Notes and Suggestions of Practical Utility

FOR THE FARM, FIELD, GARDEN AND DAIRY.

Cleanings of Interest for Our Country Readers.

Wide doors are best. Use flat strips for roofs. Avoid sills to stumble over. Produce to suit the market. As ye sow, so shall ye reap. Keep your wagon axes clean. Experiment a little every year. There is disease in a dirty hide. Good feed improves every breed. Keep the barnyard dry and clean. The silo may produce half the feed. Serenity is the basis of partisanship. Breed is of little avail without feed. Good bedding is better than carding. A rich barnyard means poor farming. Grass when dried makes the best hay. Crowd your work or it will crowd you. Fatten old sheep in the season of grass. Cut out all useless stalks in the cornhill. A good profit is a convincing argument. Poor farming and poverty go together. A just government bears lightly on all. Keep the flock of sheep dry at all times. The good may be prevented to evil uses. Fifty fowls are enough to experiment on. Regularity is a prime element in feeding. Uneven keep makes uneven fibre of wool. Give the cows a little dry feed in summer. Send us your best thoughts for publication. Shallow cultivation is as good as a shower. Some machinery costs more than it saves. Condiments should be fed sparingly, if at all. Keep the pigs of the same age in the same pen. Individual loss is so much lost from the herd. The better the government the fewer the laws. Early shearing demands good care of the flock. A free range is natural to all living creatures. Avoid having to buy more than you have to sell. Gravel, sand and not sand, is what poultry needs. It is natural for sheep to roam over a pasture. We all want the best, but how can we have it? Variety is relished by animals as well as by men. If the soil is there, it can be made productive. The hard work unites with the poetry on the farm. Isn't the talk about wide tires growing tiresome. Pay as you go is the key to perennial freedom. Enlighten the private dairymen, not destroy him. Dry earth should be used freely in a manure cellar. A bright thought is more valuable than a diamond. Smaller farms better tilled would be profitable. The loose top soil acts as a mulch in a dry time. All kinds of stock need looking after and caring for. The rising generation is full of new mysteries. Cranks are necessary to turn the wheels of progress. Five good cows well fed are better than ten half fed. A good soil must be properly prepared as well as rich. It is hard to break away from old habits and prejudices. The triumph of the moment is often the defeat of years. It is easier to get at the selling than at the cost price. It costs no more to keep the best than to keep the worst. A good pasture should have water running through it. Quality counts, but there must be sufficient of it to pay. It is important to have for sale what the market calls for. The price of food has much to do with profitable feeding. Laying hens must have a due share of nitrogenous food. The simplest tools are usually the most effective and useful. There is no danger of the ewe getting too fat after lambing. A tool kept in order requires but little attention at one time. The highest education is that which makes the best citizen. Provide good shade for your sheep as well as other stock. Much of the progress of the age is only a repetition of the old. The great need of the times is practical and intelligent teachers. We waste a great deal of time in reading to get little knowledge. The farmer must have average crops to keep even with the world. Clean food and clean quarters make clean eggs, milk and meat.

HERE'S A PRETTY NUSS.

Stocking State of Things shown up in Hartford. Selectman Fowlers report of his investigation into baby farming reveals the existence of five baby farms in Hartford, West Hartford and Bloomfield, where the children from other towns and outside the state have been placed by Mrs. Virginia T. Smith, the missionary of the city mission, and other charitable institutions in this city. At one farm in this city twenty-three children were placed by Mrs. Smith from February to June. The women running "farms" claim that they were ignorant of the law. No record of cases has been kept. They are mostly illegitimate children. Mrs. Smith paid $2 per week for each child for his board and her son, Dr. O. C. Smith a city physician attended the children when ill. It is said some of the infants have been adopted by persons paying $13 to $40 each to Mrs. Smith. The alleged "farms" has been run in the interest of Mrs. Smith, who has received young girls from various parts of this state and Massachusetts, placed them there during confinement, received her pay from the girls or their seducers and placed the babies. The practice has prevailed about eight years. The report says a member of Mrs. Smith's family attempted to bribe a reporter of a city paper to suppress certain facts he had unearthed. The affair created a big sensation in Hartford which has become notorious as a city where the results of vice could be recovered up through the offices of the city missionary in the name of charity.

MASKED ROBBERS

Hold up a Passenger Train and Rob the Safe. A despatch from Fresno, Cal., says a passenger train south bound was held up by four masked robbers six miles east of Colliis, the other night. Two of the robbers crawled over the tank to the engine cab and ordered the engineer and fireman to stop the train. They made the engineer walk ahead a quarter of a mile and compelled the fireman to stay with them. They then went to the express car and ordered the messenger to open or seven dynamite bombs at the doors; completely demolishing them. They then forced open the safe and took out the money. The amount is not known. They compelled the fireman to help them carry the treasure for some distance and then jumped on horses and galloped off.

A Woman Who Has Proved Her Honesty.

One of the first women who were assigned work in the treasury building was a colored woman, Sophie Holmes by name. One night when Sophie was sweeping the refuse papers in her room she found a box of greenbacks that had been cut, counted and packed to transfer to the vaults and had been accidentally overlooked. She did not dare call the watchman for fear he would be tempted beyond resistance. She thought of her four small children at home alone, with no one to give them their supper or put them to bed, but the one duty that stared her in face was to protect that money. She sat down upon the box and quietly waited for the hours to go by. At 1 o'clock in the morning she heard the shuffling step of General Spinner in the corridor and heard him open the door to his bedroom. She quietly slipped along the corridor, knocked at his door and told him what she had found. The general had the box taken to his room and sent Sophie home in his carriage. The next morning when she returned she found the general still keeping guard. That night he sent for her and placed in her hand her appointment papers, given for honesty, and for thirty years she has earned and drawn her fifty dollars per month. Fifty thousand dollars was in this box. At another time she found $80,000, for which the testimony can be seen over General Spinner's own handwriting.

Deal Gently with the Cow.

It used to be, "Deal gently with the erring," but we now have another application of the same sentiment in, "Deal gently with the cow." As an illustration, it is related that on a large farm where the cows were milked night and morning by several different milkers, during the absence one day of one of the milkers, an Irishman, the cows generally milked gave half only of their ordinary yield. The one who milked them was considered one of the best milkers, but the cows would not "give down." While the milking was going on the next morning the man who had been away returned just as one of his best milkers had refused to give more than half her usual quantity. He said: "Is it Daisy that's going back on her record? Let me take the pail." Sitting down, he said, "Hoist me Jewel," and commenced to sing, "If I had a cow that gave such milk, I'd dress her in the finest silk." The cow looked around at the first sound of Pat's voice, and with a dreamy, contented look in her expressive eyes commenced to chew her cud and "give down" the milk, and Pat soon had the usual amount.

JINGLES OF HUMOR.

A Little Nonsense Gathered for Leisure Reading.

In a Connecticut school recently a teacher was trying to induce a youngster with the meaning of the word 'letter.' To illustrate she asked, 'Now, if you were sick and a doctor came and gave you some medicine, what would you be?' 'Dead,' was the unexpected answer. 'Now, Johnnie' said the teacher, 'if your father borrows $500 and promises to pay $50 a week, how much will he owe in seven weeks?' 'Five hundred dollars,' said Johnnie. 'I'm afraid you don't know your lesson very well,' remarked the teacher. 'I may not know my lesson very well,' Johnnie frankly remarked 'but I know my father.' Husband (to wife home from church)—Services interesting this morning, my dear? Wife—Not particularly so. Mrs. Carlton-Pell's baby was baptized, and they say its baptismal robe of lace cost $500. I think there is such a thing as being too religious. 'Mother,' said Miss Clara, 'do you think Bobby ought to lounge in that handsome chair?' 'Certainly not, Bobby,' said his mother reprovingly. 'You might break it.' 'If it's strong enough to hold Clara and Mr. Feathery,' argued Bobby, 'as he slowly slid down, it ought to be strong enough to hold a little boy.' Old Mr. Bently (to his son, home on a visit from college)—I see by the college paper, George, that you are one of the leaders in the German. George—Well, er—yes father. Old Mr. Bently—Well, s'pose you ought to have some money to buy some German books to read. George (earnestly)—Yes, father, I think I ought. 'Well, John,' said old man Jordan to his young friend, 'you have just married I hear.' 'Yes, sir,' he answered with a spring morning smile; 'just a month ago, and I want you to go up to dinner with me to-day.' 'Have you got a cook?' 'No.' 'Well, my boy, s'pose we go to a restaurant this time. You must remember I had a young wife once myself.' 'Well, Uncle Reuben that a fine pair of oxen that you have.' 'Ya-as.' 'What have you named them?' 'The night one is Pilot an' the off one is Rider.' 'Strange names, aren't they?' 'Not for steers.' Paradoxical—for a grocer to put down his raisins. Englishman—I notice that American women, as a rule, have rather harsh voices. It comes from the climate, I presume. American—No-o, I guess it comes from bossing. Cold Victual Billy—Say, Ma'am, couldn't yer gimme an old vest? Mrs. Goodsole—Why, I shouldn't think you'd want one with the flannel shirt. Billy (stiffening)—Madam, do you suppose I want to look like one of those dude tourists!

How He Tested the Train.

The late Emperor Dom Pedro of Brazil once gave audience to a young engineer who came to show him a new appliance for stopping railway engines. The Emperor was pleased with the thing and said:— 'We will put it at once to a practical test. The day after to-morrow have your engine ready; we will have it coupled to my saloon carriage and then fire away. When going at full speed I will unexpectedly give the signal to stop, and then we will see how the apparatus works.' At the appointed time the Emperor entered his carriage and the engineer mounted his engine, and on they went for a considerable distance, indeed, the young engineer began to suspect that the Emperor had fallen asleep, when the train came to a sharp curve round the edge of a cliff on turning which the driver saw, to his horror, an immense boulder lying on the rails. He had just sufficient presence of mind to turn the crank of his brake and pull up the engine within a couple of yards of the fatal block. Here the Emperor put his head out of the window and asked what they were stopping for. The engineer pointed to the piece of rock, on seeing which Dom Pedro burst into a merry laugh. 'Push the thing on one side!' he called out to the engineer, who had jumped down from the locomotive; and when the latter in his confusion, blindly obeyed, and kicked the stone with his foot, it crumbled into dust. It was a block of starch that Dom Pedro had ordered to be placed on the rails the night before.

Soft Water for the Face.

An authority warns women who would preserve or enhance the beauty of their complexions—and what woman would not—to use rain water, if possible, to wash their faces in. If this is not procurable, boil the water before using it. With this good soap should be used, as the basis of all beauty is cleanliness. It is a mistake to fancy that oils and unguents will cleanse the skin. A few women still cling to this most mistaken idea, that there never was a greater delusion. Water is the best of all cosmetics. There are some delicate skins, however, to which the grit and dust of travel prove irritants. Such may use a little cold cream well rubbed in and afterwards gently wiped off with a piece of fine linen. Even they, however, must finish the process with tepid water, into which a dash of eau de cologne has been put.
