AN OPEN LETTER.

Grand Lake Range, Queen's County, N. B.

March 10th, 1893.

THE GRODER DYSPEPSIA CURE Co., Ltd.

GENTLEMEN:

I am 72 years of age and have had Dyspepsis for several years. I have employed numerous physicians and taken many patent medicines, but all were of no use in my case. I began to grow worse. There was severe distress in my stomach; everything I ate, even the lightest food caused me intense agony. monial in the newspaper stating what Groder's marred men in the county. Syrup had done for others. As a last effort went to St. John and brought me home a Leat as I wish and have no distress from my food; my appetite is first-class, my food thates good to me now, I sleep as sound as a shild. I do all my own work without the aid of a servant and can do a day's washing without feeling much tired whereas I could not do it at all before taking Groder's. I do feel grateful to you, gentlemen, for placing so valuable a remedy upon the market. I give all the credit for present state of good health to your medicine.

I am willing to answer any questions con cerning the above, for I firmly believe your remedy will cure other sufferers as it has cured me, I conscientiously make this statement without any inducement or reward knowing it to be one of the best medicines in the market for Dyspepsia.

ELEANOR BURKE

Love Versus Wealth BY ARTHUR PENRHYN.

CHAPTER I.

Mr. Josiah Bullion was one of the rich set bankers in the midland counties. He rolled in wealth. His touch, like that of Midas, seemed to change all things into gold. His horses were the best, his ground the largest, and his house-Bullion Lodge—was the finest in the country.

It was a quaint old gabled building surrounded with trees; a pleasant terrace poverty-stricken gentleman. ran round the house, from which steps went down to a well-trimmed lawn. From the iron gates which led out into the pleasant little country road, ran cerriage drive up to the house; on each side of this drive grew tall elms, whose branches uniting together, formed a leafy erch across the road.

On one side of the lodge ran the rook ery, whose black inhabitants kept up an incessant cawing from morning to eve There was a wild luxuriance about the place that prevented the eye from growing weary, as it generally dose when it rests upon primly-chopped hedges, wellont trees, and orderly flower-beds.

Josiah Bullion was a thoroughly re enectable man; he attended the village church twice on a Sunday, and once dur ing the week; the rector always dined with him on the Sabbath, and on the week days some visitor was sure to find a place at Mr. Bullion's well-laden table Of all things in the world that Mr. Bullion distiked, poverty was the worst; he hated

A beggar, in his sight, was a living disease and he fled from him as an ancient Hebrew womld have shunned a leper.

Dives was a christain compared with Mr. Bullion-in fact had Mr. Bullion been in Dives' place, he would put Lazarus in the stocks, and have tried whether the sores on his back could be cured by the application of the besdle's whip.

For all this, Mr. Josiah Bullion pass as a charitable man; he subscribed to al the charities in the neighborhood: who could doubt that fact?-did not his name appear at the top of each subscription list, in the largest of characters, with the largest sum attached to it? And were oct all these lists carefully printed week ofter week, in the local papers?

It is true he was hard with the paupens but then it was to show them that they were under great obligations to seciety at large, and Mr. Josiah Bullion in Hig zich meighbors considered him paragon of virtue and liberality. His poor ones thought him a stingy olderrow Such was Josiah Bullion, of Bullion Lodge in the county of Warwickshire.

Josiah Bullion was a widower with one denghter, a tall, handsome girl, of about tweaty-one, who was greatly admired by all the young men in the county-a thing not much to wondered at for Caroline Bullion had many things to make her very desirable match. In the first place, she was, as I have dready said, very handsome; her hair glints of reddish gold which forms the love to Caroline. true auburn-not the color vulgarly supoften spoils a good face—was neither too grass beneath. large nor too small, but was straight with her shoulders; her bust fine; her arms figure exquisitely moulded.

would leave all his money to his daugh-

But Caroline was not a girl easily won; is akin to pain. to regain health, I thought that I would buy she required something more than proit. Just before Christmas last my son Fred testations and believed very little in well-turned phrases or pretty compliments | shall I ever be thine? bettle of your remedy. I used with the fol- Many considered her proud and cold, but this was far from being the truth; she could love fondly, passionately, but she was no girl to throw such genuine feelings away where they could not be returned, and she was too clear-sighted to mistake the love of her gold for the love

> One alone amongst her many suitors had touched her heart; and that one was Cyril Canvendish, a young gentleman who possessed the best blood and the least estate in the county. Cyril's ancestors had come in with the Conqueror, and, like most of the highsouled gentlemen who accompanied that prince of theives, had robbed the Saxons right and left; each generation had added something more to the estate, till one Cuthbert Cavendish, in the reign of Henry VI., had become suddenly penitent, and by at all in the market. the advice of a disinterested father confessor, he founded the fine old abbey of Monkshold, of which the said disinterested father confessor became Abbot.

But in the reign of the jovial monarch, hunted out the monks, and took possesbut, from that moment the luck of the Cavendishes departed.

One after the other the heirs to the better off than I amyself. estates turned out badly, and acre after was left with the abbey, a few acres of himself in it.

er of his birth and name.

Cyril was handsome and bold, whilst came from my uncle. his calm reserve and ruined fortunes bachelor.

friends, yet up to the time when my story commences it had caused him no real trouble.

since he had met Caroline Bullion, he during my minority was to be used to loved her, and yet hated himself for it; pay off this debt. Suddenly your fathe for would not an alliance with the daugh- became immensely wealthy. He enlarged ter of a man who had, mushroom-like, his bank, bought Bullion Lodge, and sprung up suddenly from the earth, no one knowing where he came from or who he was-would not such an alliance that he did not remember the money I or at least taint it.

Cyril's love.

ferent tale to his heart.

Is she not beautiful? he asked; is she me. not good, kind and loving? Could a queen have a better hand, or a duchess, is really very good. He lets me have all however old her family, a finer or truer my own way, and gives me whatever it Cyril's deportment did not pass unnoticed that it is only his manner; he is strange by the gossips of the place. Young and terribly nervous. I remember, when ladies tossed their heads and tittered, I was a child, I was playing with one of some pitying Cyril's taste, and some the the maid-servants, and she, in fun, shut helplessness of his position; whilst their me up in a dark closet. Of course I was mammas shook their heads, and won- frightened, and screamed; my father dered what old Bullion be about to let heard it, and, throwing up his arms, exhis daughter flirt so dreadfully with claimed. He comes!--He comes! and that nice, but penniless—therefore dan- fell into a fit. So you see how easily his gerous-young man, Cyril Cavendish.

But old Bullion seemed rather to like the notion of becoming connected with the Cavendishes; he even went so far as to offer to lend Cyril money—an offer which was indignantly refused-and in- his pocket. vited him to all the reunions that were held at Bullion Lodge; so that Cyril and Caroline frequently met, and by some instinct—well known to the young men and women of all classes, but quite in comprehensible to even the greatest If he refuse; well there is still the old philosophers the two young people learned each other's secrets, and loved in yet conquered his pride, and besides he to tremble and therefore he proposed that feared a refusal-a thought which nearly they should return to the dining-room. killed him: To think that he, Cyril Cavendish should be rejected by a rich par- papa until you hear from me. When all venue—the idea was torture:

It was during one of the reunions at between us and get his consent.

posed to be that rare hue; her eyebrows rose high above the tall dark rookery. were thin and delicately arched; her com- silvering the dewy leaves, and throwing plexion somewhat pale; her eyes a bright her beams betwixt the tangled boughs, hazel; her nose-that feature which so making a glorious tesselation on the well-curved nostrils; her mouth was de- white owl sounded from the swood, whilst please, scribed by one of her many admirers as a the drone of the field beetle as he whirlcoral cave filled with pearls; her ears were ed through the air kept up a pleasant small and pink; her neck well seated on murmur. The weather was warm, too warm for the well-lighted drawing room to me. Come, Miss Bullion, I want to let well rounded; her hands small, and her of Bullion Lodge; so Caroline pulling wide you hear. Mrs. Calderoy has been dying the curtains that hung before the win-But beside these numerous qualities, it dow, stepped out on the terrace, and, lost was a well-known fact that old Bullion in thought as she gazed at the moon, piano, and commenced playing and conhalf listening to the music that came ter, and that would at least add two from the room she had just left, and half My appetite was poor and I could not sleep. hundred thousand reasons for Caroline listening to those strange moaning voices I was shoot without hope when I saw a testi- Bullion being adored by all the young un- that, on a calm night will rise up in our hearts, filling with a strange sadness that other.

Unconsciously her lips parted, and she whispered gently, No Cyril, dear Cyril,

The next instant an arm encircled her waist, and a warm kiss was imprinted on did not propose to Miss Bullion to-night. her forehead.

Cyril-Mr. Cavendish! she exclaimed. I have not done so? with shame and amazement.

Nay, do not fly from me Caroline! cried Cyril. How long have I prayed for this moment, which I dared not seek myself! Caroline I have loved you long in silence. I could not tell my love; my on to their proud old blazon. I tell you tongue was bound by a galling chain- my boy it won't do. I don't know what poverty, my dearest. I know that you is the reason; but old and new families would not have considered that a barrier: can no more agree than old and new but your father-

Oh Cyril I know papa will not object! Surely he has wealth enough for both: and we love so!

Ay, we are rich enough in love darling; but that, to use your father's phraseology

Oh but you are not so poor! said Caro-

Pardon me darling; you must banish and thoroughly hopethat idea from your mind. I am pcorvery poor! You have heard all our family member that queer things happened Henry VIII., a descendant to Cuthbert's history. As for my ancestors, it is enough some twenty-or nearly twenty-years to say that they were the richest people ago? sion of the abbey, which ever afterward around here, and were high as any peobecame the residence of the Cavendishes ple in England. Well auddenly misfor- ing back. tune came upon them, until my father, Laurence Cavendish, was left, but a little about the stranger who was seen to enter acre slipped away, until Cyril Cavendish around for some way of increasing his but nothing came of it. It is true, no one means and at last, persuaded by his was more anxious that the affair should land, and just enough money to keep brother Cuthbert, he sold a portion of be cleared up than old Bullon; but there his estate and entrusted the money he are still some people who say that the The secluded life which Cyril found raised by the sale to Cuthbert who deter- banker knew more of the business than himself compelled to lead made him mined to go abroad, and embark in some he world like to tell, Any way, he benaturally reserved; whilst his seeing business. Of course, our family pride came immensely rich directly afterward others enjoying the estates which ought would not allow this to be known, for no and moved to Bullion Lodge. Some say to have been his mused him to be proud- Cavendish had ever yet been in trade. the money was gained by theft, and others Well, years rolled away, and no tidings by murder.

My father died, leaving me a little boy made him highly interesting to the mar- and almost all I know of the matter now riageable young ladies in the neighbor- is that my father, up to the day of his hood, but the watchful mothers soon death, believed that Uncle Cuthbert discountenanced the high-born but would return with immense wealth to reinstate the family. Of course, all hope So the owner of Monkshold Abbey of that had long since passed. Some time found himself at the age of thirty still a after my father's death, your father settled down here. He was not rich then, Cyril could not help feeling hurt at Carry. But what made me notice his this treatment; but although he laughed arrival was the anxious way in which he at it when speaking to his few male inquired about my father's death, and also what news we had of my uncle.

He also advanced some large sums of money to my guardians to do up the But things had changed with Cyril abby and grounds. The money saved became the man of the county.

He wrote to my guardians, telling them ruin the blue blood of the Cavendishes, owed him, and they, foolishly, took him at his words, but on attaining my ma-So argued Cyril's pride; but what said jority, I paid him back every penny, with interest. Since then he has been most The blind boy whispered a very dif- kind to me but were I to ask him for your hand, I doubt not he would refuse

Oh, no, Cyril-no! cried Caroline. Papa is. He seems cold toward me and yet I To all these questions Cyril answered, know he loves me. Sometimes I look up No; so went on getting madly blindly in suddenly, and find him gazing intently at me, and when he sees my eyes, he turns Of course such a sudden change in his head away with a moan. But I know nerves were shaken.

> Yes, very likely, said Cyril dryly; but had you called out, Pounds, shillings and pence! he would not have been so affected. Your cry touched his heart and not Cyril! exclaimed Caroline in wonder. Pardon me, dearest, I did not mean what I said. I suppose I must face the matter out, and ask your father to give up the brightest treasure he possessed. abbey, and enough to live on.

For some time they walked up and down the terrace, until Cyril noticed that I say loved in silence, for Cyril had not the cold night air was causing Caroline

Cyril, said Caroline, do not speak to have left I will tell him what has passed was of that deep brown, shot with the Bullion Lodge that Cyril first spoke of As you will darling. I feel that I must !

obey you in everything; henceforth you It was a beautiful July night: the moon are my destiny. Pray Heaven your father will consent to our union.

Why Cyril, exclaimed a voice as the curtains of the window were drawn on one side, are you the cynic turned stargazer?-though with such a companion a Now and then the plaintive cry of the man would be apt to turn everything to Nonsense! Why are you not at the

Because there's no one there to listen to hear it; so come along.

The young man led the way to the versing with a lady who was seated on a settee by the side of him whilst Cyril and Caroline stood, apparently listening to the music, but really thinking of each

At last the card-party at the other end of the room finished and in a sort time all the guests departed.

I say Cavendish, said Fred Gordon, as he walked home with Cyril, I hope you

In the first place old fellow I believe Bullion would refuse. In the second, I don't advocate the old families marrying into new ones. Fancy the Cavendishes quartering the coat of arms of the Bullions wines.

Perhaps it is for that reasen that both old wines and old families get so crusty, laughed Cavendish.

Oh, you may laugh! But, I tell you, it won't do. Besides, where did old Bullion is an unsaleable commodity, of no value come from? How did he get his money? Who is he?

My dear Fred, we know that he got his money in business-honestly. I believe-

What nonsense you talk! You must re-

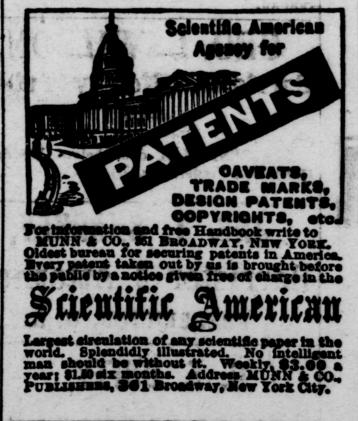

What do you mean? gasped Cyril, start-

Well, you remember the queer story the bank, and was never seen afterward? He married, and naturally looked The matter made some stir at the time,

Concluded next issue.

Hotel

Mrs. B. Atherton Prop. Fredericton, N. B.

Watches and Jewelry

Opp. A. F. Randolph & Sons.

Thesepills were a wonderful discovery. UnMke any others. One Pill a Bose. Children take them easily. The most delicate women use them. In fact all ladies can obtain very great benefit from the use of Parsons' Pills.
One her cent nects We pay duty to Canada

The circular around each box explains the aymptoms. Also how to eure a great variety diseases. This information alone is worth

Best Liver Pill Known.

Beautifu and with a Clear, Healthy Complection

Of course very man wants his wife to be beautiful; but how can she be beautiful if !. And may I ask you why you hope that face and hands are disfigured by rough skin, freckles, tan or eruptions? Nothing will throw such a damper on love as a blemished face.

> known remedies for the cure of all cutaneos diseases, a refined healthy complexion is as-When CEM CURATIVE SOAP is used according to directions the effects are marvellous and gratifying. Time has proven this to be true, as thousands of the most flattering testimonials are on file from customers in England, Scotland, France and Germany, in which countries the Soap is a staple toilet article.

By the use of "GEM CURATIVE SOAP," an article which combines the best

For Thirty Days Only Write this on a piece of GEM CURATIVE SOAP.

And send to with twenty cents for a sample cake of Gem Curative Soap. To the first lady from whom a slip is received will be given a handsome Seal Ski Mantle, valued at $300.00, or its equivalent in cash, less 20 per cent- To the fir Gentlemen from whom is received a similiar slip will be given an 18-karat Gold Watch set with one karat diamonds. Appleton & Tracey's movement, valued at $250.00. In addition to these, we have prepared five thousand sample cakes numebred 1 to 5000. Every number ending with naught (0) will receive a prize valued at not less than $10.00.

Sample cases postpaid. All goods for the United States free of duty. GEM SOAP Co., TORONTO, CANADA

GEO. W. ADAMS, Undertaker.

Queen St., Opposite People's Bank.

COFFINS AND CASKETS, All Styles and Quality at The LOWEST PRICES.

FURNITURE UPHOLSTERED.

99 out of 100

cople at least use Furniture. And many of the Ninety-Nine have ot yet got all the Furniture they need or would like to have.

When you want to buy anything in the Furniture Line, either for every day use or for ornament, remember to call at the store of

Willard Kitchen & Co..

2 DOORS ABOVE PEOPLE'S BANK.

FURNITURE of all Kinds, PIANOS, ORGANS, and SEWINC

Goods of all the Latest designs and all fresh from the factories. Prompt attention given to orders by mail.

Fredericton, Sept. 16th, 1893.

ENERGY. EQUITY. ECONOMY.

Before Insuring your Life write for Rates and Plans to the

UNIMINATE THE TOO. CO. P BOTHER BASE TOTAL ___TO___

E. R. MACHUM,

Agents Wanted.

HON. G. W. ROSS, Pres.

Man. for Maritime Prov.

ST. JOHN, N. B. H. SUTHERLAND, Man. TORONTTO

Don't Fail to Read This!

WANT SUPPLIED.

Having noticed lately the eagerness of purchasers of Ready-Made Clothing to get a better article than that which is imported from Montreal, I have decided this coming year

To Fill the Bill, I am now showing a line of Custom Made Clothing at Ready Made Prices.

Ask to see the Fifteen Dollar Custom Made Overcoats.

A few suits of Montreal clothing that I have on hand I will close out BELOW COST. I would also call your attention to the fact that I am closing out my stock of Gents' Furnishings, consisting of :- White and Regetta Shirts, Neckwear, Suspenders, Collars, Cuffs, Caps, Handkerchiefs, etc., consequenty

GREAT BARGAINS Await Purchasers of the above goods at

150 QUEEN STREET.