Queen's County Tragedy.

The preliminary examination of the Brown brothers of Hibernia who were held for trial for the murder of young Rathburn, also of that place, began Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, before Magistrate B. S. Palmer. It appears that neither the Brown family or the Rathburn family have borne a good reputation in community in which they live, and while the reports indicate a murder most foul, committed as it were in a cool and premeditated manner, the bad reputation borne by all parties concerned, tends to lessen greatly the shock caused by the fatality.

Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving day was preceded by a violent cold storm of wind and sleet, which continued for some hours Wednesday evening, and left the ground covered with snow. Thanksgiving morning however, was as fine as heart could wish. There was enough snow on the ground to give the landscape a very country appearance, and to render the walking and driving unpleasant. But overhead, the weather reminded one of an April Day. The sun was shining brightly, and the air was as balmy as spring breezes. The people of the city very generally observed the holiday. Nearly all the places of business were closed, and every one was out in holiday attire. There was service held in all the churches at 11 o'clock in the morning, at which a small proportion of the populace attended.

In the afternoon the football match between the St. John A. A. and the U. N. B. teams proved the centre of attraction. The game took place on the A. A. grounds on Regent street. The St. John men were, H. H. Harvey, H. H. Hansard, R. N. Frith, S. Fairweather, G. S. McLeod, H. S. Smith, B. S. Smith, W. Clark, H. Schofield, Perry Clarke, W. Lockhart. Hansard acted as captain of the St. John's and Powers of the Fredericton nine. The ground was in a very inferior condition for football, being cold and slippery, but nevertheless a lively game was played. From the first it was apparent that the St. John men were too heavy for the University boys, and the result showed that they are the stronger team. There were no goals made. The visitors scored 2 points. During one of the most exciting positions of the game, Jones, one of the St. John boys, was pretty badly hurt having his leg twisted. But nothing serious resulted.

In the evening the performance of The Coming Woman, or The Spirit of 1900 by local amateurs at the city hall drew a very large house, and was pronounced by all who saw it to be an extremely creditable performance.

SUICIDE OR ACCIDENT.

Death of Superintendent of St. Paul's Island.

HALIFAX, Nov. 23.—The following was received to-day from St. Paul's Island: Robt. Muirhead, acting superintendent of St. Paul's Island, was found dead this morning with a shot wound in the head. He got up at daylight told his men to go to the main establishment vacated by Campbell last night to feed the horses and haul the boats. Shortly after he told his wife that he would follow the men and look for birds while gone. He gave her his keys when going, which he had never done before, and started out. A girl went for water on the same road shortly after and found his body, with the gun lying alongside of it.

A LAD KILLED IN A JEST.

Initiated as a "Silent Shade" in a Truly Ghastly Manner.

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Nov. 20.—Charlie Willis aged 13, was shot and killed, was shot and killed last night while being initiated into a secret society. Lads of from 12 to 15 years formed a society called the S. S. S. S. These letters stand for Seven Secrets, Silent Shades. The boys whose minds had evidently become inflamed by bloodthirsty literature, had a cave on the outskirts of the city, the walls of the retreat being hung with pistols, old muskets and swords.

While Charlie Willis was being initiated, Lewis Barker pointed a pistol at him. At the same instant a bandage was jerked from his eyes. Barker pulled the trigger and Willis fell with a bullet near the heart.

The entire S. S. S. S. were arrested, but most of them declined to say anything concerning the killing, as to do so was contrary to their oaths. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict of accidental death. Young Barker regards himself as a hero.

Mr. Ernest Power, of the Deaf and Dumb Institute, who returned from Chicago on Saturday, was relieved of $50 by two confidence men during his absence. The game was played as follows: "While on the train two strangers who had made Mr. Power's acquaintance got into quite an animated discussion over something. One offered to bet the other $50 that the statements he had made were correct, and said he would put up the money at once in the hands of Mr. Power, who had grown interested in their discussions and claims. 'Well,' said the other stranger, Mr. Power may be all right, but I don't know anything about it. How do I know that he is a responsible man and would deliver up the money after the bet is decided? If he can show me that he has $50 of his own, I'll cover your bet when you put it up. Mr. Power, without any hesitation, stated that he had $50, and putting his hand into his pocket pulled out the money and displayed it before the strangers, one of whom immediately grabbed the roll, made out of the car and jumped off."

A Penurious Cook.

Some years since when Messrs. W. Richards, Edgecombe and Murray were on a visit to the Burnt Hill camps on the Miramichi the following incident occurred. Early in the autumn Mr. Richards had engaged as cook a man whom he had seen for but a few moments and the camp in which he was employed was the one first entered by the party. The day was very cold and Mr. Richards closely muffled up, said to the cook after he entered the camp: Well cook what sort of provisions have you here? Bad, was the reply, the tea is unfit to drink, the flour will not make bread and the beef is not fit for a dog.

All this was said by the cook in ignorance of the fact that he was speaking to his master. Can you give us some dinner said Mr. Richards. No, said the cook for I have just enough cooked for my crew, you must go on to the depot camp. Well if you cannot give us any food you can run down to the spring and bring up a bucket of fresh water so that we can have a drink if nothing more. The spring being at some distance Mr. Richards opened the door of the stove and drew from it a large piece of roast beef which had filled the camp with its delicious odor. Calling his companions he took the pan with the beef in it to the sleigh and drove off, leaving the stingy cook to prepare another meal.

Temper Generosity With Sense.

The girl who is earning her money by working says with a sigh, when she buys a hat that is too extravagant, or a box of sweets that she doesn't need; Well, I worked hard for this money; I may spend it as I please. That sounds reasonable, but she ought to want to spend it in the right way. She ought to think of the days when possibly sickness will come—then does she want to feel that she hasn't a dollar in the world and that she is being taken care of by people on whom she has no claim? Or there will come a day when everybody else is going for an outing; will she have to decline because she hasn't saved any money? I know she has earned it; I know the fine hat or the fine gown may be very tempting, but the mere act that she has given her life—so many hours of it—her strength and her nervous force to get this money should make her cautious in taking care of it.

Shall I be mean? asked a sensitive girl. No my dear; but I tell you it is just as well to remember the old proverb about being just before you are generous. There is no generosity in contributing to a floral piece for a dead comrade and owing a bill to your washerwoman; there is no generosity in treating all the girls you know to ice cream and having to catch cold because you haven't a thick flannel petticoat on, the reason being you have no money to buy one. The girl who is talked of as generous with money is, I am sorry to say, too often very foolish with it. She is ready, when she has it, to lend it to whoever asks her; to give to whatever is going on, and when it is gone she either suffers from its loss in mortification and tears or else she herself becomes a borrower.

The Delineator.

The delineator for January commences a new volume, and is called the Winter Holiday Number. It is an unusually attractive issue, the fashions being appropriate to the season, and the reading matter varied and interesting. The distinct holiday flavor is contributed by a helpful article, entitled What the Shops Show, and another reviewing the books issued for the holiday season. Household Renovation deals with the cleansing of various articles, and gives valuable information about cleansing fluids, Child Life treats of Training a Boy for Business, and Physical Culture continues the instruction given last month on the Physical Expression of the Emotions. Small Economics is a particularly reasonable and valuable article at this time, and one that will be of service to every housekeeper; and much may be gained from the second paper on Things that should be Left Unaid. An illustrated article on House and Street Gowns is of general interest to ladies, and another appropriate to the time is Fur Sets and Trimmings. The Tea-Table Talk for the month is full of information, and an unusually attractive assortment of designs is given in Tinting, Knitting, Chocheting, Lace-Making, etc., etc. The subscription to The Delineator is only One Dollar a year; Single Copies, 15 cents. Address orders to The Delineator Publishing Co. of Toronto (Ltd.), 33 Richmond Street West, Toronto, Ont.
