THE RING.

Evidently Down on Sullivan. Bat Materson, of Denver, Col., states at New Orleans: "They say Sullivan likes to mix a battle. I wish he would fight Jackson. He could mix all he wanted, and Jackson would be delighted to oblige."

"Do you anticipate any trouble at the ring side here in case either man is losing?" "No, I do not. He had plenty of chance to quit when he fought Jackson. The sports out there told me he would quit, for I wanted to bet the battle would last over 20 rounds."

"Do you think Corbett is a quitter?" "No, I do not. He had plenty of chance to quit when he fought Jackson. The sports out there told me he would quit, for I wanted to bet the battle would last over 20 rounds."

The Doak Settlement mystery still remains unexplained and is a general topic of conversation. There is evidently something crooked about the affair and the authorities should have the thing thoroughly ventilated.

A New Method of Ventilation. Two women, each of whom rode the ventilation hobby with great zeal, found themselves spending the night in a small country hotel. They had scarcely put the light out when it was realized that the window had not been opened, and one started to attend to it.

"I've broken this wretched window," it was explained; "but, at least, I'll have air now." "Oh! yes," said the other, "that's ever so much better now. I could never go to sleep. In the morning the window was found tightly closed, but the glass door of a big bookcase which stood in a corner was shattered."

Few publications have ever attracted more attention than the unique review, Current History. It is the outcome of a happy thought as to the literary needs of the present busy age. The only systematic record published of the history of the present day as it is occurring; it commends itself to the support of all public-spirited men and women; as a labor-saving device alone, it is entitled to unstinted praise; for it gives, every three months, within the limits of an ordinary magazine, a complete bird's-eye view of the events, movements and conditions, political, social and otherwise, prevailing in every country on the globe; and all so well digested and clearly outlined that the commonest mind may easily grasp it.
