KATE VALLIANT.

With -:- the -:- Circus!

(Continued.)

tily, fearing that Mrs. Carroll was going dication of the marble heart beneath that respective places, so seldom was the Philip, fancied that she aimed at him. Teresa's wrongs for Miss Valliant's benefit. 'Heatherly didn't behave well I've and she thought he ought to pay her ought all to be grateful for.' father's debts. For my part, I-

Kate heard no more, for at that momenth er attention was claimed by her brother.

'Come down with me,' he said' and, as an undertone:

'I'm taking you to a sister Kate; Blanche has promised to trust berself to the guardianship of a rough country bumpkin, and I am the lucky man.'

'She's the still luckier girl! Kate cried clasping Philip's arm very closely. 'Phil, dear, I hope she'll like it all-Hasselton, and Nell Gwynn and me.'

Blanche was coming to meet them. 'This room is given to our people who pretend they find themselves refreshed by mamma's tepid ices and boiled tea,' she began, drawing the dining room door gently to shut hersely off from the people and the refreshments she was de it's all disharmony, and Lady Teresaism | draught.' Come and see me to-morrow, Miss Valliant -if you care to see me, that is?'

'Of course I care, after what Philip has just told me.' Kate answered a little

'How prettily dutiful and sisterly Miss Carroll laughed musically; 'for my part, if I had a brother like Wyndham that I presume Mr. Wyndham has just Blanche. told you about me, I should not care to see more than I could possibly help of the intruder.'

'I shouldn't like to believe you,' Kat said.

'You wouldn't-why not?'

'I wouldn't for my brother's sake first, breadth in response to this, held her her that it was no matter of congratula- welfare of his son and daughter, not from she hears it.' hand out to Kate, and then to Philip tion to her brother or herself. calmly, and said merely:

'You're going I see. These At Homes are things to flee from as soon as one can I admit. To-morrow we shall meet?till then, good-bye.'

'May I call at twelve? Won't you ride? Philip asked eagerly. 'Ride! Oh, no! not till I have a horse my own, thank you, Mr. Wyndham.' minutes' standing had no excuse for detaining her another moment it seemed. So with rather a sadly uttered, 'Now. Kate,' he bowed himself a little awklady of his love. For her part she walkreached the seclusion of her own cham- did both?

His sister might be a nuisance to some the stables and kennels, to the last people. I'll take care she never is to shrubs he's had planted, and the last but with a throbbing heart, for about ten thinks to gain something by it.' minutes. It was part of the plan of this girl's life to make those nearest to her juncture, by Philip sayingand most intimate with her believe that doors, before she went down to face her you like to go, dear?" family. Then she walked into the drawing room, saving-bed when you have your next At Home. their niece and Philip's sister in truth. Louisa! you here still! What nerves you have.'

wishes and congratulations on her great old place.'

out whatever sting there might be for Siberia.'

cess'? 'she asked. 'Having killed Cock Robin with your little arrow.' 'If I have killed him, I am sure it's by accident. I haven't aimed at him.' pleased at this, the best thing you've lose my head in such a direction. Aunt 'vain pretence,' Mrs. Beaufort said im the housekeeping off your hands, and patiently. 'You didn't aim straight at leave you free to do more of the elegant him, perhaps, but why should you pre- entertaining and amusing our guests.' tend that he has dropped at your feet, against him.'

'Don't be too hard on my stupidity,' more soberly: Blanche said, quietly. 'I had no idea that Mr. Wyndham had been driven and reins in anyone else's hands, till I give lured to 'my feet' (as you call his asking them over to your wife, Phil.' me to marry him) by my relatives. I thought he came voluntarily.'

Beaufort interposed deprecatingly.

'Pray don't check any little ebullition mental balance, even though a man has est way to hurt me. been found ready to maffy me; indeed.

gracious manner, that was perfect to massively formished drawing-room, in to pour forth the whole story of Lady regularly heaving breat, it was not so position of any of them altered. satisfactory to her mother.

heard, about money when Lady Teresa little more natural, my dear; especially the clearly burning fire in the highly pol- his cousin Frederica's pale cheeks flushed a suitable match.' married him. He thought she was dear at such times as these, when such honor ished steel grate. He was a tall, large a little, and her cynical blue eyes softenenough at the price of the settlements, and fortune has been offered you, as we man, but there was no flabby superfluous ed with a gleam of happy expectancy.

the family jar ceased.

left, didn't she?' Mrs. Carroll rsked.

Valliant on the spot.'

He had no time to answer her, for clever hands. When you've been mar- views. ried to him a year, he'll know better than scribing so disparagingly. 'And upstair fection to any one, either in or out of a of woman could compass such a thing, agree with her, for a dearer, sweeter been happy together, Louy?'

heartily; and she refrained from adding the latter's determination. that perhaps the agreement would have been less perfect, and the happiness less undisturbed, if she herself had not been staying.

back, that the rattle of the wheels gave inflict exactly the amount of pain and Philip (dear fellow) wants us to go and "What did you come to talk about Blanche lifted her eyebrows a hair's the event of the day. For intuition told them; a man who was ambitious for the be? Dear Fred will be overjoyed when tion did not weigh with her in her Wyndham's children have done, would ham grumbled. own relations with Philip's wife, it would conduced to his comfort, or the consider- laughingly explained:

wardly out of the presence of the state y taught her that he was an earnest, undeccived, whenever they could do so bright face clouding ominously, 'you issue of her intimate friendship with selfish, true and tender hearted fellow, with fancied impunity to themselves. ed leisurely enough up past the drawing who could never wear a mask nor play a The son Godfrey, a many of twenty- Phil is engaged to Miss Carroll, and he enough. The minute after he had spoken room door to the top of the next flight part. How would it be with him when five or six, was merely a clerk in his wants you all to know her as soon as of stairs, then with almost a bound she he discovered that his wife habitually father's office as yet. This was by way possible.'

rough gold, but malleable I do believe. the place, from the tenants down through ship allowed him to be. me. I'll take care of that from the first.' prize pig he's bought. And she'll never She sat there, externally motionless, show interest in anything, unless she

Her meditations were cut short at this son.

'After dinner, Kate, we'll go, if you her composure was as absolute and real like, and see uncle and aunt Laurence. I as it seemed to be. So now she sat still, think they ought to hear of my engageand heard the majority of her mother's ment at once; I don't like keeping anyone guests depart, with much banging of cab in the dark about what I am doing. Will

'Yes, Phil.' Kate always 'liked' to go wherever Philip wished to take her, and 'Mamma, rather than endure another moreover the Laurence Wyndhams. hour of that appalling Lady Teresa and though they were no relations of hers. her exasperating companion, I'll go to had always treated her as if she were

'I should like them to come to Hassel ton as soon as I can get Mrs. Carroll and 'I stayed to see you reherse the first Blanche to fix a time for their visit,' the bit of your new part; don't wink at me young man went on in a state of happy dear' (the admiral hastily disavowed any excitement, 'we'll have a house full of action of the kind), 'I knew Blanche people, and show Blanche that she's not wouldn't come and honestly ask for good quite going into exile in coming to the

'She will hardly imagine that she is, I The married sister's manner was kind- should think; after Boomerang Road, er than her words. She strove to take Hasselton will be a very sunny and sweet

Blanche in these latter by a hearty kiss My dear child, your life-long recollecto which Blanche submitted with the tions are of the dear old place you must same graceful indifference she had dis remember. Blanche won't have any played towards Kate Valliant's advances. sentiment about it, beyond the sentiment 'What do you mean by 'my great suc- that the man she has honored with her love is its owner, don't you see?'

'Yes, I shouldn't think that Miss Carroll was sentimental.'

'She's not a bit,' he cried delightedly. 'A sentimental wife would have been a 'Really, Blanche, if I were not so well ghastly nuisance, so it's lucky I didn't ever done in your life, I could find it in Laurence can help you a good deal if she my heart to be angry with you for your | will come down; she might take some of

'I shouldn't like Mrs. Laurence Wynd' wounded by a chance shot, when we all ham or any one else to interfere a bit know that our efforts to entertain him with the house keeping that Iv'e manawhen he was in town before, and mam- ged so many years," Kate laughed goodma's At home to-day were the munitions temperedly. Then she remembered that we put into your hands to make war Blanche Carroll would soon take it out out of her hands by right and added

"I mean I shouldn't like to see the

'And that won't be like giving them up at all, will it?' he said affectionately, 'Now, now, my dear Louy!' Admiral 'your two girls will always pull together, ('Any way, I'll never pull in opposition bear being cavilled at for retaining my make him suffer, knowing that's the sur- regret.

All this Blanche said with an unruffled spending a typical family evening in the laway from the last of the hunting.'

Mr. Laurence Wyndham, the head of flesh about him. His face was clean 'What a revelation you'll be to him, Mr. Laurence Wyndham-out of the pro- Kate.' Blanche, Mrs. Beaufort said, with feigned perty, seemed the right and natural seadmiration; 'it will be a pretty sight, that quence of things, and he was well satis- will run off with every one who comes to had by happy chance bought in Covent this paper. of the fine young countryman's plastic fied that this should be the case. But the house at once to see them. And the mind being moulded anew by your cool' his wife and daughter held different fuss she makes about these primroses to expect to see you develope sisterly af- a year resolved that if the skill and will ton' as she calls it; and I'm sure I quite her nephew Philip should marry her place than Hasselton I never saw.' 'You and I have always agreed and daughter Frederica; and her daughter, formed to grasp the facts, that outside his Kate), she forthwith fell into a fluster. Kate had felt thankful all the way good of his fellow men, but that he might tions and visitors. Kate is saying that husband. her a fair excuse for keeping silent on humiliation which he deemed fit upon stay at Hasselton. So delightful, won't it may I ask?" any affection for them, but because the To do her justice, this last considera- sound of the words 'how wel! Laurence because I refuse to turn out,' Mr. Wyndendeavor to come to something like a sound pleasant in Laurence Wyndham's that she would have no cause for content- over his household, he was proving good are there.' ment, in her brother's happiness with his claim to be a competent ruler over this handsome girl whom he had chosen. many. Lastly, and chiefly, a man whom Wyndham questioned petulantly. All her experience of her brother Philip his wife and children distrusted -- and de-

of keeping him in subjection. 'If I took 'She was acting all the time; I didn't him into partnership he would have his Thank the Lord for deliverance from think it even, till he took me to her 'as own way, now he must take mine,' Mr. for so many endearing adjectives in this bondage of poverty and tedium,' she her sister,' and then I knew it all in a Laurence Wyndham told his wife when future.' said triumphantly, as she flung herself moment, Kate thought as she stole a she dared to make a maternal appeal for on a sofa, with broken springs, that stood glance at his proud, happy face; 'he wants her only son to be rendered more indeat the foot of her bed. 'He's a bit of me to be interested in everything about pendent than the stipend of the clerk- ing accents, the latter derisive one from > and her husband did not resent her beauty,' Kate went on, ignoring Mrs. anger; it amused him to see that he had Wyndham's suffering, not from heartlessthe power to hurt the mother through the ness, but from pre-occupation. The

CHAPTER IV.

MISS FRED. 'Philip! and Kate! Why didn't you come to dinner?' Mrs. Laurence Wyndham cried after her easily agitated fashion, bustling and fussing about, as i their arriving just when they did arrive -neither an hour earlier or later-was about as inopportune an occurrence as could well have been devised. Her conception of hospitality was a good one. She really desired to 'do all she could' towards the comfort of every tenant, permanent or temporary, within her gates. But her execution of this conception was inadequate not to say faulty, by reason of that spirit of fussiness which permeated all she did and said. The habit her husband had of cavilling at, or rowing for her, every word and action, reacted on her to this extent, that she, in turn, good naturedly but excitedly questioned, and volubly differed from the course of conduct pursued by every one else, whom she dared to assail with a dissentient or adverse opinion. In this she only displayed the essential human quality of kicking where she dared. For place, selfish way, willing always to make sacrifices of time, money and personal convenience for her own children. and rather apt to think that the rest of the world failed in its duty, if it did not imitate her in this respect.

By the time Philip and Kate had exonerated themselves from the implied charge of want of consideration in not having come to dinner, another figure had appeared upon canvas—a slight, rather. short girl, with a fair pale face, surmounted by a fluffy crop of fair, pale hair, a pair of cynical blue eyes, and general air of self-complacency, dashed with discontent at her surroundings.

'We are very glad to see you now though you didn't come to dinner, Philip and Kate,' she began in clear cutting tones. 'Why mother should begin reproaching you at once, is, as usual, beyoud me. When did you come up?" 'Yesterday,' Philip, to whom her quest ion was chiefly addressed, replied. 'Yesterday! and you haven't found your way to us till to-night?' Mrs. Wyndham said pettishly. That is to say, her words and manner were pettish, but her inten-

Philip and his sister came in, and were have been powerful enough to draw you bitter disappointment.

She shot her arrow into the air, but 'Ah! yes,' Admiral Beaufort said has look upon id itself, but, regarded as an in- which all things seemed riveted to their Philip, happily conscious, ingenious think that, but he hasn't been under-me-or rather whom I came to see,' he tell me about the girl, Kate, a designing 'I wish you would let yourself be a the house, sat in a capacious chair by answered in a confidential wisper, and creature to entrap him away-away from

'Such times as these, mamma! Louy shaven. The expression of his light grey conservatory, Philip,' she said in her had been the trapper,' her husband will remind you that it's the first time eyes was keen and calculating. His pose anoftest tones. As he had something to chuckled out, and his wife could not deanything of the kind has been offered to even as he sat at rest by his own hearth, say to her, she was resolved to give him finitely decide which she loathed mostme, even if I didn't disclaim having had reading his evening paper, with the an opportunity of saying it without any his tigerish temper when it was roused any previous experience,' Blanche laugh- consciousness that there would be no further delay. It could be only one or his hilarity now that she was so sor she slipped away by his side, he added in ed, and with the lighter tone she used, further call upon his intellect or energy thing, she told herself triumphantly—the ely discomfited. this day, betokened that he was an one thing she had been waiting for more 'I suppose his sister knew it before they active, strong, persevering, man, well able or less impatiently all her grown-up life. good reason to consider themselves neg to grasp any situation that was submit- She could not refrain from darting a lected. 'Yes.' Blanche said carelessly; 'Mr. ted to his observation. A prosperous meaning glance at her mother, and that Wyndham is a little romantic, I should solicitor with a large paying practice, he glance showed her that Mrs. Wyndham imagine; he seemed to think that I should rarely troubled himself about the possi- augured as favorably from Philip's manstand in the passage in a draught and bility of his ever succeeding to the family ner as she (Frederica) did herself. Mrs. Phil? Frederica had said when they develope sisterly feelings towards Miss estate of Hasselton. That his nephew Wyndham colored up nervously, and would marry, have sons, and cut him- began speaking 'fast and excitedly to she spoke she pointed to two long brown especially is quite amusing, just because Mrs. Laurance Wyndham had for many she brought the roots from 'dear Hassel- about something more important.'

without having any special desire to with him this summer, Kate said, un-'So we have,' Mrs. Beaufort replied please her mother, had tacitly endorsed consciously fanning the flame of maternal again on life's dull stream.' hope and ambition which the action of They were not an attractive pair, this Philip in thus retiring to the conserva- compressed, calculating fashion, Fredermother and daughter, and yet there was tory with her daughter, had just lit in ica loved her cousin Philip-independent something interesting about them. Mrs. Mrs. Wyndham's heart. Again the of his claims to her regard as master of the source from which countless boons, Wyndham had married young, before color mounted high in Mrs. Wyndham's Hasselton! As far as such a practical and he told me something about a girl benefits, pleasures and favours flowed to her judgement had been sufficiently face, and without any apparent cause (to girl can suffer herself to go, she had gone

'Does he want us to start to-night?

'Now, Laurence, how can you be so correct estimate of Blanches Carroll's own ears. A man who cared for his disagreeable, such a wet blanket?' Mr. character. If she could be happy in her wife, just exactly in proportion as she Wyndham remonstrated, while Kate be so much the better. But from the ation in which he was held by the world. Indeed no, Philip has no such design first, that this would not be the case, was A man who worshipped the owners of upon your comfort to-night; he only said critical juncture, and still more unhapthe conviction forced home upon her. wealth, rank and lands servilely, though to me coming along this evening that he She made a step towards the stairs as But, after putting herself out of the ques- in politics he was an avowed Liberal. should try and persuade you all to come she spoke, and the accepted lover of ten tion entirely, she still felt painfully sure A man who thought that by tyrannizing and stay at Hasselton when the Carroll's

'And who may the Carroll's be?' Mrs.

'Engaged !- to Miss Carroll!' 'Ha, ha, ha! Hasselton won't come in

The former ejaculatory sentence fell from the lips of Mrs. Wyndham in gasp-

'I wonder he doesn't go away and leave Yes, engaged to Miss Carroll. Her you Laurence,' the mother said angrily, name is Blanche, and she is a great subject of her brother's approaching marriage was still a too newly sore one in her mind for her to give any thought to the bearing it would have on the minds of others. But for this Mrs. Wyndham's chagrin would have been patent and amusing to her. 'Then I must say Philip has behaved most unhandsomely, 'most' unhandsomely,' Mrs. Wyndham spluttered out. 'That Philip, our nephew and nearest relation. should be going to be married, and that we should be left to learn it from other lips than his own!'

'His lips are employed, you must remember, in imparting the pleasing intelligence to Fred.' This callous reminder proceeded, it need scarcely be said, from Mr. Laurence Wyndham. He had never-as has been told-counted on possessing Hasselton himself, and though it would have pleased him well to see his daughter reigning there, it pleased him almost as well to witness his wife discomfiture at the prospect of another queen than Frederica coming to the cradle of the Wyndham

'Philip has treated us shamefully, and I shall always say it to every one I name the subject to. Oh, you needn't pretend to look so surprised, Kate; you must know as well as I do that he has behaved in a nasty underhand way.

Mrs. Wyndham chattered these out with much venom, for her mortification on behalf of her daughter was extreme. She had on various occasions given many of her most intimate friends to understand that Philip and Frederica were all but engaged, and in anticipation she had seen herself a frequent and honoured guest at Hasselton-without her hus-

In these three last words lie hid the subtle charm of the prospect that was now proved so fallacious. To be any- Mrs. B. Atherton, Prop. where in peace and plenty without her husband, was to be in an earthly Paradise to Mrs. Wyndham. And this not because of any unseemly skittish propensities on her part, but because of the womanly yearning she had to be out of reach of his tyrannous temper and his SIGN taunting tongue. If to be 'an; where' out of these things was joy to her, imagine Tinting in Oil or Water Colors, Papering and what fulness of joy would have been her portion in the beautiful home of so amiable and acquiescent a son-in-law as of aggrieved feeling on Louy's part; I can to her, for his sake: for if I do, she will tion was merely to express affectionate Phliip would be sure to prove. The overthrow of such a basket of eggs as she

'You always seem to forget, mamma, had carried ever since Frederica had ar-The Laurence Wyndhams lived in a that Philip at Kate have other friends in rived at a marriageable age, was heart-I'm only following my elder sister's ex- handsome house in a handsome square town,' Miss Wyndham put in raspingly, breaking to her, poor woman, and in the ample; she didn't show the slightest in South Kensington. They had dined 'and very attractive friends, too, I should first moments of her agony she betrayelation when you proposed to her, I re- about two hours before their nephew imagine, judging from the fact that they ed her vain hopes, and laid bare her > 'Poor Phil,' Kate quietly remonstrated 'he has been rash and hastv. Even hand !-he couldn't be underhand.'

'I'll tell you presently, what brought 'Oh, I've no patience with it all-but

'Perhaps the designing creature's mo ther would hold the same opinion about 'Come and look at my primroses in the your daughter, Mrs. Wyndham, if Fred

In the conservatory the primaoses had

'See, here they are-the same roots ! brought up from Hasselton last May; haven't they flourished under my care first entered the conservatory. And as salmon-baskets filled with primrose Such a girl as Fred is for flowers-she plants in luxuriant flower, that Miss Fred Garden the previous day.

'I didn't come here to look at the primroses, Fred. I came to talk to you

The young man, all aglow with thoughts of his recent successful wooing of his beautiful love, did not notice that the 'Phil wants you all to come and stay face of the girl by his side was radiant with "the light that ne'er can shine

But this it was, for in her own cool, into the Fairyland of Hope about him. profession her husband was a narrow- 'Laurence-Mr. Wyndham! Do you He was her love's young dream, her Meanwhile, Mr. Wyndham and his sis minded, egotistical, selfish and mean- hear what Kate is saying? No! there nearest approach to a hero. And now ter had driven back to the quiet family spirited man; a man who loved display, you are, absorbed in your dry old paper, she told herself that her hope was to be hotel in Norfolk Street, where they were and yet grudged expenditure; who liked and not attending or caring a bit ahout realised, her dream to become a fair wakpower, not that he might wield it for the your own child-I mean your own rela- ing reality, and her hero to be her

She tried to speak indifferently, but it was not so easy for her to assume the care-for-nothing air which the beautiful stately Blanche could drape herself in at any moment.

'About the girl who is to be my wife!' Unhappy-for Frederica-the honest- at $2.00 per year. hearted young fellow couldn't even allude to his betrothed without betraying some slight emotion. He did so at this was the moving cause! Her self-possession deserted her. The words, from her point of view, sounded like a direct offer the top of her own and her mother's firm 'Oh I forgot,' Kate cried, her beaming conviction that 'marriage' was the ultimate don't know yet; we came to tell you that Philip-they really sounded definite them Philip Wyndham for the second time in that eventful day found himself an accepted lover.

To be continued.

SUTHERLAND'S

WATERPROOF

It is an Oil Preparation made expressly for

Calf, Kip, Grain, and all Waxed Leathers. It Renders all Kinds of Leather

TOROUGHLY WATERPROOF

Boots dressed with it are not effected by snow-dew, fresh or salt water.

PRICE, 25 CENTS.

N. C. SUTHERLAND Queen Street Fredericton, N. B., Mar. 28.

T. AMOS WILSON,

Paper Ruler.

Cor. Queen and Regent Sts. Fredericton, N.B., Dec. 27.

Hotel

Fredericton, N. B Fredericton, N. B. July, 5th, 91.

C. C. GILL,

Graining.

Orders by Mail Promptly Attended to. SHOP AND RESIDENCE: 59 BRUNSWICK ST. Fredericton, June 7.

OTHER.--UNLIKE ANY

GENERATION AFTER GENERATION HAVE USED AND BLESSED IT

WHO WANTS THE SPLENDID

The "Fredericton Globe" will furnish this high-class magazine upon the following terms:-

We will furnish the "Fredericton Globe" and the splendid "Home-Makea" Magazine one year for the small sum of $1.25.

This is an offer that should be accepted by every person who reads

This offer is made because we think it will get us many new readers; and, as we wish to treat our old friends well,-present subsribers can send $1.25 and get credit for the "Fredericton Globe" for one year from the time they have already paid for, and get the "Home-Maker Magazine one year, beginning immediately. Remember $1.25 pays one year's subscription for the "Frdericton Globe" and the "Home-Maker." The cash must accompany each order.

Address or call at

The "Fredericton Globe" Office

Below we print the Prospectus of the "Home-Maker" Magazine.

$2.00 per Year; 20 Cents a Number.

CHEAP IN PRICE ONLY

The "Home-Maker" asks every intelligent man to become a subscriber for himself and family, and every intelligent woman for herself, for the following raasons:-1. The "HOME-MAKER" is the only high-class magazine in America

2. It gives more for the money than any other magazine in Amer-

3. It gives the best—the best illustrations, the best writers, the best pily for herself, Frederica thought she stories, the best poems, the best departments—and is the only organ of the Federated Clubs.

4. It is original, bright, entertaining, valuable; every line interestof marriage, and coming as they did on ing; every article new and readable; good for the whole family. 5. It satisfies the active intelligence of womeo. It is ("Gail Hamilton" says) "the best union of the practical with the intellectual of all the magazines;" and its constaut endeavor is to keep in touch with every issue that can interest its readers. Nothing copied; everything original.

50 Cents For 3 Months; $1.00 For 6 Months; $2.00 One Year. Sample Copies, 10 Cents.

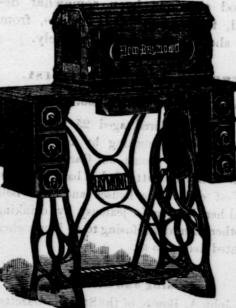

ADDRESS

THE "HOME-MAKER," UNION SQUARE, NEW YORK.

STAPLES'

Quinine Iron and Wine is the best gen eral tonic made. It will cure Indigestion, Loss of Appetite, Dizziness, Headache, and all Diseases arising from impure blood or a low state of the system. Remember it is sold on a guarantee that if it will not do what we claim for it, your money will be refunded. Be sure to ask for STAPLES' and take no other. Price 50c. a bottle or 6 bottles Prepared only by for $2.50.

DAVIS, STAPLES &

To whom all it may concern.

The NEW RAYMOND is the best family sewing Machine now in the market. The reasons why it is the best is because it runs the easiest, makes no noise and makes the best stitch, and never gets out of order. Has all the latest improvements. Sold Low and on easy terms. Call and see them. Sold wholesale and retail to agents.

Agents wanted now in all unoccupied territory. Also, a large stock of Pianos and Organs.

246 Queen Street, FREDERICTON, N. B. D. MCCATHERIN. Fredericton, N. B., April 5.

A. L. F. VANWART, Undertaker @ Embalmer. Upper Side York Street, Fredericton, N. B.

PAINTING Coffins & Caskets. FUNERAL GOODS OF ALL KINDS.

Special Prices for Orders from A First-Class Hearse in Connection. the Country. All Orders Promptly Attended to with Neatness and Despatch.