BUYING VOTERS.

The "boodling" troubles that had for years been brewing in Ottawa, and have after all, their root in the people ourselves-whatever crimes there may sponsibility for all the boodling done to a country where money is coined so rests upon the shoulders of the electorate easily. -or that portion of it, a very large portion, which sells its birth-right or inheritance to the highest bidder. Such people as these would not hesitate to sell their country to a foreign enemy, if the opportunity presented itself, and a good round sum offered. Alas, that it should be so -for through this baseness the innocent suffer with the guilty. The ballot which was intended as a shield to protect the honest voter at the polls is converted in to an instrument of oppression by party leaders over pliant followers-for the ballots are so manipulated that the simple minded holder is led to believe that he is a marked man after receiving the Iscariot thirty pieces of silver, and that if he does not deposit his ballot according to contract, it will be known to his bribers. But all parties are alike in this pernicious practice, and so it will be until the end of time, or so long as there are miserable creatures to sell them selves, or until the laws are so altered that only a minimum amount of buying and selling can be done. For example suppose it were made incumbent that every man who went to vote were challenged to this effect-"have you been offered money for your vote and have you accepted any from any party whatever, or been tampered with in any manner or form?" If the Book were put to every man over a form something like this, it would go further towards putting down bribery than by any other method. If this were the law no man, however high or honorable, could take exception to it, for he would know its meaning and that it was intended for his protection. It is true that even this method would not effect a radical cure-for there are men so regardless of an oath, that they would swear to anything for a few dollars. But in the main it would serve as a great check over the present system, for there are persons who might sell their votes, under present circumstances, whereas if confronted by an oath they would hesitate to take it falsely while they have consciences to be awakened, besides the danger of discovery and penalties of the law-the penitentiary. All honest politicians, especially leaders and members of legislative bodies should set their faces against this bribery business, and obtain such legislation as would cure it-if not effectually, render it so dangerous in its

When Sir John Macdonald passed away the whole country was sympathetically It would never do to return such precious "dust to dust" in an ordinary way, but drape the whole line of procession with costly crape and ransack all the hot houses, far and near, for the choices floral tributes with which to adorn his casket and bier. Then a monument was proclaimed-to cost a vast sum, and forthwith circulars were sent out to all the towns and cities calling for subscriptions in aid of the noble work. The only thing that puzzled the committee who undertook the work was as to what they should do with the surplus funds, for as every man in the Dominion was moved to tears, every one would subscribe in proportion to his sympathies and sorrows. Well, all this nine days mourning and excitement have long since passed away-and what about the monument? How much money has been collected and what has become of the balance? The Fredericton Globe will be pleased to announce the result.

A NUISANCE.

Complaints were made at the police office against teamsters for running their teams on the sidewalk and obstructing the passage of pedestrians. It is not only teamsters who block the way, but sometimes carriages belonging to persons who ought to know better, are similarly situated with their horses tied to tender trees for the purpose, we suppose, of knawing the bark and killing them. If a few heavy fines could be imposed on all such persons the nuisance would soon be abated. Another complaint we have frequently heard is that stupid persons in going into stores, situated on corners of streets to make their purchases, place their teams directly over the crossings, so that passengers must turn out of the road and into the mud to get round the obstruction. Store-keepers doing busicustomers do not block up the crossings, practice that few men would care to sell and thus prevent their being fined, for themselves and risk being found out and the penalty is $4.00.

He stated that the Dominion government have expended a very considerable sum of money in the experimental farms they have established in the different parts of the Dominion, and the information obtained through the expenditure thus made, cannot help but be of the greatest value to our people. These experiments, for instance, have shown that the cost of feeding an animal can be reduced one third at least from what it has very frequently or quite generally cost our people in raising their animals or feeding them for market. The efforts being made to improve the character of our dairy products in this Province, through the agents of the Dominion Government as well, is entitled to our best consideration. Under these circumstances, knowing as I do how wonderful a change has taken place since I visited England some years ago, I feel that we have much cause for hope and thankfulness. At that time when I inquired into the nature of the English market for our Cauadian people, I found that our Canadian theese brought a price much less than that of the American cheese. Owing to the attention that has now been given to this subject in Ontario and Quebec, we find to-day that the Canadian cheese brings a higher price in England than the American cheese. Not only, gentlemen, has the quality of our cheese been much improved, but the quantity for export as well, and if by the efforts of Prof. Robertson and his father, the in- Queen formation with reference to the production of a better description of butter and cheese, with the aid that has been given by the Local and Dominion Governments to encourage the establishment of cheese factories and creameries throughout the Province of New Brunswick, brings forth the results that I anticipate, then I think we will have great reason to take courage and be thankful. Under these circumstances I think I can say a few words of encouragement to you, and through you to the farmers of the Province of New Brunswick with reference to our future. At the close of His Honor's address he thanked the gentlemen for the remarks made with reference to his future and also for their kind reference to Lady Tilley, and to her connection with an institution towards the establishment of which she had a great deal to do. Lady Tilley felt that true happiness was best to be secured by endeavouring to secure the happiness of others, and that is her reward. I thank you again, gentlemen, for the kind sentiments you have expressed. I congratulate you upon the prospect of fine weather and upon the pleasant and prospering auspices under which this exhibition is being conducted. I trust it will be the success that it deserves to be, financially and otherwise. I have now much pleasure in declaring the exhibition formally opened. After the address a parade of the horses was immediately held on the track prepared for that purpose.

Agricultural Hail. In this building is shown the produce of the farm and garden. An excellent contribution is made by Richard Goldsworthy of Lower St. Marys, of which his Swedes turnips, form perhaps the most notable features. Some mammoth cabbages near at hand are ticketed with the name of John McCulloch of St. Marys. A very creditable showing in the line of garden stuff is made by Mr. A. D.

Thomas, and by J. R. Howie of this city. Some very fine specimens of Canadian squash are shown by Sergt, Vincent of the I. S. C. The best general ex. hibit of apples is offered by Charles Camber of Kingsclear, whose neatly designed cabinet comprises about 20 different varieties. The horse department is in charge of Mr. Geo. Y. Dibblee. Isaac Peabody shows no less than eight specimens of his standard bred stock.
