The Coming Month.

The ensuing month promises to be a very busy and exciting one for Glassville and the surrounding neighbourhood, as even now the lumber merchants have begun to send crews into the woods, for the winter's operations; and no doubt we shall soon see great numbers of teams on the portage, carrying supplies into the various camps that are already established and to be built. May they have a fine open winter for their operations.

The storekeepers in our little city are displaying an unusual amount of activity and their stores are overflowing with a liberal supply seasonable requirements, Mr. James Love, will soon have his new store in running order, and we know he has already ordered a most extensive and varied stock, of all such goods as are in constant demand, and in addition a fine stock of novelties, suitable for the coming season. Mr. J. McIntosh, too, as will be seen by referring to our advertising columns has also re-stocked his commodious store, and apparently, does not intend to be distanced, in an open race for business, by any of his competitors. We like to see push, and energy, displayed in business, we have a fine back country to help us out, of which Glassville is the natural outlet, and we should use all our best endeavours to keep the whole trade of the neighbourhood, confined to our own metropolis. We believe there is a glorious future before us, but, like the kernel of the nut, we can't get at it without first cracking the shell; in other words we must use our talents, (such as they are) and surplus energies, towards that end, and not trust to the adventitious aid of time and circumstance.

The newly established Forester's Court seems destined to fill a hiatus in social society hereabouts, as independent of the benefit attached to membership, they are about to confer a great boon on the dancing portion of the people, by giving a Grand Ball, in the Caledonian Hall, we perhaps, ought to call it the Forester's Hall, since they seem to have monopolized that part of Mr. McIntosh's building for their own especial purpose. The committee of management is composed of gentlemen well known for their fondness of dancing, and we would imagine that with a corps of such distinguished M. Cs. the Forester's Ball, cannot fail to be a great success.

During the ensuing month the election of county councillors will take place, we believe the gentlemen then elected will hold that position for two years, so that it becomes incumbent on the electors to endeavour to send, thorough, good men to represent their parish and county, men who will look after the interests of their supporters, and the public generally. A word to the wise is sufficient, and we may be excused if we offer a few words of advice to the electors on this occasion. Our advice is, select men, having at least, an average amount of intellect: Don't send a man because he has a long purse: bear in mind, that brains and money, don't always hunt in couples. Don't send the man who drives the smartest equipage: Such men can't always drive, or even lead their fellow men. In such a case, and in all similar cases, we would say:—Select a man whose knowledge of general matters is above the average, and of liberal education: and depend upon it, such a one will have the tact, and acumen, to conduct himself in any position, so as to reflect credit upon himself and upon his constituents.

As will be seen by advertisement, Mr. Laurance, the eminent optician, of the firm of B. Laurance, & Co. will be at the Glassville House, on the 28th. inst. with a supply of their celebrated spectacles, which he will be prepared to adapt to all defects of vision. Mr. W. E. Thistle, the Hartland agent, accompanies Mr. Laurance, and will be pleased to see his "Old Friends" and introduce them.

We owe our subscribers an apology for being a day or two late in publishing the present issue, which as promised, in our last has been enlarged. The old adage, "Make hay while the sun shines" is quite apropos to our case; having to enlarge our office, we took advantage of the generous offer of a volunteer builder's help, and proceeded with the work, thus fulfilling the injunction conveyed in the proverb. This must be our excuse for the delay.

Beaufort.

Although this settlement seems so far away in the backwoods, it's inhabitants do not appear to be so far behind times, they know how to ape the manners and customs of some old country cities, and appropriate high sounding titles for their residences. We find from a contemporary there is a "Dove Cot" the summer residence of one family, (where do they hibernate?) "Greenwood Lodge" "Poplar Lawn" and shortly "Badminton House" the seat of the "Duke of Beaufort" will be completed, and lift it's imposing towers towards the sky. We may expect by and by to hear of a "Sandringham Hall" "Chatsworth" "Hatfield" or "Hughenden" being added to the summer residence, or autumnal shooting box, of some of the aristocratic inhabitants of that charming rural paradise.

We also learn from the contemporary previously referred to, that one happy father in the settlement joyously sings

"Baby's got a Tooth."
