of it, he threw himself on the grass, under a rocky bluff, and began dreamily speculating about the blue eyes.

Suddenly he heard a splash in front of him, and saw a portfolio floating down the stream. A log jutted into the water. Walking out on this he caught the portfolio, lazily, with his hook and line; and looked around quite as lazily for the owner. Somebody, at this, burst into a merry peal of laughter overhead.

He looked quickly up. No less a person than his blue-eyed nymph was laugh-

'I am so sorry,' said the young lady, as he drew near. 'It was unpardonable. If I had not been so rude you would not have fallen.

Charley had not quite recovered his self-possession. 'It is I who am unpardonable,' he said, with a low bow, 'for presenting myself to

FURTHER PROOF.

GOFFSTOWN, N. H., Aug., 1, 1875. I. R. STEVENS, Esq.: -Dear Sir,-Allow me to say a word in favor of VEGETINE. During the past year I have suffered from a complication of diseases. I lay in bed from the third of November until the middle of physicians in the state, but got no help, and constantly grew worse. They agreed that I had heart disease, phthisis, pyaemia, and kidney complaint, and could never be any better. I was reduced in weight 50 pounds, which is much, was reduced in weight 50 pounds, which is much, for I am naturally thin.

In June, finding that I was failing under the treatment of the physicians, I commenced the use of Vegetine through the earnest persuasion of friends, and, I am happy to state, with good results. I have gained ten pounds in weight, and can sit up all day, walk half a mire and ride six. I am greatly encouraged, and shall continue using the VEGETINE if I can get it. I am a poor man, but for the truth of this statement I refer any man in Goffstown or vicinity. Yours, very thankfully.

TESTIMONIALS

PRINCE WILLIAM, May 10, 1876. say that last year when we recevied your Mowers, we gave them a fair trial with others, before we offered them for sale. We used them an hour each in the field with the one team and an exrienced driver. We, and others who were present, were convinced that your Mower would as good work, and was not as liable to get out of order as other Machines that are running here. We have had some experience in repairing Mowers for the last five years. We have always found that the Wood Mower runs with the least expense; there are not so many bolts and nuts and run very smooth; the strains are met with straight lines, and these are features worthy o notice in machinery. In fact we think you have the plainest, simplest, and most substantial Mower running. They are dot only the best, but lowest in price of any of the same quality. We do not hesitate in saying to parties wanting to buy a good Machine, to try one before purchasing and be convinced that you make at home in our own country as good a Mower as can be got in the market. They are not surpassed by any, and should you accidentally break a piece you have no difficulty in getting it replaced at the Foundry; you are not humbugged by agents, and lose the use of a Machine nearly all haying time hunting them up and then not find them. The Machines we sold last year gave good satisfaction, and the farmers wish you every success so long GENTLEMEN,—The only objection we have to the Machine is this, it is not to the shop for repairs, as often as we would like it, but as that is the kind that suits the farmers, we dare not grumble Yours respectfully.

THOS. W. HOYT,

KINGSCLEAR, April 28, 1879. GENTLEMEN, -After having used one of your Walter A. Wood's Iron Frame Mowers for the last three years, cutting seventy tons of hay each season, I can, with a full knowledge of its merit, testify to its excellent qualities. It is light of draught, cuts heavy and light, standing or lodged grass with perfect success, is easily managed, and very durable. It has never cost me one cent for repairs. It all appears in as good working order as when bought. The absence of bolts and nuts, in consequence of its solid boxing, I consider one of its most important and valuable improvements over other Mowers in our Market, and would most strongly recommend it to the provements over other Mowers in our Market, and would most strongly recommend it to the J. BENJAMIN LONG.

and Consumption.

The reputation it has attained, in consequence of the marvellous cures it has produced during the last half century, is a sufficient assurance to the public that it will continue to realize the happiest results that can be desired. In almost every section of country there are persons, publicly known, who have been restored from alarming and even desperate diseases of the lungs, by its use. All who have tried it, acknowledge its superiority: and where its virtues are known, no one hesitates as to what medicine to employ to relieve the distress and suffering peculiar to pulmonary affections. CHERRY PECTORAL always affords instant relief, and performs rapid cures of the milder varieties of bronchial disorder, as well as the more formidable diseases of the lungs.

As a safeguard to children, amid the distressing diseases which beset the Throat and Chest of Childhood, it is invaluable; for, by its timely use, multitudes are rescued and restored to health. This medicine gains friends at every trial, as the cures it is constantly producing are too remarkable to be forgotten. No family should be without it, and those who have once used it Eminent Physicians throughout the country prescribe it, and Clergymen often recommend it of the e RAKES were in use in New Brunswick during the season of 1878. and the entire cost of repairs sold or given by us to repair breakages did not average One Cent for each Rake.

For perfection of work, ease in management, an simplicity and thoroughness in construction, they are now, as they ever have been, THE STANDARD by which to judge the merits of all other rakes.

THE "BUCKEYE"

has for twenty-two years held its position as the leading Mower in all the hay-making districts of the world. Its principles of construction are acknowledged to be superior to all others, as proved by the leading manufacturing establishments in the line, adopting its system as fast as the expiration of patents will permit. Its average durability is double that of others, and the cost of keeping it in repair much less than one half.

The price will be kept as low as the National Policy will permit.
